This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

CONVENTION WHICH FORMED THE CONSTITUTION.

IN CONVENTION.

MONDAY, September 17, 1787.

Resolved, That the preceding Constitution be laid before the United States in Congress assembled: and that it is the opinion of this Convention that it should afterwards be submitted to a convention of delegates, chosen in each State by the people thereof, under the recommendation of its legislature, for their assent and ratification; and that each convention assenting to and ratifying the same should give notice thereof to the United States in Congress assembled.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention that, as soon as the conventions of nine States shall have ratified this Constitution, the United States in Congress assembled should fix a day on which electors should be appointed by the States which shall have ratified the same, and a day on which electors should assemble to vote for the President, and the time and place for commencing proceedings under this Constitution; that after such publication, the electors should be appointed, and the Senators and Representatives elected; that the electors should meet on the day fixed for the election of the President, and should transmit their votes, certified, signed, sealed, and directed, as the Constitution requires, to the Secretary of the United States in Congress assembled; that the Senators and Representatives should convene at the time and place assigned; that the Senators should appoint a President of the Senate, for the sole purpose of receiving, opening, and counting the votes for President; and that, after he shall be chosen, the Congress, together with the President, should, without delay, proceed to execute this Constitution.

By the unanimous order of the Convention:

GEO: WASHINGTON, President.

WILLIAM JACKSON, Secretary.

LETTER OF THE CONVENTION TO THE OLD CONGRESS.

IN CONVENTION.

SEPTEMBER 17, 1787.

SIR: We have now the honor to submit to the consideration of the United States in Congress assembled, that Constitution which has appeared to us the most advisable.

The friends of our country have long seen and desired that the power of making war, peace, and treaties; that of levying money, and regulating commerce, and the correspondent executive and judicial authorities, should be fully and effectually vested in the General Government of the Union; but the impropriety of delegating such extensive trust to one body of men is evident; hence results the necessity of a different organization.

It is obviously impracticable in the federal government of these States to secure all rights of independent sovereignty to each, and yet provide for the interest and safety of all. Individuals entering into society must give up a share of liberty to preserve the rest. The magnitude of the sacrifice must depend as well on situation and circumstance as on the object to be obtained. It is at all times difficult to draw with precision the line between those rights which must be surrendered and those which may be reserved; and on the present occasion, this difficulty was increased by a difference among the several States as to their situation, extent, habits, and particular interests.

In all our deliberations on this subject, we kept steadily in our view that which appears to us the greatest interest of every true American—the consolidation of our Union—in which is involved our prosperity, felicity, safety, perhaps our national existence. This important consideration, seriously and deeply impressed on our minds, led each State in the Convention to be less rigid on points of inferior magnitude than might have been otherwise expected; and thus the Constitution which we now present is the result of a spirit of amity, and of that mutual deference and concession which the peculiarity of our political situation rendered indispensable.

That it will meet the full and entire approbation of every State is not, perhaps, to be expected; but each will doubtless consider that, had her interest been alone consulted, the consequences might have been particularly disagreeable or injurious to others. That it is liable to as few exceptions as could reasonably have been expected, we hope and believe. That it may promote the lasting welfare of that country so dear to us all, and secure her freedom and happiness, is our most ardent wish.

With great respect, we have the honor to be, sir, your excellency's most obedient, humble servants.

ARTICLE V.

ARTICLE VI.

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defence.

PREFACE.

The Constitution of the United States, establishing a legislature for the Union under certain forms, authorizes each branch of it "to determine the rules of its own proceedings." The Senate have accordingly formed some rules for its own government; but these going only to few cases, they have referred to the decision of their President, without debate and without appeal, all questions of order arising either under their own rules, or where they have provided none. This places under the discretion of the President a very extensive field of decision, and one which, irregularly exercised, would have a powerful effect upon the proceedings and determinations of the House. The President must feel, weightily and seriously, this confidence in his discretion, and the necessity of recurring, for its government, to some known system of rules, that he may neither leave himself free to indulge caprice or passion, nor open to the imputation of them. But to what system of rules is he to recur, as supplementary to those of the Senate? To this there can be but one answer. To the sytem of regulations adopted for the government of some one of the parliamentary bodies within these States, or of that which has served as a prototype to most of them. This last is the model which we have all studied, while we are little acquainted with the modifications of it in our several States. It is deposited, too, in publications possessed by many, and open to all. Its rules are probably as wisely constructed for governing the debates of a considerative body, and obtaining its true sense, as any which can become known to us; and the acquiescence of the Senate, hitherto, under the references to them, has given them the sanction of their approbation.

Considering, therefore, the law of proceedings in the Senate as composed of the precepts of the Constitution, the regulations of the Senate, and, where these are silent, of the rules of Parliament, I have here endeavored to collect and digest so much of these as is called for in ordinary practice, collating the Parliamentary with the Senatorial rules, both where they agree and where they vary. I have done this, as well to have them at hand for my own government, as to deposit with the Senate the standard by which I judge, and am willing to be judged. I could not doubt the necessity of quoting the sources of my information, among which Mr. Hatsel's most valuable book is pre-eminent; but as he has only treated some general heads, I have been obliged to recur to other authorities in support of a number of common rules of practice, to which his plan did not descend. Sometimes each authority cited supports the whole passage. Sometimes it rests on all taken together. Sometimes the authority goes only to a part of the text, the residue being inferred from known rules and principles. For some of the most familiar forms no written authority is or can be quoted; no writer having supposed it necessary to repeat what all were presumed to know. The statement of these must rest on their notoriety.

I am aware that authorities can often be produced in opposition to the rules which I lay down as parliamentary. An attention to dates will generally remove their weight. The proceedings of Parliament in ancient times, and for a long while, were crude, multiform, and embarrassing. They have been, however, constantly advancing towards uniformity and accuracy, and have now attained a degree of aptitude to their object beyond which little is to be desired or expected.

Yet I am far from the presumption of believing that I may not have mistaken the Parliamentary practice in some cases, and especially in those minor forms, which, being practised daily, are supposed known to everybody, and therefore have not been committed to writing. Our resources, in this quarter of the globe, for obtaining information on that part of the subject, are not perfect. But I have begun a sketch, which those who come after me will successively correct and fill up, till a code of rules shall be formed for the use of the Senate, the effects of which may be accuracy in business, economy of time, order, uniformity, and impartiality.

NOTE.—The rules and practices peculiar to the SENATE are printed between brackets, [ ]. Those of PARLIAMENT are not so distinguished.

MANUAL

PARLIAMENTARY PRACTICE.

IMPORTANCE OF RULES.

SEC. I.—IMPORTANCE OF ADHERING TO RULES.

Mr. ONSLOW, the ablest among the Speakers of the House of Commons, used to say, "It was a maxim he had often heard when he was a young man, from old and experienced members, that nothing tended more to throw power into the hands of administration, and those who acted with the majority of the House of Commons, than a neglect of, or departure from, the rules of proceeding: that these forms, as instituted by our ancestors, operated as a check and control on the actions of the majority, and that they were, in many instances, a shelter and protection to the minority, against the attempts of power." So far the maxim is certainly true, and is founded in good sense, that as it is always in the power of the majority, by their numbers, to stop any improper measures proposed on the part of their opponents, the only weapons by which the minority can defend themselves against similar attempts from those in power, are the forms and rules of proceeding which have been adopted as they were found necessary, from time to time, and are become the law of the House; by a strict adherence to which, the weaker party can only be protected from those irregularities and abuses which these forms were intended to check, and which the wantonness of power is but too often apt to suggest to large and successful majorities. 2 Hats., 171, 172.

And whether these forms be in all cases the most rational or not, is really not of so great importance. It is much more material that there should be a rule to go by, than what that rule is; that there may be a uniformity of proceeding in business, not subject to the caprice of the Speaker, or captiousness of the members. It is very material that order, decency, and regularity, be preserved in a dignified public body. 2 Hats., 149.

SEC. II.—LEGISLATIVE.

[All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives. Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 1.]

[The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 6.]

[For the powers of Congress, see the following Articles and Sections of the Constitution of the United States. I, 4, 7, 8, 9. II, 1, 2. III, 3. IV, 1, 3, 5, and all the amendments.]

SEC. III.—PRIVILEGE.

The privileges of members of Parliament, from small and obscure beginnings, have been advancing for centuries with a firm and never yielding pace. Claims seem to have been brought forward from time to time, and repeated, till some example of their admission enabled them to build law on that example. We can only, therefore, state the points of progression at which they now are. It is now acknowledged, 1st. That they are at all times exempted from question elsewhere for anything said in their own House; that during the time of privilege, 2d. Neither a member himself, his* wife, nor his servants, (familiares sui,) for any matter of their own, may be† arrested on mesne process, in any civil suit: 3d. Nor be detained under execution, though levied before time of privilege: 4th. Nor impleaded, cited, or subpœnaed in any court: 5th. Nor summoned as a witness or juror: 6th. Nor may their lands or goods be distrained: 7th. Nor their persons assaulted, or characters traduced. And the period of time covered by privilege, before and after the session, with the practice of short prorogations under the connivance of the crown, amounts in fact to a perpetual protection against the course of justice. In one instance, indeed, it has been relaxed by the 10 G. 3, c. 50, which permits judiciary proceedings to go on against them. That these privileges must be continually progressive, seems to result from their rejecting all definition of them; the doctrine being that "their dignity and independence are preserved by keeping their privileges indefinite; and that 'the maxims upon which they proceed, together with the method of proceeding, rest entirely in their own breast, and are not defined and ascertained by any particular stated laws.'" 1 Blackst., 163, 164.

[It was probably from this view of the encroaching character of privilege that the framers of our Constitution, in their care to provide that the law shall bind equally on all, and especially that those who make them shall not exempt themselves from their operation, have only privileged "Senators and Representatives" themselves from the single act of "arrest in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same, and from being questioned in any other place for any speech or debate in either House." Const. U. S., Art. 1, Sec. 6. Under the general authority "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers given them," Const. U. S., Art. 2, Sec. 8, they may provide by law the details which may be necessary for giving full effect to the enjoyment of this privilege. No such law being as yet made, it seems to stand at present on the following ground: 1. The act of arrest is void, ab initio.* 2. The member arrested may be discharged on motion, 1 Bl., 166; 3 Stra., 990; or by habeas corpus under the Federal or State authority, as the case may be; or by a writ of privilege out of the Chancery, 2 Stra., 989, in those States which have adopted that part of the laws of England. Orders of the House of Commons, 1550, February 20. 3. The arrest being unlawful, is a trespass for which the officer and others concerned are liable to action or indictment in the ordinary courts of justice, as in other cases of unauthorized arrest. 4. The court before which the process is returnable is bound to act as in other cases of unauthorized proceeding, and liable also, as in other similar cases, to have their proceedings stayed or corrected by the superior courts.]

[The time necessary for going to, and returning from, Congress, not being defined, it will, of course, be judged of in every particular case by those who will have to decide the case.] While privilege was understood in England to extend, as it does here, only to exemption from arrest, eundo, morando, et redeundo, the House of Commons themselves decided that "a convenient time was to be understood." (1580,) 1 Hats., 99, 100. Nor is the law so strict in point of time as to require the party to set out immediately on his return, but allows him time to settle his private affairs, and to prepare for his journey; and does not even scan his road very nicely, nor forfeit his protection for a little deviation from that which is most direct; some necessity perhaps constraining him to it. 2 Stra, 986, 987.

This privilege from arrest, privileges, of course, against all process the disobedience to which is punishable by an attachment of the person; as a subpœna ad respondendum, or testificandum, or a summons on a jury; and with reason, because a member has superior duties to perform in another place. [When a representative is withdrawn from his seat by summons, the 40,000 people whom he represents lose their voice in debate and vote, as they do on his voluntary absence: when a senator is withdrawn by summons, his State loses half its voice in debate and vote, as it does on his voluntary absence. The enormous disparity of evil admits no comparison.]

[So far there will probably be no difference of opinion as to the privileges of the two houses of Congress; but in the following cases it is otherwise. In December, 1795, the House of Representatives committed two persons of the name of Randall and Whitney, for attempting to corrupt the integrity of certain members, which they considered as a contempt and breach of the privileges of the House; and the facts being proved, Whitney was detained in confinement a fortnight, and Randall three weeks, and was reprimanded by the Speaker. In March, 1796, the House of Representatives voted a challenge given to a member of their House to be a breach of the privileges of the House; but satisfactory apologies and acknowledgments being made, no further proceeding was had. The editor of the Aurora having, in his paper of February 19. 1800, inserted some paragraphs defamatory of the Senate, and failed in his appearance, he was ordered to be committed. In debating the legality of this order, it was insisted, in support of it, that every man, by the law of nature, and every body of men, possesses the right of self-defence; that all public functionaries are essentially invested with the powers of self-preservation; that they have an inherent right to do all acts necessary to keep themselves in a condition to discharge the trusts confided to them; that whenever authorities are given, the means of carrying them into execution are given by necessary implication; that thus we see the British Parliament exercise the right of punishing contempts; all the State Legislatures exercise the same power, and every court does the same; that, if we have it not, we sit at the mercy of every intruder who may enter our doors or gallery, and, by noise and tumult, render proceeding in business impracticable; that if our tranquillity is to be perpetually disturbed by newspaper defamation, it will not be possible to exercise our functions with the requisite coolness and deliberation; and that we must, therefore, have a power to punish these disturbers of our peace and proceedings. To this it was answered, that the Parliament and courts of England have cognizance of contempts by the express provisions of their law; that the State Legislatures have equal authority, because their powers are plenary; they represent their constituents completely, and possess all their powers, except such as their constitutions have expressly denied them; that the courts of the several States have the same powers by the laws of their States, and those of the Federal Government by the same State laws adopted in each State, by a law of Congress; that none of these bodies, therefore, derive those powers from natural or necessary right, but from express law; that Congress have no such natural or necessary power, nor any powers but such as are given them by the Constitution; that that has given them, directly, exemption from personal arrest, exemption from question elsewhere for what is said in their House, and power over their own members and proceedings; for these no further law is necessary, the Constitution being the law; that, moreover, by that article of the Constitution which authorizes them "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers vested by the Constitution in them," they may provide by law for an undisturbed exercise of their functions, e. g., for the punishment of contempts, of affrays or tumult in their presence, &c.; but, till the law be made, it does not exist; and does not exist, from their own neglect; that in the mean time, however, that they are not unprotected, the ordinary magistrates and courts of law being open and competent to punish all unjustifiable disturbances or defamations, and even their own sergeant, who may appoint deputies ad libitum to aid him, 3 Grey, 59, 147, 255, is equal to small disturbances; that in requiring a previous law, the Constitution had regard to the inviolability of the citizen, as well as of the member; as, should one House, in the regular form of a bill, aim at too broad privileges, it may be checked by the other, and both by the President; and also as, the law being promulgated. the citizen will know how to avoid offence. But if one branch may assume its own privileges without control, if it may do it on the spur of the occasion, conceal the law in its own breast, and after the fact committed, make its sentence both the law and the judgment on that fact; if the offence is to be kept undefined, and to be declared only ex re nata, and according to the passions of the moment, and there be no limitation either in the manner or measure of the punishment, the condition of the citizen will be perilous indeed. Which of these doctrines is to prevail, time will decide. Where there is no fixed law, the judgment on any particular case is the law of that single case only, and dies with it. When a new and even similar case arises, the judgment which is to make, and at the same time apply the law, is open to question and consideration, as are all new laws. Perhaps Congress, in the mean time, in their care for the safety of the citizen, as well as that for their own protection, may declare by law what is necessary and proper to enable them to carry into execution the powers vested in them, and thereby hang up a rule for the inspection of all, which may direct the conduct of the citizen, and at the same time test the judgments they shall themselves pronounce in their own case.]

Privilege from arrest takes place by force of the election; and before a return be made a member elected may be named of a committee, and is to every extent a member, except that he cannot vote until he is sworn. Memor., 107, 108. D'Ewes, 642, col. 2; 643, col. 1. Pet. Miscel. Parl., 119. Lex. Parl., c. 23. 2 Hats., 22, 62.

Every man must, at his peril, take notice who are members of either House returned of record. Lex. Parl., 23; 4 Inst., 24.

On complaint of a breach of privilege, the party may either be summoned or sent for in custody of the sergeant. Grey, 88, 95.

The privilege of a member is the privilege of the House. If the member waive it without leave, it is a ground for punishing him, but cannot in effect waive the privilege of the House. 3 Grey, 140, 222.

For any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place. Const. U. S., I, 6; S. P. protest of the Commons to James I., 1621; 2 Rapin, No. 54, pp. 211, 212. But this is restrained to things done in the House in a parliamentary course. 1 Rush., 663. For he is not to have privilege contra morem parliamentarium, to exceed the bounds and limits of his place and duty. Com. p.

If an offence be committed by a member in the House, of which the House has cognizance, it is an infringement of their right for any person or court to take notice of it, till the House has punished the offender, or referred him to a due course. Lex. Parl., 63.

Privilege is in the power of the House, and is a restraint to the proceedings of inferior courts, but not of the House itself. 2 Nalson, 450; 2 Grey, 399. For whatever is spoken in the House is subject to the censure of the House; and offences of this kind have been severely punished by calling the person to the bar to make submission, committing him to the tower, expelling the House, &c. Scob., 72; L. Parl., c. 22.

It is a breach of order for the Speaker to refuse to put a question which is in order. 2 Hats., 175–6; 5 Grey, 133.

And even in cases of treason, felony, and breach of the peace, to which privilege does not extend as to substance, yet in Parliament a member is privileged as to the mode of proceeding. The case is first to be laid before the House, that it may judge of the fact and of the grounds of the accusation, and how far forth the manner of the trial may concern their privilege; otherwise it would be in the power of other branches of the government, and even of every private man, under pretences of treason, &c., to take any man from his service in the House, and so as many, one after another, as would make the House what he pleaseth. Dec. of the Com.

on the King's declaring Sir John Hotham a traitor. 4 Rushw., 586. So, when a member stood indicted for felony, it was adjudged that he ought to remain of the House till conviction; for it may be any man's case, who is guiltless, to be accused and indicted of felony, or the like crime. 23 El., 1580; D'Ewes, 283, col. 1; Lex. Parl., 133.

When it is found necessary for the public service to put a member under arrest, or when, on any public inquiry, matter comes out which may lead to affect the person of a member, it is the practice immediately to acquaint the House, that they may know the reasons for such a proceeding, and take such steps as they think proper. 2 Hats., 259. Of which see many examples. Ib., 256, 257, 258. But the communication is subsequent to the arrest. 1 Blackst., 167.

It is highly expedient, says Hatsel, for the due preservation of the privileges of the separate branches of the legislature, that neither should encroach on the other, or interfere in any matter depending before them, so as to preclude, or even influence that freedom of debate, which is essential to a free council. They are therefore not to take notice of any bills or other matters depending, or of votes that have been given, or of speeches which have been held, by the members of either of the other branches of the legislature, until the same have been communicated to them in the usual parliamentary manner. 2 Hats., 252. 4 Inst., 15. Seld, Jud., 53. Thus the king's taking notice of the bill for suppressing soldiers, depending before the House; his proposing a provisional clause for a bill before it was presented to him by the two Houses; his expressing displeasure against some persons for matters moved in parliament during the debate and preparation of a bill, were breaches of privilege; 2 Nalson, 743; and in 1783, December 17, it was declared a breach of fundamental privileges, &c., to report any opinion or pretended opinion of the king on any bill or proceeding depending in either House of Parliament, with a view to influence the votes of the members. 2 Hats., 251, 6.

SEC. IV.—ELECTIONS.

[The times, places, and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators. Const., I, 4.]

[Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members. Const., I, 5.]

SEC. V.—QUALIFICATIONS.

[The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each State, chosen by the legislature thereof for six years, and each senator shall have one vote.]

[Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the end of the second year; of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year; so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.]

[No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen. Const., I, 3.]

[The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States; and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislature.]

[No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.]

[Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers; which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one representative. Constitution of the United States, I, 2.]

The provisional apportionments of representatives made in the Constitution in 1787, and afterwards by Congress, were as follows:

SEC. VII.—CALL OF THE HOUSE.

On a call of the House, each person rises up as he is called and answereth; the absentees are then only noted, but no excuse to be made till the House be fully called over. Then the absentees are called a second time, and if still absent, excuses are to be heard. Ord. House of Commons, 92.

They rise that their persons may be recognized; the voice in such a crowd, being an insufficient verification of their presence. But in so small a body as the Senate of the United States, the trouble of rising cannot be necessary.

Orders for calls on different days may subsist at the same time. 2 Hats., 72.

SEC. VIII.—ABSENCE.

[No member shall absent himself from the service of the Senate without leave of the Senate first obtained. And in case a less number than a quorum of the Senate shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent members, as the majority of such members present shall agree, at the expense of such absent members, respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made as the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient: and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund. And this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session, after the hour is arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned. Rule 8.]

SEC. IX.—SPEAKER.

[The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided. Constitution, I, 3.]

[The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers. Const., I, 2.]

When but one person is proposed, and no objection made, it has not been usual in Parliament to put any question to the House; but without a question the members proposing him conduct him to the chair. SEC. X.—ADDRESS.

[The President shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. Const., II, 3.]

A joint address of both Houses of Parliament is read by the Speaker of the House of Lords. It may be attended by both Houses in a body, or by a committee from each House, or by the two Speakers only. An address of the House of Commons only, may be presented by the whole House, or by the Speaker, 9 Grey, 473; 1 Chandler, 298, 301; or by such particular members as are of the privy council. 2 Hats., 278.

SEC. XI.—COMMITTEES.

Standing committees, as of privileges and elections, &c., are usually appointed at the first meeting, to continue through the session. The person first named is generally permitted to act as chairman. But this is a matter of courtesy; every committee having a right to elect their own chairman, who presides over them, puts questions, and reports their proceedings to the House. 4 Inst., 11, 12; Scob., 9; 1 Grey, 122.

* RULE 23. The Vice President or President of the Senate pro tempore, shall have the right to name a member to perform the duties of the Chair; but such substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.

At these committees the members are to speak standing, and not sitting; though there is reason to conjecture it was formerly otherwise. D'Ewes, 630, col. 1; 4 Parl. Hist., 440; 2 Hats., 77.

Their proceedings are not to be published, as they are of no force till confirmed by the House. Rushw., part 3, vol. 2, 74; 3 Grey, 401; Scob., 39. Nor can they receive a petition but through the House. 9 Grey, 412.

When a committee is charged with an inquiry, if a member prove to be involved, they cannot proceed against him, but must make a special report to the House; whereupon the member is heard in his place, or at the bar, or a special authority is given to the committee to inquire concerning him. 9 Grey, 523.

So soon as the House sits, and a committee is notified of it, the chairman is in duty bound to rise instantly, and the members to attend the service of the House. 2 Nals., 319.

It appears that on joint committees of the Lords and Commons, each committee acted integrally in the following instances: 7 Grey, 261, 278, 285, 338; 1 Chandler, 357, 462. In the following instances it does not appear whether they did or not: 6 Grey, 129; 7 Grey, 213, 229, 321.*

RULE 33. The following standing committees, to consist of five members each, shall be appointed at the commencement of each session, with leave to report by bill or otherwise:

A Committee on Foreign Relations.
A Committee on Finance.
A Committee on Commerce.
A Committee on Manufactures.
A Committee on Agriculture.
A Committee on Military Affairs.
A Committee on the Militia.
A Committee on Naval Affairs.
A Committee on Public Lands.
A Committee on Private Land Claims.
A Committee on Indian Affairs.
A Committee of Claims.
A Committee on the Judiciary.

SEC. XII.—COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

The speech, messages, and other matters of great concernment, are usually referred to a committee of the whole house, (6 Grey, 311,) where general principles are digested in the form of resolutions, which are debated and amended till they get into a shape which meets the approbation of a majority. These being reported and confirmed by the House, are then referred to one or more select committees, according as the subject divides itself into one or more bills. Scob., 36, 44. Propositions for any charge on the people are especially to be first made in a committee of the whole. 3 Hats., 127. The sense of the whole is better taken in committee, because in all committees every one speaks as often as he pleases. Scob., 49. They generally acquiesce in the chairman named by the Speaker; but, as well as all other committees, have a right to elect one, some member, by consent, putting the question. Scob., 36; 3 Grey, 301. The form of going from the House into committee is for the Speaker, on motion, to put the question that the House do now resolve itself into a committee of the whole, to take under consideration such a matter, naming it. If determined in the affirmative, he leaves the chair and takes a seat elsewhere, as any other member; and the person appointed chairman seats himself at the clerk's table. Scob., 36. Their quorum is the same as that of the House, and if a defect happens, the chairman, on a motion and question, rises, the Speaker resumes the chair, and the chairman can make no other report than to inform the House of the cause of their dissolution. If a message is announced during a com-

A Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

A Committee on Pensions.

A Committee on the District of Columbia.

A Committee, of three members, whose duty it shall be to audit and control the contingent expenses of the Senate.

And a Committee, consisting of three members, whose duty it shall be to examine all bills, amendments, resolutions, or motions, before they go out of the possession of the Senate, and to make report that they are correctly engrossed; which report shall be entered on the journal.

mittee, the Speaker takes the chair, and receives it, because the committee cannot. 2 Hats., 125, 126.

In a committee of the whole, the tellers on a division differing as to numbers, great heats and confusion arose, and danger of a decision by the sword. The Speaker took the chair, the mace was forcibly laid on the table; whereupon, the members retiring to their places, the Speaker told the House "he had taken the chair without an order, to bring the House into order." Some excepted against it; but it was generally approved, as the only expedient to suppress the disorder. And every member was required, standing up in his place, to engage that he would proceed no further, in consequence of what had happened in the grand committee, which was done. 3 Grey, 128.

A committee of the whole being broken up in disorder, and the chair resumed by the Speaker without an order, the House was adjourned. The next day the committee was considered as thereby dissolved, and the subject again before the House; and it was decided in the House, without returning into committee. 3 Grey, 130.

No previous question can be put in a committee, nor can this committee adjourn as others may; but if their business is unfinished, they rise, on a question, the House is resumed, and the chairman reports that the committee of the whole have, according to order, had under their consideration such a matter, and have made progress therein; but not having had time to go through the same, have directed him to ask leave to sit again. Whereupon a question is put upon their having leave, and on the time the House will again resolve itself into a committee. Scob., 38. But if they have gone through the matter referred to them, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report their proceedings to the House; which being resolved, the chairman rises, the Speaker resumes the chair, the chairman informs him that the committee have gone through the business referred to them, and that he is ready to make report when the House shall think proper to receive it. If the House have time to receive it, there is usually a cry of "now, now," whereupon he makes the report; but if it be late, the cry is "to-morrow, to-morrow," or "Monday," &c., or a motion is made to that effect, and a question put that it be received to-morrow, &c. Scob., 38.

In other things the rules of proceedings are to be the same as in the House. Scob., 39.

SECTION XIII.—EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Common fame is a good ground for the House to proceed by inquiry, and even to accusation. Resolution House of Commons, 1 Car. 1, 1624; Rush, L. Parl., 115; 1 Grey, 16–22, 92; 8 Grey, 21, 23, 27, 45.

Witnesses are not to be produced but where the House has previously instituted an inquiry, (2 Hats., 102,) nor then are orders for their attendance given blank. 3 Grey, 51.

When any person is examined before a committee, or at the bar of the House, any member wishing to ask the person a question, must address it to the Speaker or chairman, who repeats the question to the person, or says to him, "you hear the question—answer it." But if the propriety of the question be objected to, the Speaker directs the witness, counsel, and parties, to withdraw, for no question can be moved or put, or debated while they are there. 2 Hats., 108. Sometimes the questions are previously settled in writing before the witness enters. Ib., 106, 107; 8 Grey, 64. The questions asked must be entered in the journals. 3 Grey, 81. But the testimony given in answer before the House is never written down; but before a committee, it must be, for the information of the House, who are not present to hear it. 7 Grey, 52, 334.

If either house have occasion for the presence of a person in custody of the other, they ask the other their leave that he may be brought up to them in custody. 3 Hats., 52.

A member, in his place, gives information to the House of what he knows of any matter under hearing at the bar. Jour. H. of C., Jan. 22, 1744–'45.

Either house may request, but not command, the attendance of a member of the other. They are to make the request by message to the other house, and to express clearly the purpose of attendance, that no improper subject of examination may be tendered to him. The House then gives leave to the member to attend, if he choose it; waiting first to know from the member himself whether he chooses to attend, till which they do not take the message into consideration. But when the peers are sitting as a court of criminal judicature, they may order attendance, unless where it be a case of impeachment by the Commons. There, it is to be a request. 3 Hats., 17; 9 Grey, 306, 406; 10 Grey, 133.

Counsel are to be heard only on private, not on public bills, and on such points of law only as the House shall direct. 10 Grey, 61.

SECTION XIV.—ARRANGEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The Speaker is not precisely bound to any rules as to what bills or other matter shall be first taken up; but is left to his own discretion, unless the House on the question decide to take up a particular subject. Hakew., 136.

A settled order of business is, however, necessary for the government of the presiding person, and to restrain individual members from calling up favorite measures, or matters under their special patronage, out of their just turn. It is useful also for directing the discretion of the House, when they are moved to take up a particular matter, to the prejudice of others having priority of right to their attention in the general order of business.

[In Senate, the bills and other papers which are in possession of the house, and in a state to be acted on, are arranged every morning, and brought on in the following order:]

[1. Bills ready for a second reading are read, that they may be referred to committees, and so be put under way. But if, on their being read, no motion is made for commitment, they are then laid on the table in the general file, to be taken up in their just turn.]

[2. After 12 o'clock, bills ready for it are put on their passage.]

[3. Reports in possession of the house, which offer grounds for a bill, are to be taken up, that the bill may be ordered in.]

[4. Bills or other matters before the house, and unfinished on the preceding day, whether taken up in turn or on special order, are entitled to be resumed and passed on through their present stage.]

[5. These matters being despatched, for preparing and expediting business, the general file of bills and other papers is then taken up, and each article of it is brought on according to its seniority, reckoned by the date of its first introduction to the house. Reports on bills belong to the dates of their bills.]

[The arrangement of the business of the Senate is now as follows :]

[1. Motions previously submitted.]

[2. Reports of Committees previously made.]

[3. Bills from the House of Representatives, and those introduced on leave, which have been read the first time, are read the second time; and if not referred to a committee, are considered in Committee of the Whole, and proceeded with as in other cases.]

[4. After twelve o'clock, engrossed bills of the Senate, and bills of the House of Representatives, on third reading, are put on their passage.]

[5. If the above are finished before one o'clock, the general file of bills, consisting of those reported from committees on the second reading, and those reported from committees after having been referred, are taken up in the order in which they were reported to the Senate by the respective committees.]

[6. At one o'clock, if no business be pending, or if no motion be called to proceed to other business, the special orders are called, at the head of which stands the unfinished business of the preceding day.]

[In this way we do not waste our time in debating what shall be taken up. We do one thing at a time; follow up a subject while it is fresh, and till it is done with, clear the house of business gradatim as it is brought on, and prevent, to a certain degree, its immense accumulation towards the close of the session.]

[Arrangement, however, can only take hold of matters in possession of the house. New matter may be moved at any time when no question is before the house. Such are original motions and reports on bills. Such are bills from the other house, which are received at all times, and receive their first reading as soon as the question then before the house is disposed of; and bills brought in on leave, which are read first whenever presented. So messages from the other house respecting amendments to bills are taken up as soon as the house is clear of a question, unless they require to be printed, for better consideration. Orders of the day may be called for, even when another question is before the house.]

SEC. XV.—ORDER.

[Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings; punish its members for disorderly behavior; and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member. Const., I, 5.]

In Parliament, "instances make order," per Speaker Onslow. 2 Hats., 141. But what is done only by one Parliament, cannot be called custom of Parliament; by Prynne. 1 Grey, 52.]

SEC. XVI.—ORDER RESPECTING PAPERS.

The clerk is to let no journals, records, accounts, or papers, be taken from the table or out of his custody. 2 Hats, 193, 194.

Mr. Prynne having at a committee of the whole amended a mistake in a bill without order or knowledge of the committee, was reprimanded. 1 Chand., 77.

A bill being missing, the House resolved that a protestation should be made and subscribed by the members "before Almighty God, and this honorable House, that neither myself nor any other to my knowledge have taken away, or do at this present conceal a bill entitled," &c. 5 Grey, 202.

After a bill is engrossed, it is put into the Speaker's hands, and he is not to let any one have it to look into. Town., col. 209.

SEC. XVII.—ORDER IN DEBATE.

When the Speaker is seated in his chair, every member is to sit in his place. Scob., 6; Grey, 403.

When any member means to speak, he is to stand up in his place, uncovered, and to address himself, not to the House, or any particular member, but to the Speaker, who calls him by his name, that the House may take notice who it is that speaks. Scob., 6; D'Ewes, 487, col. 1; 2 Hats., 77; 4 Grey, 66; 8 Grey, 108. But members who are indisposed may be indulged to speak sitting. 2 Hats., 75, 77; 1 Grey, 143.

[In Senate, every member, when he speaks, shall address the chair standing in his place, and when he has finished, shall sit down. Rule 3.]

When a member stands up to speak, no question is to be put, but he is to be heard, unless the House overrules him. 4 Grey, 390; 5 Grey, 6, 143.

If two or more rise to speak nearly together, the Speaker determines who was first up, and calls him by name; whereupon he proceeds, unless he voluntarily sits down and gives way to the other. But sometimes the House does not acquiesce in the Speaker's decision, in which case the question is put, "Which member was first up?" 2 Hats., 76; Scob., 7; D'Ewes, 434 col. 1, 2.

[In the Senate of the United States, the President's decision is without appeal. Their rule is in these words: when two members rise at the same time, the President shall name the person to speak; but in all cases the member who shall first rise and address the Chair shall speak first. Rule 5.]

No man may speak more than once on the same bill on the same day; or even on another day, if the debate be adjourned. But if it be read more than once in the same day, he may speak once at every reading. Co., 12, 115; Hakew., 148; Scob., 58; 2 Hats., 75. Even a change of opinion does not give a right to be heard a second time. Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3; Arcan Parl., 17.

[The corresponding rule of the Senate is in these words: No member shall speak more than twice, in any one debate, on the same day, without leave of the Senate. Rule 4.]

But he may be permitted to speak again to clear a matter of fact, 3 Grey, 357, 416; or merely to explain himself (2 Hats., 73) in some material part of his speech, Ib., 75; or to the manner or words of the question, keeping himself to that only, and not travelling into the merits of it, Memorials in Hakew., 29; or to the orders of the House, if they be transgressed, keeping within that line, and not falling into the matter itself. Mem. Hakew., 30, 31.

But if the Speaker rise to speak, the member standing up ought to sit down, that he may be first heard. Town., col. 205; Hale Parl., 133; Mem. in Hakew., 30, 31. Nevertheless, though the Speaker may of right speak to matters of order, and be first heard, he is restrained from speaking on any other subject, except where the House have occasion for facts within his knowledge; then he may, with their leave, state the matter of fact. 3 Grey, 38.

No one is to speak impertinently or beside the question, superfluous or tediously. Scob., 31, 33; 2 Hats., 166, 168; Hale Parl., 133.

No person is to use indecent language against the proceedings of the House; no prior determination of which is to be reflected on by any member, unless he means to conclude with a motion to rescind it. 2 Hats., 169, 170; Rushaw., p. 3, v. 1, fol. 42. But while a proposition under consideration is still in fieri, though it has even been reported by a committee, reflections on it are no reflections on the House. 9 Grey, 508.

No person, in speaking, is to mention a member then present by his name, but to describe him by his seat in the House, or who spoke last, or on the other side of the question, &c., Mem. in Hakew., 3; Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3; nor to digress from the matter to fall upon the person (Scob., 31; Hale Parl., 133; 2 Hats., 166) by speaking, reviling, nipping, or unmannerly words against a particular member. Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3. The consequences of a measure may be reprobated in strong terms; but to arraign the motives of those who propose to advocate it, is a personality, and against order. Qui digreditur a materia ad personam, Mr. Speaker ought to suppress. Ord. Com., 1604, Apr. 19.

[When a member shall be called to order by the President or a Senator, he shall sit down; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, without debate, subject to an appeal to the Senate; and the President may call for the sense of the Senate on any question of order. Rule 6.]

[No member shall speak to another or otherwise interrupt the business of the Senate, or read any printed paper while the journals or public papers are reading, or when any member is speaking in any debate. Rule 2.]

No one is to disturb another in his speech by hissing, coughing, spitting, (6 Grey, 332; Scob., 8; D'Ewes, 332, col. 1, 640, col. 1,) speaking or whispering to another, (Scob., 6; D'Ewes, 487, col. 1;) nor stand up to interrupt him, (Town., col. 205; Mem. in Hakew., 31;) nor to pass between the Speaker and the speaking member, nor to go across the House, (Scob., 6,) or to walk up and down it, or to take books or papers from the table, or write there. (2 Hats., 171.)

Nevertheless, if a member finds that it is not the inclination of the House to hear him, and that by conversation or any other noise they endeavor to drown his voice, it is his most prudent way to submit to the pleasure of the House, and sit down; for it scarcely ever happens that they are guilty of this piece of ill manners without sufficient reason, or inattentive to a member who says anything worth their hearing. 2 Hats., 77, 78.

If repeated calls do not produce order, the Speaker may call by his name any member obstinately persisting in irregularity; whereupon the House may require the member to withdraw. He is then to be heard in exculpation, and to withdraw. Then the Speaker states the offence committed, and the House considers the degree of punishment they will inflict. 2 Hats., 167, 7, 8, 172.

For instances of assaults and affrays in the House of Commons, and the proceedings thereon, see 1 Pet. Misc., 82; 3 Grey, 128; 4 Grey, 328; 5 Grey, 382; 6 Grey, 254; 10 Grey, 8. Whenever warm words or an assault has passed between members, the House, for the protection of their members, requires them to declare in their places not to prosecute any quarrel, (3 Grey, 127, 293; 5 Grey, 280;) or orders them to attend the Speaker, who is to accommodate their differences, and report to the House, (3 Grey, 419;) and they are put under restraint if they refuse, or until they do, 9 Grey, 234, 312.

Disorderly words are not to be noticed till the member has finished his speech. 5 Grey, 356; 6 Grey, 60. Then the person objecting to them, and desiring them to be taken down by the clerk at the table, must repeat them. The Speaker then may direct the clerk to take them down in his minutes; but if he thinks them not disorderly, he delays the direction. If the call becomes pretty general, he orders the clerk to take them down, as stated by the objecting member. They are then part of his minutes, and when read to the offending member, he may deny they were his words, and the House must then decide by a question whether they are his words or not. Then the member may justify them, or explain the sense in which he used them, or apologize. If the House is satisfied, no further proceeding is necessary. But if two members still insist to take the sense of the House, the member must withdraw before that question is stated. and then the sense of the House is to be taken. 2 Hats., 199; 4 Grey, 170; 6 Grey, 59. When any member has spoken, or other business intervened, after offensive words spoken, they cannot be taken notice of for censure. And this is for the common security of all, and to prevent mistakes which must happen if words are not taken down immediately. Formerly they might be taken down at any time the same day. 2 Hats., 196; Mem. in Hakew., 71; 3 Grey, 48; 9 Grey, 514.

Disorderly words spoken in a committee must be written down as in the House; but the committee can only report them to the House for animadversion. 6 Grey, 46.

[The rule of the Senate says: If the member be called to order by a senator for words spoken, the exceptionable words shall immediately be taken down in writing, that the President may be better enabled to judge of the matter. Rule 7.]

In Parliament, to speak irreverently or seditiously against the King is against order. Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3; 2 Hats., 170.

It is a breach of order in debate to notice what has been said on the same subject in the other house, or the particular votes or majorities on it there; because the opinion of each house should be left to its own independency, not to be influenced by the proceedings of the other; and the quoting them might beget reflections leading to a misunderstanding between the two houses. 8 Grey, 22.

Neither house can exercise any authority over a member or officer of the other, but should complain to the house of which he is, and leave the punishment to them. Where the complaint is of words disrespectfully spoken by a member of another house, it is difficult to obtain punishment, because of the rules supposed necessary to be observed (as to the immediate noting down of words) for the security of members. Therefore it is the duty of the House, and more particularly of the Speaker, to interfere immediately, and not to permit expressions to go unnoticed which may give a ground of complaint to the other house, and introduce proceedings and mutual accusations between the two houses, which can hardly be terminated without difficulty and disorder. 3 Hats., 51.

No member may be present when a bill or any business concerning himself is debating; nor is any member to speak to the merits of it till he withdraws. 2 Hats., 219. The rule is, that if a charge against a member arise out of a report of a committee, or examination of witnesses in the House, as the member knows from that to what points he is to direct his exculpation, he may be heard to those points before any question is moved or stated against him. He is then to be heard, and withdraw before any question is moved. But if the question itself is the charge, as for breach of order or matter arising in the debate, then the charge must be stated, (that is, the question must be moved,) himself heard, and then to withdraw. 2 Hats., 121, 122.

Where the private interests of a member are concerned in a bill or question, he is to withdraw. And where such an interest has appeared, his voice has been disallowed, even after a division. In a case so contrary, not only to the laws of decency, but to the fundamental principle of the social compact which denies to any man to be a judge in his own cause, it is for the honor of the House that this rule, of immemorial observance, should be strictly adhered to. 2 Hats., 119, 121; 6 Grey, 368.

No member is to come into the House with his head covered, nor to remove from one place to another with his hat on, nor is to put on his hat in coming in or removing, until he be set down in his place. Scob., 6.

A question of order may be adjourned to give time to look into precedents. 2 Hats., 118.

In Parliament, all decisions of the Speaker may be controlled by the House. 3 Grey, 319.

SEC. XVIII.—ORDERS OF THE HOUSE.

Of right, the doors of the House ought not to be shut, but to be kept by porters, or sergeants-at-arms, assigned for that purpose. Mod. Ten. Parl., 23.

[By the rules of the Senate, on motion made and seconded to shut the doors of the Senate on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of a member, require secrecy, the President shall direct the gallery to be cleared; and during the discussion of such motion the doors shall remain shut. Rule 18.]

[No motion shall be deemed in order to admit any person or persons whatever within the doors of the Senate chamber to present any petition, memorial, or address, or to hear any such read. Rule 19.]

The only case where a member has a right to insist on anything, is where he calls for the execution of a subsisting order of the House. Here, there having been already a resolution, any person has a right to insist that the Speaker, or any other whose duty it is, shall carry it into execution; and no debate or delay can be had on it. Thus any member has a right to have the House or gallery cleared of strangers, an order existing for that purpose; or to have the House told where there is not a quorum present. 2 Hats., 87, 129. How far an order of the House is binding, see Hakew., 392.

But where an order is made that any particular matter be taken up on a particular day, there a question is to be put, when it is called for, whether the House will now proceed to that matter? Where orders of the day are on important or interesting matter, they ought not to be proceeded on till an hour at which the House is usually full, [which in Senate is at noon.]

Orders of the day may be discharged at any time, and a new one made for a different day. 3 Grey, 48, 313.

When a session is drawing to a close, and the important bills are all brought in, the House, in order to prevent interruption by further unimportant bills, sometimes come to a resolution that no new bill be brought in, except it be sent from the other house. 3 Grey, 156.

All orders of the House determine with the session; and one taken under such an order may, after the session is ended, be discharged on a habeas corpus. Raym., 120; Jacob's L. D. by Ruffhead; Parliament, 1 Lev., 165 (Pritchard's case.)

[Where the Constitution authorizes each house to determine the rules of its proceedings, it must mean in those cases (legislative, executive, or judiciary) submitted to them by the Constitution, or in something relating to these, and necessary towards their execution. But orders and resolutions are sometimes entered in the journals, having no relation to these, such as acceptances of invitations to attend orations, to take part in processions, &c. These must be understood to be merely conventional among those who are willing to participate in the ceremony, and are therefore, perhaps, improperly placed among the records of the House.]

SEC. XIX.—PETITION.

A petition prays something. A remonstrance has no prayer. 1 Grey, 58.

Petitions must be subscribed by the petitioners, (Scob., 87; L. Parl., c. 22; 9 Grey, 362,) unless they are attending; (1 Grey, 401,) or unable to sign, and averred by a member, (3 Grey, 418.) But a petition not subscribed, but which the member presenting it affirmed to be all in the handwriting of the petitioner, and his name written in the beginning, was on the question (Mar. 14, 1800) received by the Senate. The averment of a member, or of somebody without doors, that they know the handwriting of the petitioners, is necessary, if it be questioned. 6 Grey, 36. It must be presented by a member, not by the petitioners, and must be opened by him, holding it in his hand. 10 Grey, 57.

[Before any petition or memorial addressed to the Senate shall be received and read at the table, whether the same shall be introduced by the President or a member, a brief statement of the contents of the petition or memorial shall verbally be made by the introducer. Rule 24.]

Regularly a motion for receiving it must be made and seconded, and a question put, whether it shall be received? but a cry from the House of "received," or even its silence, dispenses with the formality of this question. It is then to be read at the table and disposed of.

SEC. XX.—MOTIONS.

When a motion has been made, it is not to be put to the question or debated until it is seconded. Scob., 21.

[The Senate say, No motion shall be debated until the same shall be seconded. Rule 9.]

It is then, and not till then, in possession of the House, and cannot be withdrawn but by leave of the House. It is to be put into writing, if the House or Speaker require it, and must be read to the House by the Speaker as often as any member desires it for his information. 2 Hats., 82.

[The rule of the Senate is, when a motion shall be made and seconded, it shall be reduced to writing, if desired by the President or any member, delivered in at the table, and read by the President, before the same shall be debated. Rule 10.]

It might be asked, whether a motion for adjournment or for the orders of the day can be made by one member while another is speaking? It cannot. When two members offer to speak, he who rose first is to be heard, and it is a breach of order in another to interrupt him, unless by calling him to order if he departs from it. And the question of order being decided, he is still to be heard through. A call for adjournment, or for the order of the day, or for the question, by gentlemen from their seats, is not a motion. No motion can be made without rising and addressing the Chair. Such calls are themselves breaches of order, which though the member who has risen may respect, as an expression of impatience of the House against further debate; yet if he chooses, he has a right to go on.

SEC. XXI.—RESOLUTIONS.

When the House commands, it is by an "order." But fact, principles, and their own opinions and purposes, are expressed in the form of resolutions.

[A Resolution for an allowance of money to the clerks being moved, it was objected to as not in order, and so ruled by the Chair; but on an appeal to the Senate, (i. e., a call for their sense by the President, on account of doubt in his mind, according to Rule 16,) the decision was overruled. Jour. Sen., June 1, 1796. I presume the doubt was, whether an allowance of money could be made otherwise than by bill.]

SEC. XXII.—BILLS.

[Every bill shall receive three readings previous to its being passed; and the President shall give notice at each whether it be first, second, or third; which readings shall be on three different days, unless the Senate unanimously direct otherwise. Rule 26.]

SEC. XXIII.—BILLS, LEAVE TO BRING IN.

[One day's notice, at least, shall be given of an intended motion for leave to bring in a bill. Rule 25.]

When a member desires to bring in a bill on any subject, he states to the House in general terms the causes for doing it, and concludes by moving for leave to bring in a bill entitled, &c. Leave being given on the question, a committee is appointed to prepare and bring in the bill. The mover and seconder are always appointed of this committee, and one or more in addition. Hakew., 132; Scob., 40.

It is to be presented fairly written, without any erasure or interlineation, or the Speaker may refuse it. Scob., 41; 1 Grey, 82, 84.

SEC. XXIV.—BILLS, FIRST READING.

When a bill is first presented, the clerk reads it at the table, and hands it to the Speaker, who, rising, states to the House the title of the bill; that this is the first time of reading it; and the question will be, whether it shall be read a second time? then sitting down to give an opening for objections. If none be made, he rises again, and puts the question, whether it shall be read a second time? Hakew., 137, 141. A bill cannot be amended on the first reading, (6 Grey, 286;) nor is it usual for it to be opposed then, but it may be done, and rejected. D'Ewes, 335, col. 1; 3 Hats., 198.

SEC. XXV.—BILLS, SECOND READING.

The second reading must regularly be on another day. Hakew., 143. It is done by the Clerk at the table, who then hands it to the Speaker. The Speaker, rising, states to the House the title of the bill; that this is the second time of reading it; and that the question will be, whether it shall be committed or engrossed and read a third time? But if the bill came from the other house, as it always comes engrossed, he states that the question will be, whether it shall be read a third time? and before he has so reported the state of the bill, no one is to speak to it. Hakew., 143, 146.

[In the Senate of the United States, the President reports the title of the bill; that this is the second time of reading it; that it is now to be considered as in a Committee of the Whole; and the question will be, whether it shall be read a third time? or that it may be referred to a special committee?]

SEC. XXVI.—BILLS, COMMITMENT.

If on motion and question it be decided that the bill shall be committed, it may then be moved to be referred to Committee of the Whole House, or to a special committee. If the latter, the Speaker proceeds to name the committee. Any member also may name a single person, and the Clerk is to write him down as of the committee. But the House have a controlling power over the names and number, if a question be moved against any one; and may in any case put in and put out whom they please.

Those who take exceptions to some particulars in the bill are to be of the committee, but none who speak directly against the body of the bill; for he that would totally destroy will not amend it, (Hakew., 146; Town., col. 208; D' Ewes, 634, col. 2; Scob., 47:) or, as it is said, (5 Grey, 145,) the child is not to be put to a nurse that cares not for it, (6 Grey, 373.) It is therefore a constant rule "that no man is to be employed in any matter who has declared himself against it." And when any member who is against the bill hears himself named of its committee, he ought to ask to be excused. Thus (March 7, 1606) Mr. Hadley was, on the question being put, excused from being of a committee, declaring himself to be against the matter itself. Scob., 46.

[No bill shall be committed or amended until it shall have been twice read; after which it may be referred to a committee. Rule 27.]

[In the appointment of the standing committees, the Senate will proceed, by ballot, severally to appoint the chairman of each committee; and then, by one ballot, the other members necessary to complete the same; and a majority of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to the choice of a chairman of a standing committee. All other committees shall be appointed by ballot, and a plurality of votes shall make a choice. When any subject or matter shall have been referred to a committee, any other subject or matter of a similar nature may, on motion, be referred to such committee. Rule 34.]

The Clerk may deliver the bill to any member of the committee, (Town., col. 138;) but it is usual to deliver it to him who is first named.

In some cases the House has ordered a committee to withdraw immediately into the committee chamber and act on and bring back the bill, sitting in the House. Scob., 48. A committee meet when and where they please, if the House has not ordered time and place for them, (6 Grey, 370;) but they can only act when together, and not by separate consultation and consent—nothing being the report of the committee but what has been agreed to in committee actually assembled.

A majority of the committee constitutes a quorum for business. Elsynge's Method of Passing Bills, 11.

Any member of the House may be present at any select committee, but cannot vote, and must give place to all of the committee, and sit below them. Elsynge, 12; Scob., 49.

The committee have full power over the bill or other paper committed to them, except that they cannot change the title or subject. 8 Grey, 228.

The paper before a committee, whether select or of the whole, may be a bill, resolutions, draught of an address, &c., and it may either originate with them or be referred to them. In every case the whole paper is read first by the clerk, and then by the chairman, by paragraphs, (Scob., 49,) pausing at the end of each paragraph, and putting questions for amending, if proposed. In the case of resolutions on distinct subjects, originating with themselves, a question is put on each separately, as amended or unamended, and no final question on the whole, (3 Hats., 276;) but if they relate to the same subject, a question is put on the whole. If it be a bill, draught of an address, or other paper originating with them, they proceed by paragraphs; putting questions for amending either by insertion or striking out, if proposed; but no question on agreeing to the paragraphs separately; this is reserved to the close, when a question is put on the whole for agreeing to it as amended or unamended. But if it be a paper referred to them, they proceed to put questions of amendment, if proposed, but no final question on the whole, because all parts of the paper, having been adopted by the House, stand, of course, unless altered or struck out by a vote. Even if they are opposed to the whole paper, and think it cannot be made good by amendments, they cannot reject it, but must report it back to the House without amendments, and there make their opposition.

The natural order in considering and amending any paper is, to begin at the beginning, and proceed through it by paragraphs, and this order is so strictly adhered to in Parliament, that when a latter part has been amended, you cannot recur back and make any alteration in a former part. 2 Hats., 90. In numerous assemblies this restraint is doubtless important. [But in the Senate of the United States, though in the main we consider and amend the paragraphs in their natural order, yet recurrences are indulged; and they seem, on the whole, in that small body, to produce advantages overweighing their inconveniences.]

To this natural order of beginning at the beginning, there is a single exception found in parliamentary usage. When a bill is taken up in committee, or on its second reading, they postpone the preamble till the other parts of the bill are gone through. The reason is, that on consideration of the body of the bill, such alterations may therein be made as may also occasion the alteration of the preamble. Scob., 50; 7 Grey, 431.

On this head the following case occurred in the Senate, March 6, 1800: A resolution which had no preamble having been already amended by the House so that a few words only of the original remained in it, a motion was made to prefix a preamble, which having an aspect very different from the resolution, the mover intimated that he should afterwards propose a correspondent amendment in the body of the resolution. It was objected that a preamble could not be taken up till the body of the resolution is done with; but the preamble was received, because we are in fact through the body of the resolution: we have amended that as far as amendments have been offered, and, indeed, till little of the original is left. It is the proper time, therefore, to consider a preamble; and whether the one offered be consistent with the resolution is for the House to determine. The mover, indeed, has intimated that he shall offer a subsequent proposition for the body of the resolution; but the House is not in possession of it; it remains in his breast, and may be withheld. The rules of the House can only operate on what is before them. [The practice of the Senate, too, allows recurrences backwards and forwards for the purposes of amendment, not permitting amendments in a subsequent to preclude those in a prior part, or e converso.]

When the committee is through the whole, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report the paper to the House, with or without amendments, as the case may be. 2 Hats., 289, 292; Scob., 53; 2 Hats., 290; 8 Scob., 50.

When a vote is once passed in a committee, it cannot be altered but by the House, their votes being binding on themselves. 1607, June 4.

The committee may not erase, interline, or blot the bill itself; but must, in a paper by itself, set down the amendments, stating the words which are to be inserted or omitted, (Scob., 50,) and where, by references to the page, line, and word of the bill. Scob., 50.

SEC. XXVII.—REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The chairman of the committee, standing in his place, informs the House that the committee, to whom was referred such a bill, have, according to order, had the same under consideration, and have directed him to report the same without any amendment, or with sundry amendments, (as the case may be,) which he is ready to do when the House pleases to receive it. And he or any other may move that it be now received; but the cry of "now, now," from the House, generally dispenses with the formality of a motion and question. He then reads the amendments, with the coherence in the bill, and opens the alterations and the reasons of the committee for such amendments, until he has gone through the whole. He then delivers it at the Clerk's table, where the amendments reported are read by the Clerk without the coherence; whereupon the papers lie upon the table till the House, at its convenience, shall take up the report. Scob., 52; Hakew., 148.

The report being made, the committee is dissolved, and can act no more without a new power. Scob., 51. But it may be revived by a vote, and the same matter recommitted to them. 4 Grey, 361.

SEC. XXVIII.—BILL, RECOMMITMENT.

After a bill has been committed and reported, it ought not in an ordinary course to be recommitted; but in cases of importance, and for special reasons, it is sometimes recommitted, and usually to the same committee. Hakew., 151. If a report be recommitted before agreed to in the House, what has passed in committee is of no validity; the whole question is again before the committee, and a new resolution must be again moved, as if nothing had passed. 3 Hats., 131—note.

In Senate, January, 1800, the salvage bill was recommitted three times after the commitment.

A particular clause of a bill may be committed without the whole bill, (3 Hats., 131;) or so much of a paper to one and so much to another committee.

SEC. XXIX.—BILL, REPORTS TAKEN UP.

When the report of a paper originating with a committee is taken up by the House, they proceed exactly as in committee. Here, as in committee, when the paragraphs have, on distinct questions, been agreed to seriatim, (5 Grey, 366; 6 Grey, 368; 8 Grey, 47, 104, 360; 1 Torbuck's Deb., 125; 3 Hats., 348,) no question needs be put on the whole report. 5 Grey, 381.

On taking up a bill reported with amendments, the amendments only are read by the Clerk. The Speaker then reads the first, and puts it to the question, and so on till the whole are adopted or rejected, before any other amendment be admitted, except it be an amendment to an amendment. Elsynge's Mem., 53. When through the amendments of the committee, the Speaker pauses, and gives time for amendments to be proposed in the House to the body of the bill, as he does also if it has been reported without amendments, putting no questions but on amendments proposed; and when through the whole, he puts the question whether the bill shall be read the third time?

SEC. XXX.—QUASI-COMMITTEE.

If on motion and question the bill be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, then the proceedings in the Senate of the United States and in Parliament are totally different. The former shall be first stated.

[The 28th rule of the Senate says: "All bills on a second reading shall first be considered by the Senate in the same manner as if the Senate were in Committee of the Whole before they shall be taken up and proceeded on by the Senate agreeably to the standing rules, unless otherwise ordered;" (that is to say, unless ordered to be referred to a special committee.) And when the Senate shall consider a treaty, bill, or resolution, as in Committee of the Whole, the Vice President or President pro tempore may call a member to fill the chair during the time the Senate shall remain in Committee of the Whole; and the chairman (so called) shall, during such time, have the powers of a President pro tempore.

[The proceedings of the Senate, as in a Committee of the Whole, or in Quasi-Committee, is precisely as in a real Committee of the Whole, taking no questions but on amendments. When through the whole, they consider the Quasi-Committee as risen, the House resumes without any motion, question, or resolution to that effect, and the President reports that "the House, acting as in a Committee of the Whole, have had under their consideration the bill entitled, &c., and have made sundry amendments, which he will now report to the House." The bill is then before them, as it would have been if reported from a committee, and questions are regularly to be put again on every amendment; which being gone through, the President pauses to give time to the House to propose amendments to the body of the bill, and, when through, puts the question whether it shall be read a third time?]

[After progress in amending the bill in Quasi-Committee, a motion may be made to refer it to a special committee. If the motion prevails, it is equivalent in effect to the several votes, that the committee rise, the House resume itself, discharge the Committee of the Whole, and refer the bill to a special committee. In that case, the amendments already made fall. But if the motion fails, the Quasi-Committee stands in statu quo.]

[How far does this 28th rule subject the House, when in Quasi-Committee, to the laws which regulate the proceedings of Committees of the Whole?] The particulars in which these differ from proceedings in the House are the following: 1. In a committee every member may speak as often as he pleases. 2. The votes of a committee may be rejected or altered when reported to the House. 3. A committee, even of the Whole, cannot refer any matter to another committee. 4. In a committee no previous question can be taken: the only means to avoid an improper discussion is to move that the committee rise; and if it be apprehended that the same discussion will be attempted on returning into committee, the House can discharge them, and proceed itself on the business, keeping down the improper discussion by the previous question. 5. A committee cannot punish a breach of order in the House or in the gallery. 9 Grey, 113. It can only rise and report it to the House, who may proceed to punish. [The first and second of these peculiarities attach to the Quasi-Committee of the Senate, as every day's practice proves, and seem to be the only ones to which the 28th rule meant to subject them; for it continues to be a house, and therefore, though it acts in some respects as a committee, in others it preserves its character as a house. Thus (3) it is in the daily habit of referring its business to a special committee. 4. It admits of the previous question. If it did not, it would have no means of preventing an improper discussion, not being able, as a committee is, to avoid it by returning into the house, for the moment it would resume the same subject there, the 28th rule declares it again a Quasi-Committee. 5. It would doubtless exercise its powers as a house on any breach of order. 6. It takes a question by yea and nay, as the House does. 7. It receives messages from the President and the other house. 8. In the midst of a debate it receives a motion to adjourn, and adjourns as a house, not as a committee.]

SEC. XXXI.—BILLS, SECOND READING IN THE HOUSE.

In Parliament, after the bill has been read a second time, if on the motion and question it be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, the Speaker reads it by paragraphs, pausing between each, but putting no question but on amendments proposed; and when through the whole, he puts the question whether it shall be read a third time? if it come from the other house; or, if originating with themselves, whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? The Speaker reads sitting, but rises to put questions. The Clerk stands while he reads.

[*But the Senate of the United States is so much in the

*The former practice of the Senate referred to in this paragraph has been changed by the following rule:

[The final question upon the second reading of every bill, resolution, constitutional amendment or motion, originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be, "Whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time?" and no amendment shall be received for discussion at the habit of making many and material amendments at the third reading, that it has become the practice not to engross a bill till it has passed—an irregular and dangerous practice, because in this way the paper which passes the Senate is not that which goes to the other house, and that which goes to the other house as the act of the Senate has never been seen in Senate. In reducing numerous, difficult, and illegible amendments into the text, the Secretary may, with the most innocent intentions, commit errors which can never again be corrected.]

The bill being now as perfect as its friends can make it, this is the proper stage for those fundamentally opposed to make their first attack. All attempts at earlier periods are with disjointed efforts, because many who do not expect to be in favor of the bill ultimately are willing to let it go on to its perfect state, to take time to examine it themselves and to hear what can be said for it, knowing that after all, they will have sufficient opportunities of giving it their veto. Its last two stages, therefore, are reserved for this—that is to say, on the question whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? and lastly, whether it shall pass? The first of these is usually the most interesting contest, because then the whole subject is new and engaging; and the minds of the members having not yet been declared by any trying vote, the issue is the more doubtful. In this stage, therefore, is the main trial of strength between its friends and opponents, and it behooves every one to make up his mind decisively for this question, or he loses the main battle; and third reading of any bill, resolution, amendment, or motion, unless by unanimous consent of the members present; but it shall at all times be in order before the final passage of any such bill, resolution, constitutional amendment, or motion, to move its commitment; and should such commitment take place, and any amendment be reported by the committee, the said bill, resolution, constitutional amendment, or motion, shall be again read a second time, and considered as in Committee of the Whole, and then the aforesaid question shall be again put. Rule 29.]

accident and management may and often do prevent a successful rallying on the next and last question, whether it shall pass?

When the bill is engrossed, the title is to be indorsed on the back, and not within the bill. Hakew.. 250.

SEC. XXXII.—READING PAPERS.

Where papers are laid before the House or referred to a committee, every member has a right to have them once read at the table before he can be compelled to vote on them; but it is a great though common error to suppose that he has a right, toties quoties, to have acts, journals, accounts, or papers on the table, read independently of the will of the House. The delay and interruption which this might be made to produce evince the impossibility of the existence of such a right. There is, indeed, so manifest a propriety of permitting every member to have as much information as possible on every question on which he is to vote, that when he desires the reading, if it be seen that it is really for information and not for delay, the Speaker directs it to be read without putting a question, if no one objects; but if objected to, a question must be put. 2 Hats., 117, 118.

It is equally an error to suppose that any member has a right, without a question put, to lay a book or paper on the table, or have it read, on suggesting that it contains matter infringing on the privileges of the House. Ib.

For the same reason, a member has not a right to read a paper in his place, if it be objected to, without leave of the House. But this rigor is never exercised but where there is an intentional or gross abuse of the time and patience of the House.

A member has not a right even to read his own speech, committed to writing, without leave. This also is to prevent an abuse of time, and therefore is not refused but where that is intended. 2 Grey, 227.

A report of a committee of the Senate on a bill from the House of Representatives being under consideration, on motion that the report of the committee of the House of Representatives on the same bill be read in the Senate, it passed in the negative. Feb. 28, 1793.

Formerly, when papers were referred to a committee, they used to be first read; but of late only the titles, unless a member insists they shall be read, and then nobody can oppose it. 2 Hats., 117.

SEC. XXXIII.—PRIVILEGED QUESTIONS.

[*While a question is before the Senate, no motion shall be received, unless for an amendment, for the previous question, or for postponing the main question, or to commit it, or to adjourn. Rule 8.]

It is no possession of a bill unless it be delivered to the Clerk to be read, or the Speaker reads the title. Lex. Parl., 274; Elsynge Mem., 85; Ord. House of Commons, 64.

It is a general rule that the question first moved and seconded shall be first put. Scob., 28, 22; 2 Hats., 81. But this rule gives way to what may be called privileged questions; and the privileged questions are of different grades among themselves.

A motion to adjourn simply takes place of all others, for otherwise the House might be kept sitting against its will, and indefinitely. Yet this motion cannot be received after another question is actually put, and while the House is engaged in voting.

Orders of the day take place of all other questions, except

* This rule has been modified so as to specify the questions entitled to preference. The rule is now as follows:

[When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lay on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to amend; which several motions shall have precedence in the order they stand arranged, and the motion for adjournment shall always be in order, and be decided without debate.]

for adjournment—that is to say, the question which is the subject of an order is made a privileged one, pro hac vice. The order is a repeal of the general rule as to this special case. When any member moves, therefore, for the order of the day to be read, no further debate is permitted on the question which was before the House; for if the debate might proceed, it might continue through the day and defeat the order. This motion, to entitle it to precedence, must be for the orders generally, and not for any particular one; and if it be carried on the question "Whether the House will now proceed to the orders of the day?" they must be read and proceeded on in the course in which they stand (2 Hats., 83;) for priority of order gives priority of right, which cannot be taken away but by another special order.

After these there are other privileged questions, which will require considerable explanation.

It is proper that every parliamentary assembly should have certain forms of questions, so adapted as to enable them fitly to dispose of every proposition which can be made to them. Such are, 1. The previous question. 2. To postpone indefinitely. 3. To adjourn a question to a definite day. 4. To lie on the table. 5. To commit. 6. To amend. The proper occasion for each of these questions should be understood.

1. When a proposition is moved which it is useless or inexpedient now to express or discuss, the previous question has been introduced for suppressing for that time the motion and its discussion. 3 Hats., 188, 189.

2. But as the previous question gets rid of it only for that day, and the same proposition may recur the next day, if they wish to suppress it for the whole of that session they postpone it indefinitely. 3 Hats., 183. This quashes the proposition for that session, as an indefinite adjournment is a dissolution, or the continuance of a suit sine die is a discontinuance of it.

3. When a motion is made which it will be proper to act on, but information is wanted, or something more pressing claims the present time, the question or debate is adjourned to such day within the session as will answer the views of the House. 2 Hats., 81. And those who have spoken before may not speak again when the adjourned debate is resumed. 2 Hats., 73. Sometimes, however, this has been abusedly used by adjourning it to a day beyond the session, to get rid of it altogether, as would be done by an indefinite postponement.

4. When the House has something else which claims its present attention, but would be willing to reserve in their power to take up a proposition whenever it shall suit them, they order it to lie on their table. It may then be called for at any time.

5. If the proposition will want more amendment and digestion than the formalities of the House will conveniently admit, they refer it to a committee.

6. But if the proposition be well digested, and may need but few and simple amendments, and especially if these be of leading consequence, they then proceed to consider and amend it themselves.

The Senate, in their practice, vary from this regular gradation of forms. Their practice comparatively with that of Parliament stands thus:

FOR THE PARLIAMENTARY,	THE SENATE USES:
Postponement indefinite,	Postponement to a day beyond the session.
Adjournment,	Postponement to a day within the session.
Lying on the table,	Postponement indefinite. / Lying on the table.

In their eighth rule, therefore, which declares that while a question is before the Senate no motion shall be received, unless it be for the previous question, or to postpone, commit, or amend the main question, the term postponement must be understood according to their broad use of it, and not in the parliamentary sense. Their rule, then, establishes as privileged questions the previous question, postponement, commitment, and amendment.

But it may be asked, Have these questions any privilege among themselves? or are they so equal that the common principle of the "first moved first put" takes place among them? This will need explanation. Their competitions may be as follows:

1. Previous question and postpone, commit, amend } In the first, second, and third classes, and the first member of the
2. Postpone and previous question, commit, amend } fourth class, the rule "first moved first put" takes place.
3. Commit and previous question, postpone, amend }
4. Amend and previous question, postpone, commit }

In the first class, where the previous question is first moved, the effect is peculiar; for it not only prevents the after motion to postpone or commit from being put to question before it, but also from being put after it; for if the previous question be decided affirmatively, to wit, that the main question shall now be put, it would of course be against the decision to postpone or commit; and if it be decided negatively, to wit, that the main question shall not now be put, this puts the House out of possession of the main question, and consequently there is nothing before them to postpone or commit. So that neither voting for nor against the previous question will enable the advocates for postponing or committing to get at their object. Whether it may be amended shall be examined hereafter.

Second class. If postponement be decided affirmatively, the proposition is removed from before the House, and consequently there is no ground for the previous question, commitment, or amendment; but if decided negatively, (that it shall not be postponed,) the main question may then be suppressed by the previous question, or may be committed or amended.

The third class is subject to the same observations as the second.

The fourth class. Amendment of the main question first moved, and afterwards the previous question, the question of amendment shall be first put.

Amendment and postponement competing, postponement is first put, as the equivalent proposition to adjourn the main question would be in Parliament. The reason is, that the question for amendment is not suppressed by postponing or adjourning the main question, but remains before the House whenever the main question is resumed; and it might be that the occasion for other urgent business might go by, and be lost by length of debate on the amendment, if the House had it not in their power to postpone the whole subject.

Amendment and commitment. The question for committing, though last moved, shall be first put; because, in truth, it facilitates and befriends the motion to amend. Scobell is express: "On motion to amend a bill, any one may notwithstanding move to commit it, and the question for commitment shall be first put." Scob., 46.

We have hitherto considered the case of two or more of the privileged questions contending for privilege between themselves, when both are moved on the original or main question; but now let us suppose one of them to be moved, not on the original primary question, but on the secondary one, e. g.

Suppose a motion to postpone, commit, or amend the main question, and that it be moved to suppress that motion by putting a previous question on it. This is not allowed, because it would embarrass questions too much to allow them to be piled on one another several stories high; and the same result may be had in a more simple way, by deciding against the postponement, commitment, or amendment. 2 Hats., 81, 2, 3, 4.

Suppose a motion for the previous question, or commitment or amendment of the main question, and that it be then moved to postpone the motion for the previous question, or for commitment or amendment of the main question. 1. It would be absurd to postpone the previous question, commitment, or amendment alone, and thus separate the appendage from its principal; yet it must be postponed separately from its original, if at all, because the eighth rule of Senate says that when a main question is before the house no motion shall be received but to commit, amend, or pre-question the original question, which is the parliamentary doctrine also, therefore the motion to postpone the secondary motion for the previous question, or for committing or amending, cannot be received. 2. This is a piling of questions one on another; which, to avoid embarrassment, is not allowed. 3. The same result may be had more simply by voting against the previous question, commitment, or amendment.

Suppose a commitment moved of a motion for the previous question, or to postpone, or amend. The first, second, and third reasons before stated, all hold good against this.

Suppose an amendment moved to a motion for the previous question. Answer: the previous question cannot be amended. Parliamentary usage, as well as the ninth rule of the Senate, has fixed its form to be, "Shall the main question be now put?"—i. e., at this instant; and as the present instant is but one, it can admit of no modification. To change it to to-morrow, or any other moment, is without example and without utility. But suppose a motion to amend a motion for postponement, as to one day instead of another, or to a special instead of an indefinite time. The useful character of amendment gives it a privilege of attaching itself to a secondary and privileged motion: that is, we may amend a postponement of a main question. So, we may amend a commitment of a main question, as by adding, for example, "with instructions to inquire," &c. In like manner, if an amendment be moved to an amendment, it is admitted; but it would not be admitted in another degree, to wit, to amend an amendment to an amendment of a main question. This would lead to too much embarrassment. The line must be drawn somewhere, and usage has drawn it after the amendment to the amendment. The same result must be sought by deciding against the amendment to the amendment, and then moving it again as it was wished to be amended. In this form it becomes only an amendment to an amendment.

[When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee and to a standing committee, the question on reference to the standing committee shall be first put. Rule 35.]

[In filling a blank with a sum, the largest sum shall be first put to the question, by the thirteenth rule of the Senate,*] contrary to the rule of Parliament, which privileges the smallest sum and longest time. 5 Grey, 179; 2 Hats., 8, 83; 3 Hats., 132, 133. And this is considered to be not in the form of an amendment to the question, but as alternative or successive originals. In all cases of time or number, we must consider whether the larger comprehends the lesser, as in a question to what day a postponement shall be, the number of a committee, amount of a fine, term of an imprisonment, term of irredeemability of a loan, or the terminus in quem in any other case; then the question must begin a maximo. Or whether the lesser includes the greater, as in questions on the limitation of the rate of interest, on what day the session shall be closed by adjournment, on what day the next shall commence, when an act shall commence, or the terminus a quo in any other case where the question must begin a minimo: the object being not to begin at that extreme which, and more, being within every man's wish, no one could negative

it, and yet, if he should vote in the affirmative, every question for more would be precluded; but at that extreme which would unite few, and then to advance or recede till you get a number which will unite a bare majority. 3 Grey, 376, 384, 385. "The fair question in this case is not that to which and more all will agree, but whether there shall be addition to the question." Grey, 365.

Another exception to the rule of priority is when a motion has been made to strike out or agree to a paragraph. Motions to amend it are to be put to the question before a vote is taken on striking out or agreeing to the whole paragraph.

But there are several questions which, being incidental to every one, will take place of every one, privileged or not, to wit, a question of order arising out of any other question must be decided before that question. 2 Hats., 88.

A matter of privilege arising out of any question, or from a quarrel between two members or any other cause, supersedes the consideration of the original question, and must be first disposed of. 2 Hats., 88.

Reading papers relative to the question before the House. This question must be put before the principal one. 2 Hats., 88.

Leave asked to withdraw a motion. The rule of Parliament being that a motion made and seconded is in the possession of the House, and cannot be withdrawn without leave, the very terms of the rule imply that leave may be given, and, consequently, may be asked and put to the question.

SEC. XXXIV.—THE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

When any question is before the House, any member may move a previous question, "Whether that question (called the main question) shall now be put?" If it pass in the affirmative, then the main question is to be put immediately, and no man may speak anything further to it, either to add or alter. Memor. in Hakew., 28; 4 Grey, 27.

The previous question being moved and seconded, the question from the Chair shall be, "Shall the main question be now put?" and if the nays prevail, the main question shall not then be put.

This kind of question is understood by Mr. Hatsell to have been introduced in 1604. 2 Hats., 80. Sir Henry Vane introduced it. 2 Grey, 113, 114; 3 Grey, 384. When the question was put in this form, "Shall the main question be put?" a determination in the negative suppressed the main question during the session; but since the words "now put" are used, they exclude it for the present only: formerly, indeed, only till the present debate was over, (4 Grey, 43,) but now for that day and no longer. 2 Grey, 113, 114.

Before the question "Whether the main question shall now be put?" any person might formerly have spoken to the main question, because otherwise he would be precluded from speaking to it at all. Mem. in Hakew., 28.

The proper occasion for the previous question, is when a subject is brought forward of a delicate nature as to high personages, &c., or the discussion of which may call forth observations which might be of injurious consequences. Then the previous question is proposed; and in the modern usage, the discussion of the main question is suspended, and the debate confined to the previous question. The use of it has been extended abusively to other cases; but in these it has been an embarrassing procedure: its uses would be as well answered by other more simple parliamentary forms, and therefore it should not be favored, but restricted within as narrow limits as possible.

Whether a main question may be amended after the previous question on it has been moved and seconded? 2 Hats., 88, says, if the previous question has been moved and seconded, and also proposed from the Chair, (by which he means stated by the Speaker for debate,) it has been doubted whether an amendment can be admitted to the main question. He thinks it may, after the previous question moved and seconded; but not after it has been proposed from the Chair. In this case, he thinks the friends to the amendment must vote that the main question be not now put; and then move their amended question, which being made new by the amendment, is no longer the same which has been just suppressed, and therefore may be proposed as a new one. But this proceeding certainly endangers the main question, by dividing its friends, some of whom may choose it unamended, rather than lose it altogether; while others of them may vote, as Hatsell advises, that the main question be not now put with a view to move it again in an amended form. The enemies of the main question, by this manœuvre to the previous question, get the enemies to the amendment added to them on the first vote, and throw the friends of the main question under the embarrassment of rallying again as they can. To support his opinion, too, he makes the deciding circumstance, whether an amendment may or may not be made, to be, that the previous question has been proposed from the Chair. But, as the rule is that the House is in possession of a question as soon as it is moved and seconded, it cannot be more than possessed of it by its being also proposed from the Chair. It may be said, indeed, that the object of the previous question being to get rid of a question, which it is not expedient should be discussed, this object may be defeated by moving to amend, and, in the discussion of that motion, involving the subject of the main question. But so may the object of the previous question be defeated, by moving the amended question, as Mr. Hatsell proposes, after the decision against putting the original question. He acknowledges, too, that the practice has been to admit previous amendments, and only cites a few late instances to the contrary. On the whole, I should think it best to decide it ab inconvenienti, to wit: which is most inconvenient, to put it in the power of one side of the House to defeat a proposition by hastily moving the previous question, and thus forcing the main question to be put unamended; or to put it in the power of the other side to force on, incidentally at least, a discussion which would be better avoided? Perhaps the last is the least inconvenience; inasmuch as the Speaker, by confining the discussion rigorously to the amendment only, may prevent their going into the main question, and inasmuch also as so great a proportion of the cases in which the previous question is called for, are fair and proper subjects for public discussion, and ought not to be obstructed by a formality introduced for questions of a peculiar character.

SEC. XXXV.—AMENDMENTS.

On an amendment being moved, a member who has spoken to the main question may speak again to the amendment. Scob., 23.

If an amendment be proposed inconsistent with one already agreed to, it is a fit ground for its rejection by the House, but not within the competence of the Speaker to suppress as if it were against order; for were he permitted to draw questions of consistence within the vortex of order, he might usurp a negative on important modifications, and suppress, instead of subserving the legislative will.

Amendments may be made so as totally to alter the nature of the proposition; and it is a way of getting rid of a proposition, by making it bear a sense different from what it was intended by the movers, so that they vote against it themselves. 2 Hats., 79, 4, 82, 84. A new bill may be ingrafted by way of amendment, on the words "Be it enacted," &c. 1 Grey, 190, 192.

If it be proposed to amend by leaving out certain words, it may be moved, as an amendment to this amendment, to leave out a part of the words of the amendment, which is equivalent to leaving them in the bill. 2 Hats., 80, 9. The parliamentary question is, always, whether the words shall stand part of the bill.

When it is proposed to amend by inserting a paragraph, or part of one, the friends of the paragraph may make it as perfect as they can by amendments before the question is put for inserting it. If it be received, it cannot be amended afterwards, in the same stage, because the House has, on a vote, agreed to it in that form. In like manner, if it is proposed to amend by striking out a paragraph, the friends of the paragraph are first to make it as perfect as they can by amendments, before the question is put for striking it out. If on the question it be retained, it cannot be amended afterwards, because a vote against striking out is equivalent to a vote agreeing to it in that form.

When it is moved to amend by striking out certain words and inserting others, the manner of stating the question is first to read the whole passage to be amended as it stands at present, then the words proposed to be struck out, next those to be inserted, and lastly the whole passage as it will be when amended. And the question, if desired, is then to be divided, and put first on striking out. If carried, it is next on inserting the words proposed. If that be lost, it may be moved to insert others. 2 Hats., 80. 7.

A motion is made to amend by striking out certain words and inserting others in their place, which is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words, and to insert others of a tenor entirely different from those first proposed. It is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words and insert nothing, which is agreed to. All this is admissible, because to strike out and insert A is one proposition. To strike out and insert B is a different proposition. And to strike out and insert nothing is still different. And the rejection of one proposition does not preclude the offering a different one. Nor would it change the case were the first motion divided by putting the question first on striking out. and that negatived; for, as putting the whole motion to the question at once would not have precluded, the putting the half of it cannot do it.*

* In the case of a division of the question, and a decision against striking out, I advance doubtingly the opinion here expressed. I find no authority either way, and I know it may be viewed under a different aspect. It may be thought that, having decided separately not to strike out the passage, the same

But if it had been carried affirmatively to strike out the words and to insert A, it could not afterwards be permitted to strike out A and insert B. The mover of B should have notified, while the insertion of A was under debate, that he would move to insert B; in which case those who preferred it would join in rejecting A.

After A is inserted, however, it may be moved to strike out a portion of the original paragraph, comprehending A, provided the coherence to be struck out be so substantial as to make this effectively a different proposition; for then it is resolved into the common case of striking out a paragraph after amending it. Nor does anything forbid a new insertion, instead of A and its coherence.

In Senate, January 25, 1798, a motion to postpone until the second Tuesday in February some amendments proposed to the Constitution; the words "until the second Tuesday in February" were struck out by way of amendment. Then it was moved to add, "until the first day of June." Objected that it was not in order, as the question should be first put on the longest time; therefore, after a shorter time decided against, a longer cannot be put to question. It was answered that this rule takes place only in filling blanks for time. But when a specific time stands part of a motion, that may be struck out as well as any other part of a motion; and when struck out, a motion may be received to insert any other. In fact, it is not until they are struck out, and a blank for the time thereby produced, that the rule can begin to operate, by receiving all the propositions for different times, and putting the question successively on the longest. Otherwise it would be in the power of the mover, by inserting originally a short time, to preclude the possibility of a longer, for till the short time is struck out, you cannot insert a question for striking out cannot be put over again, though with a view to a different insertion. Still I think it more reasonable and convenient to consider the striking out and insertion as forming one proposition; but should readily yield to any evidence that the contrary is the practice in Parliament.

longer; and if, after it is struck out, you cannot do it, then it cannot be done at all. Suppose the first motion had been made to amend by striking out "the second Tuesday in February," and inserting instead thereof "the first of June," it would have been regular, then, to divide the question, by proposing first the question to strike out and then that to insert. Now this is precisely the effect of the present proceeding; only, instead of one motion and two questions, there are two motions and two questions to effect it—the motion being divided as well as the question.

When the matter contained in two bills might be better put into one, the manner is to reject the one, and incorporate its matter into another bill by way of amendment. So if the matter of one bill would be better distributed into two, any part may be struck out by way of amendment, and put into a new bill. If a section is to be transposed, a question must be put on striking it out where it stands, and another for inserting it in the place desired.

A bill passed by the one house with blanks. These may be filled up by the other by way of amendments, returned to the first as such, and passed. 3 Hats., 83.

The number prefixed to the section of a bill, being merely a marginal indication, and no part of the text of the bill, the clerk regulates that—the House or committee is only to amend the text.

SEC. XXXVI.—DIVISION OF THE QUESTION.

If a question contain more parts than one, it may be divided into two or more questions. Mem. in Hakew., 29. But not as the right of an individual member, but with the consent of the House. For who is to decide whether a question is complicated or not?—where it is complicated?—into how many propositions it may be divided? The fact is, that the only mode of separating a complicated question is by moving amendments to it; and these must be decided by the House, on a question, unless the House orders it to be divided; as, on the question, December 2, 1640, making void the election of the knights for Worcester, on a motion it was resolved to make two questions of it, to wit: one on each knight. 2 Hats., 85, 86. So, wherever there are several names in a question, they may be divided and put one by one. 9 Grey, 444. So, 1729, April 17, on an objection that a question was complicated, it was separated by amendment. 2 Hats., 79.

The soundness of these observations will be evident from the embarrassments produced by the 12th rule of the Senate, which says, "if the question in debate contain several points, any member may have the same divided."

1798, May 30, the alien bill in quasi-committee. To a section and proviso in the original had been added two new provisoes by way of amendment. On a motion to strike out the section as amended, the question was desired to be divided. To do this it must be put first on striking out either the former proviso, or some distinct member of the section. But when nothing remains but the last member of the section and the provisoes, they cannot be divided so as to put the last member to question by itself; for the provisoes might thus be left standing alone as exceptions to a rule when the rule is taken away; or the new provisoes might be left to a second question, after having been decided on once before at the same reading, which is contrary to rule. But the question must be on striking out the last member of the section as amended. This sweeps away the exceptions with the rule, and relieves from inconsistence. A question to be divisible, must comprehend points so distinct and entire that one of them being taken away, the other may stand entire. But a proviso or exception, without an enacting clause, does not contain an entire point or proposition.

May 31.—The same bill being before the Senate. There was a proviso that the bill should not extend—1. To any foreign minister; nor, 2. To any person to whom the President should give a passport; nor, 3. To any alien merchant conforming himself to such regulations as the President shall prescribe; and a division of the question into its simplest elements was called for. It was divided into four parts, the 4th taking in the words "conforming himself," &c. It was objected that the words "any alien merchant" could not be separated from their modifying words, "conforming," &c., because these words, if left by themselves, contain no substantive idea—will make no sense. But admitting that the divisions of a paragraph into separate questions must be so made as that each part may stand by itself, yet the House having, on the question, retained the two first divisions, the words "any alien merchant" may be struck out, and their modifying words will then attach themselves to the preceding description of persons, and become a modification of that description.

When a question is divided, after the question on the 1st member, the 2d is open to debate and amendment; because it is a known rule that a person may rise and speak at any time before the question has been completely decided, by putting the negative as well as affirmative side. But the question is not completely put when the vote has been taken on the first member only. One-half of the question, both affirmative and negative, remains still to be put. See Execut. Jour., June 25, 1795. The same decision by President Adams

SEC. XXXVII.—CO-EXISTING QUESTIONS.

It may be asked whether the House can be in possession of two motions or propositions at the same time? so that, one of them being decided, the other goes to question without being moved anew? The answer must be special. When a question is interrupted by a vote of adjournment, it is thereby removed from before the House, and does not stand ipso facto before them at their next meeting, but must come forward in the usual way. So, when it is interrupted by the order of the day. Such other privileged questions also as dispose of the main question, (e. g. the previous question, postponement, or commitment,) remove it from before the House. But it is only suspended by a motion to amend, to withdraw, to read papers, or by a question of order or privilege, and stands again before the House when these are decided. None but the class of privileged questions can be brought forward while there is another question before the House, the rule being that when a motion has been made and seconded, no other can be received, except it be a privileged one.

SEC. XXXVIII.—EQUIVALENT QUESTIONS.

If, on a question for rejection, a bill be retained, it passes, of course, to its next reading. Hakew., 141; Scob., 42. And a question for a second reading determined negatively, is a rejection without further question. 4 Grey, 149. And see Elsynge's Memor., 42, in what cases questions are to be taken for rejection.

Where questions are perfectly equivalent, so that the negative of the one amounts to the affirmative of the other, and leaves no other alternative, the decision of the one concludes necessarily the other. 4 Grey, 157. Thus the negative of striking out amounts to the affirmative of agreeing; and therefore to put a question on agreeing after that on striking out, would be to put the same question in effect twice over. Not so in questions of amendments between the two houses. A motion to recede being negatived, does not amount to a positive vote to insist, because there is another alternative, to wit, to adhere.

A bill originating in one house is passed by the other with an amendment. A motion in the originating house to agree to the amendment is negatived. Does there result from this a vote of disagreement, or must the question on disagreement be expressly voted? The questions respecting amendments from another house are—1st, to agree; 2d, disagree; 3d, recede; 4th, insist; 5th. adhere.

1st. To agree.
2d. To disagree.

Either of these concludes the other necessarily, for the positive of either is exactly the equivalent of the negative of the other, and no other alternative remains. On either motion amendments to the amendment may be proposed; e. g., if it be moved to disagree, those who are for the amendment have a right to propose amendments, and to make it as perfect as they can, before the question of disagreeing is put.

3d. To recede.
4th. To insist.
5th. To adhere.

You may then either insist or adhere.
You may then either recede or adhere.
You may then either recede or insist.

Consequently the negative of these is not equivalent to a positive vote the other way. It does not raise so necessary an implication as may authorize the Secretary by inference to enter another vote; for two alternatives still remain, either of which may be adopted by the House.

SEC. XXXIX.—THE QUESTION.

The question is to be put first on the affirmative, and then on the negative side.

After the Speaker has put the affirmative part of the question, any member who has not spoken before to the question may rise and speak before the negative be put; because it is no full question till the negative part be put. Scob., 23; 2 Hats., 73.

But in small matters, and which are, of course, such as receiving petitions, reports, withdrawing motions, reading papers, &c., the Speaker most commonly supposes the consent of the House where no objection is expressed, and does not give them the trouble of putting the question formally. Scob., 22; 2 Hats., 87, 2, 87: 5 Grey. 129; 9 Grey, 301.

SEC. XL.—BILLS, THIRD READING.

To prevent bills from being passed by surprise, the House, by a standing order, directs that they shall not be put on their passage before a fixed hour, naming one at which the House is commonly full. Hakew., 153.

[The usage of the Senate is, not to put bills on their passage till noon.]

A bill reported and passed to the third reading cannot on that day be read the third time and passed; because this would be to pass on two readings in the same day.

At the third reading the Clerk reads the bill and delivers it to the Speaker, who states the title, that it is the third time of reading the bill, and that the question will be whether it shall pass? Formerly the Speaker, or those who prepared a bill, prepared also a breviate or summary statement of its contents, which the Speaker read when he declared the state of the bill, at the several readings. Sometimes, however, he read the bill itself, especially on its passage. Hakew., 136, 137, 153; Coke, 22, 115. Latterly, instead of this, he, at the third reading, states the whole contents of the bill, verbatim, only, instead of reading the formal parts, "Be it enacted," &c., he states that "preamble recites so and so—the 1st section enacts that, &c.; the 2d section enacts," &c.

[But in the Senate of the United States both of these formalities are dispensed with; the breviate presenting but an imperfect view of the bill, and being capable of being made to present a false one; and the full statement being a useless waste of time, immediately after a full reading by the Clerk, and especially as every member has a printed copy in his hand.]

A bill on the third reading is not to be committed for the matter or body thereof; but to receive some particular clause or proviso, it has been sometimes suffered, but as a thing very unusual. Hakew., 126. Thus, 27 El., 1584, a bill was committed on the third reading, having been formally committed on the second, but is declared not usual. D'Ewes, 337, col. 2; 414, col. 2.

When an essential provision has been omitted, rather than erase the bill and render it suspicious, they add a clause on a separate paper, engrossed and called a rider, which is read and put to the question three times. Elsynge's Memorials, 59; 6 Grey, 335; 1 Blackst., 183. For examples of riders, see 3 Hats., 121, 122, 124, 126. Every one is at liberty to bring in a rider without asking leave. 10 Grey, 52.

It is laid down as a general rule, that amendments proposed at the second reading shall be twice read, and those proposed at the third reading thrice read; as also all amendments from the other house. Town. col., 19, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

It is with great and almost invincible reluctance that amendments are admitted at this reading, which occasion erasures or interlineations. Sometimes a proviso has been cut off from a bill; sometimes erased. 9 Grey, 513.

This is the proper stage for filling up blanks; for if filled up before, and now altered by erasure, it would be peculiarly unsafe.

At this reading the bill is debated afresh, and for the most part is more spoken to at this time than on any of the former readings. Hakew., 153.

The debate on the question whether it should be read a third time has discovered to its friends and opponents the arguments on which each side relies, and which of these appear to have influence with the House; they have had time to meet them with new arguments, and to put their old ones into new shapes. The former vote has tried the strength of the first opinion, and furnished grounds to estimate the issue; and the question now offered for its passage is the last occasion which is ever to be offered for carrying or rejecting it.

When the debate is ended, the Speaker, holding the bill in his hand, puts the question for its passage, by saying, "Gentlemen, all you who are of opinion that this bill shall pass, say ay;" and after the answer of the ayes, "All those of the contrary opinion, say no." Hakew., 154.

After the bill is passed, there can be no further alteration of it in any point. Hakew., 159.

SEC. XII.—DIVISION OF THE HOUSE.

The affirmative and negative of the question having been both put and answered, the Speaker declares whether the yeas or nays have it by the sound, if he be himself satisfied, and it stands as the judgment of the House. But if he be not himself satisfied which voice is the greater, or if before any other member comes into the House, or before any new motion made, (for it is too late after that,) any member shall rise and declare himself dissatisfied with the Speaker's decision, then the Speaker is to divide the House. Scob., 24, 2 Hats., 140.

When the House of Commons is divided, the one party goes forth, and the other remains in the House. This has made it important which go forth and which remain; because the latter gain all the indolent, the indifferent, and inattentive. Their general rule, therefore, is, that those who give their vote for the preservation of the orders of the House, shall stay in; and those who are for introducing any new matter or alteration, or proceeding contrary to the established course, are to go out. But this rule is subject to many exceptions and modifications. 2 Hats., 134; 1 Rush., p. 3, fol. 92; Scob., 43, 52; Co., 12, 116; D'Ewes, 505, col. 1; Mem. in Hakew., 25, 29, as will appear by the following statement of who go forth:

For sitting on Sunday, or any other day not being a sitting day . . .	Ayes.

The one party being gone forth, the Speaker names two tellers from the affirmative and two from the negative side, who first count those sitting in the House and report the number to the Speaker. Then they place themselves within the door, two on each side, and count those who went forth as they come in, and report the number to the Speaker. Mem. in Hakew., 26.

A mistake in the report of the tellers may be rectified after the report made. 2 Hats., 145, note.

[But in both houses of Congress all these intricacies are avoided. The ayes first rise, and are counted standing in their places by the President or Speaker. Then they sit, and the noes rise and are counted in like manner.]

[In Senate, if they be equally divided, the Vice President announces his opinion, which decides.]

[The Constitution, however, has directed that "the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal." And again: that in all cases of reconsidering a bill disapproved by the President, and returned with his objections, "the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journals of each house respectively."]

[By the 16th and 17th rules of the Senate, when the yeas and nays shall be called for by one-fifth of the members present, each member called upon shall, unless for special reasons he be excused by the Senate, declare openly, and without debate, his assent or dissent to the question. In taking the yeas and nays, and upon the call of the House, the names of the members shall be taken alphabetically.

[When the yeas and nays shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of the above rule, no member shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the decision is announced from the Chair.]

[When it is proposed to take the vote by yeas and nays, the President or Speaker states that "the question is whether, e. g., the bill shall pass—that it is proposed that the yeas and nays shall be entered on the journal. Those, therefore, who desire it, will rise. If he finds and declares that one-fifth have risen, he then states that "those who are of opinion that the bill shall pass, are to answer in the affirmative; those of the contrary opinion in the negative." The Clerk then calls over the names alphabetically, notes the yea or nay of each, and gives the list to the President or Speaker, who declares the result. In Senate, if there be an equal division, the Secretary calls on the Vice President and notes his affirmative or negative, which becomes the decision of the House.]

In the House of Commons, every member must give his vote the one way or the other, (Scob., 24,) as it is not permitted to any one to withdraw who is in the House when the question is put, nor is any one to be told in the division who was not in when the question was put. 2 Hats., 140.

This last position is always true when the vote is by yeas and nays; where the negative as well as affirmative of the question is stated by the President at the same time, and the vote of both sides begins and proceeds pari passu. It is true also when the question is put in the usual way, if the negative has also been put; but if it has not, the member entering, or any other member, may speak, and even propose amendments, by which the debate may be opened again, and the question be greatly deferred. And as some who have answered aye may have been changed by the new arguments the affirmative must be put over again. If, then, the member entering may, by speaking a few words, occasion a repetition of a question, it would be useless to deny it on his simple call for it.

While the House is telling no member may speak or move out of his place, for if any mistake be suspected it must be told again. Mem. in Hakew., 26; 2 Hats., 143.

If any difficulty arises in point of order during the division, the Speaker is to decide peremptorily, subject to the future censure of the House if irregular. He sometimes permits old experienced members to assist him with their advice, which they do sitting in their seats, covered, to avoid the appearance of debate; but this can only be with the Speaker's leave, else the division might last several hours. 2 Hats., 143.

The voice of the majority decides; for the lex majoris partis is the law of all councils, elections, &c., where not otherwise expressly provided. Hakew., 93. But if the House be equally divided, "semper presumatur pro negante;" that is, the former law is not to be changed but by a majority. Towns., col. 134.

[But in the Senate of the United States the Vice President decides when the House is divided. Const. U. S., I, 3.]

When from counting the House on a division it appears that there is not a quorum, the matter continues exactly in the state in which it was before the division, and must be resumed at that point on any future day. 2 Hats., 126.

1606, May 1, on a question whether a member having said yea may afterwards sit and change his opinion, a precedent was remembered by the Speaker of Mr. Morris, attorney of the wards, in 39 Eliz., who in like case changed his opinion. Mem. in Hakew., 27.

SEC. XLII.—TITLES.

After the bill has passed, and not before, the title may be amended, and is to be fixed by a question; and the bill is then sent to the other house.

SEC. XLIII.—RECONSIDERATION.

[When a question has been once made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member of the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for the reconsideration of any vote shall be in order after a bill, resolution, message, report, amendment, or motion upon which the vote was taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate announcing their decision; nor shall any motion for reconsideration be in order unless made on the same day on which the vote was taken, or within the two next days of actual session of the Senate thereafter.* Rule 20.]

[1798, Jan. A bill on its second reading being amended, and on the question whether it shall be read a third time negatived, was restored by a decision to reconsider that question. Here the votes of negative and reconsideration, like positive and negative quantities in equation, destroy one another, and are as if they were expunged from the journals. Consequently the bill is open for amendment, just so far as it was the moment preceding the question for the third reading; that is to say, all parts of the bill are open for amendment except those on which votes have been already taken in its present stage. So, also, it may be recommitted.]

[†The rule permitting a reconsideration of a question affixing to it no limitation of time or circumstance, it may be asked whether there is no limitation? If, after the vote, the paper on which it is passed has been parted with, there can be no reconsideration: as if a vote has been for the passage of a bill, and the bill has been sent to the other house. But where the paper remains, as on a bill rejected, when, or under what circumstances, does it cease to be susceptible of reconsideration? This remains to be settled; unless a sense that the right of reconsideration is a right to waste the time of the House in repeated agitations of the same question, so that

* This part of the rule has been added since the Manual was compiled.

† The rule now fixes a limitation.

it shall never know when a question is done with, should induce them to reform this anomalous proceeding.]

In Parliament, a question once carried cannot be questioned again at the same session, but must stand as the judgment of the House. Towns., col. 67; Mem. in Hakew., 33. And a bill once rejected, another of the same substance cannot be brought in again the same session. Hakew., 158; 6 Grey, 392. But this does not extend to prevent putting the same question in different stages of a bill; because every stage of a bill submits the whole and every part of it to the opinion of the House, as open for amendment, either by insertion or omission, though the same amendment has been accepted or rejected in a former stage. So in reports of committees, e. g. report of an address, the same question is before the House, and open for free discussion. Towns., col. 26; 2 Hats., 98, 100, 101. So orders of the house, or instructions to committees, may be discharged. So a bill, begun in one house, and sent to the other, and there rejected, may be renewed again in that other, passed and sent back. Ib., 92; 3 Hats., 161. Or if, instead of being rejected, they read it once and lay it aside, or amend it, and put it off a month, they may order in another to the same effect, with the same or a different title. Hakew., 97, 98.

Divers expedients are used to correct the effects of this rule; as by passing an explanatory act, if anything has been omitted or ill expressed, 3 Hats., 278, or an act to enforce, and make more effectual an act, &c., or to rectify mistakes in an act, &c., or a committee on one bill may be instructed to receive a clause to rectify the mistakes of another. Thus, June 24, 1685, a clause was inserted in a bill for rectifying a mistake committed by a clerk in engrossing a bill of supply. 2 Hats., 194, 6. Or the session may be closed for one, two, three, or more days, and a new one commenced. But then all matters depending must be finished, or they fall, and are to begin de novo. 2 Hats., 94, 98. Or a part of the subject may be taken up by another bill, or taken up in a different way. 6 Grey, 304, 316.

And in cases of the last magnitude, this rule has not been so strictly and verbally observed as to stop indispensable proceedings altogether. 2 Hats., 92, 98. Thus when the address on the preliminaries of peace in 1782 had been lost by a majority of one, on account of the importance of the question, and smallness of the majority, the same question in substance, though with some words not in the first, and which might change the opinion of some members, was brought on again and carried, as the motives for it were thought to outweigh the objection of form. 2 Hats, 99, 100.

A second bill may be passed to continue an act of the same session, or to enlarge the time limited for its execution. 2 Hats., 95, 98. This is not in contradiction to the first act.

SEC. XLIV.—BILLS SENT TO THE OTHER HOUSE

[All bills passed in the Senate shall, before they are sent to the House of Representatives, be examined by a committee, consisting of three members, whose duty shall be to examine all bills, amendments, resolutions, or motions, before they go out of the possession of the Senate, and to make report that they are correctly engrossed; which report shall be entered on the journal. Rule 33.]

A bill from the other house is sometimes ordered to lie on the table. 2 Hats., 97.

When bills, passed in one house and sent to the other, are grounded on special facts requiring proof, it is usual, either by message or at a conference, to ask the grounds and evidence; and this evidence, whether arising out of papers, or from the examination of witnesses, is immediately communicated. 3 Hats., 48.

SEC. XLV.—AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES.

When either house, e. g. the House of Commons, send a bill to the other, the other may pass it with amendments.

The regular progression in this case is, that the commons disagree to the amendment; the lords insist on it; the commons insist on their disagreement; the lords adhere to their amendment; the commons adhere to their disagreement. The term of insisting may be repeated as often as they choose to keep the question open. But the first adherence by either renders it necessary for the other to recede or adhere also; when the matter is usually suffered to fall. 10 Grey, 148. Latterly, however, there are instances of their having gone to a second adherence. There must be an absolute conclusion of the subject somewhere, or otherwise transactions between the houses would become endless. 3 Hats., 268, 270. The term of insisting, we are told by Sir John Trevor, was then (1679) newly introduced into parliamentary usage by the lords. 7 Grey, 94. It was certainly a happy innovation, as it multiplies the opportunities of trying modifications which may bring the houses to concurrence. Either house, however, is free to pass over the term of insisting, and to adhere in the first instance; 10 Grey, 146; but it is not respectful to the other. In the ordinary parliamentary course, there are two free conferences, at least, before an adherence. 10 Grey, 147.

Either house may recede from its amendment and agree to the bill; or recede from their disagreement to the amendment, and agree to the same absolutely, or with an amendment; for here the disagreement and receding destroy one another, and the subject stands as before the disagreement. Elsynge, 23, 27; 9 Grey, 476.

But the House cannot recede from, or insist on its own amendment, with an amendment; for the same reason that it cannot send to the other house an amendment to its own act after it has passed the act. They may modify an amendment from the other house by ingrafting an amendment on it, because they have never assented to it; but they cannot amend their own amendment, because they have, on the question, passed it in that form. 9 Grey, 363; 10 Grey, 240.

In Senate, March 29, 1798. Nor where one house has adhered to their amendment, and the other agrees with an amendment, can the first house depart from the form which they have fixed by an adherence.

In the case of a money bill, the lords' proposed amendments become, by delay, confessedly necessary. The commons, however, refused them, as infringing on their privilege as to money bills; but they offered themselves to add to the bill a proviso to the same effect, which had no coherence with the lords' amendments; and urged that it was an expedient warranted by precedent, and not unparliamentary in a case become impracticable, and irremediable in any other way. 3 Hats., 256, 266, 270, 271. But the lords refused, and the bill was lost. 1 Chand., 288. A like case, 1 Chand., 311. So the commons resolved that it is unparliamentary to strike out, at a conference, anything in a bill which hath been agreed and passed by both houses. 6 Grey, 274; 1 Chand., 312.

A motion to amend an amendment from the other house takes precedence of a motion to agree or disagree.

A bill originating in one house is passed by the other with an amendment.

The originating house agrees to their amendment with an amendment. The other may agree to their amendment with an amendment, that being only in the 2d and not the 3d degree; for, as to the amending house, the first amendment with which they passed the bill is a part of its text; it is the only text they have agreed to. The amendment to that text by the originating house, therefore, is only in the 1st degree, and the amendment to that again by the amending house is only in the 2d, to wit, an amendment to an amendment, and so admissible. Just so, when, on a bill from the originating house, the other, at its second reading makes an amendment; on the third reading this amendment is become the text of the bill, and if an amendment to it be moved, an amendment to that amendment may also be moved, as being only in the 2d degree.

SEC. XLVI.—CONFERENCES.

It is on the occasion of amendments between the houses that conferences are usually asked; but they may be asked in all cases of difference of opinion between the two houses on matters depending between them. The request of a conference, however, must always be by the house which is possessed of the papers. 3 Hats., 31; 1 Grey, 425.

Conferences may be either simple or free. At a conference simply, written reasons are prepared by the house asking it, and they are read and delivered, without debate, to the managers of the other house at the conference; but are not then to be answered; 4 Grey, 144. The other house then, if satisfied, vote the reasons satisfactory, or say nothing: if not satisfied, they resolve them not satisfactory, and ask a conference on the subject of the last conference, where they read and deliver, in like manner, written answers to those reasons. 3 Grey, 183. They are meant chiefly to record the justification of each house to the nation at large, and to posterity, and in proof that the miscarriage of a necessary measure is not imputable to them. 3 Grey, 255. At free conferences, the managers discuss, viva voce and freely, and interchange propositions for such modifications as may be made in a parliamentary way, and may bring the sense of the two houses together. And each party reports in writing to their respective houses the substance of what is said on both sides, and it is entered in their journals. 9 Grey, 220; 3 Hats., 280. This report cannot be amended or altered, as that of a committee may be. Journal Senate, May 24, 1796.

A conference may be asked, before the house asking it has come to a resolution of disagreement, insisting or adhering. 3 Hats., 269, 341. In which case the papers are not left with the other conferees, but are brought back to be the foundation of the vote to be given. And this is the most reasonable and respectful proceeding; for, as was urged by the lords on a particular occasion, "it is held vain, and below the wisdom of Parliament, to reason or argue against fixed resolutions, and upon terms of impossibility to persuade." 3 Hats., 226. So the commons say, "an adherence is never delivered at a free conference, which implies debate." 10 Grey, 137. And on another occasion the lords made it an objection that the commons had asked a free conference after they had made resolutions of adhering. It was then affirmed, however, on the part of the commons, that nothing was more parliamentary than to proceed with free conferences after adhering, (3 Hats., 269,) and we do in fact see inferences of conference, or of free conference, asked after the resolution of disagreeing, 3 Hats., 251, 253, 260, 286, 291, 316, 349; of insisting, Ib., 280, 296, 299, 319, 322, 355; of adhering, 269, 270, 283, 300; and even of a second or final adherence. 3 Hats., 270. And in all cases of conference asked after a vote of disagreement, &c., the conferees of the house asking it are to leave the papers with the conferees of the other; and in one case where they refused to receive them, they were left on the table in the conference chamber. Ib., 271, 317, 323, 354; 10 Grey, 146.

After a free conference, the usage is to proceed with free conferences, and not to return again to a conference. 3 Hats., 270; 9 Grey, 229.

After a conference denied, a free conference may be asked. 1 Grey, 45.

When a conference is asked, the subject of it must be expressed, or the conference not agreed to. Ord, H. Com., 89; 1 Grey, 425; 7 Grey, 31. They are sometimes asked to inquire concerning an offence or default of a member of the other house. 6 Grey, 181; 1 Chand., 304. Or the failure of the other house to present to the King a bill passed by both houses, 8 Grey, 302. Or on information received, and relating to the safety of the nation. 10 Grey, 171. Or when the methods of Parliament are thought by the one house to have been departed from by the other, a conference is asked to come to a right understanding thereon. 10 Grey, 148. So when an unparliamentary message has been sent, instead of answering it, they ask a conference. 3 Grey, 155. Formerly an address or articles of impeachment, or a bill with amendments, or a vote of the House, or concurrence in a vote, or a message from the King, were sometimes communicated by way of conference. 6 Grey, 128, 300, 387; 7 Grey, 80; 8 Grey, 210, 255; 1 Torbuck's Deb., 278; 10 Grey, 293; 1 Chandler, 49, 287. But this is not the modern practice. 8 Grey, 255.

A conference has been asked after the first reading of a bill. 1 Grey, 194. This is a singular instance.

SEC. XLVII.—MESSAGES.

Messages between the houses are to be sent only while both houses are sitting. 3 Hats., 15. They are received during debate without adjourning the debate. 3 Hats., 22.

[In Senate the messengers are introduced in any state of business, except, 1. While a question is putting. 2. While the yeas and nays are calling. 3. While the ballots are counting. Rule 46. The first case is short; the second and third are cases where any interruption might occasion errors difficult to be corrected. So arranged June 15, 1798.]

In the House of Representatives, as in Parliament, if the House be in committee when a messenger attends, the Speaker takes the chair to receive the message, and then quits it to return into committee, without any question or interruption. 4 Grey, 226.

Messengers are not saluted by the members, but by the Speaker of the House. 2 Grey, 253, 274.

If messengers commit an error in delivering their message, they may be admitted or called in to correct their message. 4 Grey, 41. Accordingly, March 13, 1800, the Senate having made two amendments to a bill from the House of Representatives, their Secretary, by mistake, delivered one only, which being inadmissible by itself, that house disagreed, and notified the Senate of their disagreement. This produced a discovery of the mistake. The Secretary was sent to the other house to correct his mistake, the correction was received, and the two amendments acted on de novo.

As soon as the messenger, who has brought bills from the other house, has retired, the Speaker holds the bills in his hand, and acquaints the House "that the other house have by their messenger sent certain bills," and then reads their titles, and delivers them to the Clerk, to be safely kept till they shall be called for to be read. Hakew., 178.

It is not the usage for one house to inform the other by what numbers a bill has passed. 10 Grey, 150. Yet they have sometimes recommended a bill, as of great importance, to the consideration of the house to which it is sent. 3 Hats., 25. Nor when they have rejected a bill from the other house, do they give notice of it; but it passes sub silentio, to prevent unbecoming altercations. 1 Blackst., 183.

[But in Congress the rejection is notified by message to the house in which the bill originated.]

A question is never asked by the one house of the other by way of message, but only at a conference; for this is an interrogatory, not a message. 3 Grey, 151, 181.

When a bill is sent by one house to the other, and is neglected, they may send a message to remind them of it. 3 Hats., 25; 5 Grey, 154. But if it be mere inattention, it is better to have it done informally, by communication between the speakers or members of the two houses.

Where the subject of a message is of a nature that it can properly be communicated to both houses of Parliament, it is expected that this communication should be made to both on the same day. But where a message was accompanied with an original declaration, signed by the party to which the message referred, its being sent to one house was not noticed by the other, because the declaration, being original, could not possibly be sent to both houses at the same time. 2 Hats., 260, 261, 262.

The King having sent original letters to the commons, afterwards desires they may be returned, that he may communicate them to the Lords. 1 Chandler, 303.

SEC. XLVIII.—ASSENT.

The house which has received a bill and passed it may present it for the King's assent, and ought to do it, though they have not by message notified to the other their passage of it. Yet the notifying by message is a form which ought to be observed between the two houses from motives of respect and good understanding. 2 Hats., 142. Were the bill to be withheld from being presented to the King, it would be an infringement of the rules of Parliament. Ib.

[When a bill has passed both houses of Congress, the house last acting on it notifies its passage to the other, and delivers the bill to the Joint Committee of Enrolment, who see that it is truly enrolled in parchment.] When the bill is enrolled, it is not to be written in paragraphs, but solidly, and all of a piece, that the blanks between the paragraphs may not give room for forgery. 9 Grey, 143. [It is then put into the hands of the Clerk of the House of Representatives to have it signed by the Speaker. The Clerk then brings it by way of message to the Senate to be signed by their President. The Secretary of the Senate returns it to the Committee of Enrolment, who present it to the President of the United States. If he approve, he signs, and deposits it among the rolls in the office of the Secretary of State, and notifies by message the house in which it originated that he has approved and signed it; of which that house informs the other by message. If the President disapproves, he is to return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated; who are to enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the President's objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress, by their adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law. Const. U. S., I, 7.]

[Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary, (except on a question of adjournment,) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him; or, being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill. Const. U. S., I, 7.]

SEC. XLIX.—JOURNALS.

[Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may, in their judgment, require secrecy. Const., I, 5.]

[The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as in a Committee of the Whole, shall be entered on the journals as concisely as possible, care being taken to detail a true account of the proceedings. Every vote of the Senate shall be entered on the journals, and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper presented to the Senate, be also inserted on the journal. Rule 32.]

[The titles of bills, and such parts thereof, only, as shall be affected by proposed amendments, shall be inserted on the journals. Rule 31.]

If a question is interrupted by a vote to adjourn, or to proceed to the orders of the day, the original question is never printed in the journal, it never having been a vote, nor introductory to any vote; but when suppressed by the previous question, the first question must be stated, in order to introduce and make intelligible the second. 2 Hats., 83.

So also when a question is postponed, adjourned, or laid on the table, the original question, though not yet a vote, must be expressed in the journals; because it makes part of the vote of postponement, adjourning, or laying it on the table.

Where amendments are made to a question, those amendments are not printed in the journals, separated from the question; but only the question as finally agreed to by the House. The rule of entering in the journals only what the House has agreed to, is founded in great prudence and good sense; as there may be many questions proposed, which it may be improper to publish to the world in the form in which they are made. 2 Hats., 85.

[In both houses of Congress, all questions whereon the yeas and nays are desired by one-fifth of the members present, whether decided affirmatively or negatively, must be entered in the journals. Const., I, 5.]

The first order for printing the votes of the House of Commons was October 30, 1685. 1 Chandler, 387.

Some judges have been of opinion that the journals of the House of Commons are no records, but only remembrances. But this is not law. Hob., 110, 111; Lex. Parl., 114, 115; Jour. H. C., Mar. 17, 1592; Hale, Parl., 105. For the lords in their house have power of judicature, the commons in their house have power of judicature; and both houses together have power of judicature; and the book of the Clerk of the House of Commons is a record, as is affirmed by act of Parl., 6 H. 8, c. 16; 4 Inst., 23, 24; and every member of the House of Commons hath a judicial place. 4 Inst., 15. As records they are open to every person, and a printed vote of either house is sufficient ground for the other to notice it. Either may appoint a committee to inspect the journals of the other, and report what has been done by the other in any particular case. 2 Hats., 361; 3 Hats., 27—30. Every member has a right to see the journals, and to take and publish votes from them. Being a record, every one may see and publish them. 6 Grey, 118, 119.

On information of a mis-entry or omission of an entry in the journal, a committee may be appointed to examine and rectify it, and report it to the House. 2 Hats., 194, 5.

SEC. L.—ADJOURNMENT.

The two houses of Parliament have the sole, separate, and independent power of adjourning each their respective houses. The King has no authority to adjourn them; he can only signify his desire, and it is in the wisdom and prudence of either house to comply with his requisition, or not, as they see fitting. 2 Hats., 332; 1 Blackstone, 186; 5 Grey, 122.

[By the Constitution of the United States a smaller number than a majority may adjourn from day to day. I 5. But "neither house, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting." I, 5. And in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, the President may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. Const. II, 3.]

A motion to adjourn, simply, cannot be amended, as by adding "to a particular day;" but must be put simply "that this House do now adjourn?" and if carried in the affirmative, it is adjourned to the next sitting day, unless it has come to a previous resolution, "that at its rising it will adjourn to a particular day," and then the House is adjourned to that day. 2 Hats., 82.

Where it is convenient that the business of the House be suspended for a short time, as for a conference presently to be held, &c., it adjourns during pleasure; 2 Hats., 305; or for a quarter of an hour. 5 Grey, 331.

If a question be put for adjournment, it is no adjournment till the Speaker pronounces it. 5 Grey, 137. And from courtesy and respect, no member leaves his place till the Speaker has passed on.

SEC. LI.—A SESSION.

Parliament have three modes of separation, to wit: By adjournment, by prorogation or dissolution by the King, or by the efflux of the term for which they were elected. Prorogation or dissolution constitutes there what is called a session, provided some act has passed. In this case all matters depending before them are discontinued, and at their next meeting are to be taken up de novo, if taken up at all. 1 Blackst., 186. Adjournment, which is by themselves, is no more than a continuance of the session from one day to another, or for a fortnight, a month, &c., ad libitum. All matters depending remain in statu quo, and when they meet again, be the term ever so distant, are resumed, without any fresh commencement, at the point at which they were left. 1 Lev., 165; Lex. Parl., c. 2; 1 Ro. Rep., 29; 4 Inst., 7, 27, 28; Hutt., 61; 1 Mod. 252; Ruffh. Jac. L. Dict. Parliament; 1 Blackst., 186. Their whole session is considered in law but as one day, and has relation to the first day thereof. Bro. Abr. Parliament, 86.

Committees may be appointed to sit during a recess by adjournment, but not by prorogation. 5 Grey, 374; 9 Grey, 350; 1 Chandler, 50. Neither house can continue any portion of itself in any parliamentary function beyond the end of the session without the consent of the other two branches. When done, it is by a bill constituting them commissioners for the particular purpose.

[Congress separate in two ways only, to wit: by adjournment, or dissolution by the efflux of their time. What, then, constitutes a session with them? A dissolution closes one session, and the meeting of the new Congress begins another. The Constitution authorizes the President, "on extraordinary occasions to convene both houses, or either of them." I, 3. If convened by the President's proclamation, this must begin a new session, and of course determine the preceding one to have been a session. So if it meets under the clause of the Constitution, which says, "the Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." I, 4. This must begin a new session; for even if the last adjournment was to this day, the act of adjournment is merged in the higher authority of the Constitution, and the meeting will be under that, and not under their adjournment. So far we have fixed landmarks for determining sessions. In other cases it is declared by the joint vote authorizing the President of the Senate and Speaker to close the session on a fixed day, which is usually in the following form: "Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, that the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives be authorized to close the present session by adjourning their respective houses on the —— day of ——."]

When it was said above that all matters depending before Parliament were discontinued by the determination of the session, it was not meant for judiciary cases, depending before the House of Lords, such as impeachments, appeals, and writs of error. These stand continued, of course, to the next session. Raym., 120, 381, Ruffh. Jack. L. D., Parliament.

SECTION LII.—TREATIES.

[The President of the United States has power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur. Const. U. S., II, 2.]

[Resolved, that all confidential communications made by the President of the United States to the Senate shall be, by the members thereof, kept secret; and that all treaties which may hereafter be laid before the Senate shall also be kept secret, until the Senate shall, by their resolution, take off the injunction of secrecy. Rule 38.]

Treaties are legislative acts. A treaty is the law of the land. It differs from other laws only as it must have the consent of a foreign nation, being but a contract with respect to that nation. In all countries, I believe, except England, treaties are made by the legislative power; and there also, if they touch the laws of the land, they must be approved by Parliament. Ware v. Hayton, 3 Dallas' Rep., 223. It is acknowledged, for instance, that the King of Great Britain cannot by a treaty make a citizen of an alien. Vattel, b. 1, c. 19, sec. 214. An act of Parliament was necessary to validate the American treaty of 1783. And abundant examples of such acts can be cited. In the case of the treaty of Utrecht, in 1712, the commercial articles required the concurrence of Parliament; but a bill brought in for that purpose was rejected. France, the other contracting party, suffered these articles, in practice, to be not insisted on, and adhered to the rest of the treaty. 4 Russel's Hist. Mod. Europe, 457; 2 Smollet, 242, 246.

[By the Constitution of the United States this department of legislation is confided to two branches only of the ordinary legislature; the President originating, and the Senate having a negative. To what subjects this power extends has not been defined in detail by the Constitution; nor are we entirely agreed among ourselves. 1. It is admitted that it must concern the foreign nation party to the contract, or it would be a mere nullity, res inter alios acta. 2. By the general power to make treaties, the Constitution must have intended to comprehend only those subjects which are usually regulated by treaty, and cannot be otherwise regulated. 3. It must have meant to except out of these the rights reserved to the States; for surely the President and Senate cannot do by treaty what the whole government is interdicted from doing in any way. 4. And also to except those subjects of legislation in which it gave a participation to the House of Representatives. This last exception is denied by some, on the ground that it would leave very little matter for the treaty power to work on. The less the better, say others. The Constitution thought it wise to restrain the Executive and Senate from entangling and embroiling our affairs with those of Europe. Besides, as the negotiations are carried on by the executive alone, the subjecting to the ratification of the representatives such articles as are within their participation, is no more inconvenient than to the Senate. But the ground of this exception is denied as unfounded. For examine, e. g. the treaty of commerce with France, and it will be found that, out of 31 articles, there are not more than small portions of two or three of them which would not still remain as subjects of treaties, untouched by these exceptions.]

[Treaties being declared, equally with the laws of the United States, to be the supreme law of the land, it is understood that an act of the legislature alone can declare them infringed and rescinded. This was accordingly the process adopted in the case of France in 1798.]

[It has been the usage for the Executive, when it communicates a treaty to the Senate for their ratification, to communicate also the correspondence of the negotiators. This having been omitted in case of the Prussian treaty, was asked by a vote of the House, of February 12, 1800, and was obtained. And in December, 1800, the convention of that year between the United States and France, with the report of the negotiations by the envoys, but not their instructions, being laid before the Senate, the instructions were asked for, and communicated by the President.]

[The mode of voting on questions of ratification is by nominal call.]

[Whenever a treaty shall be laid before the Senate for ratification, it shall be read a first time for information only; when no motion to reject, ratify, or modify the whole, or any part, shall be received. Its second reading shall be for consideration, and on a subsequent day, when it shall be taken up as in a committee of the whole, and every one shall be free to move a question on any particular article, in this form: "Will the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of this article?" or to propose amendments thereto, either by inserting or by leaving out words, in which last case the question shall be, "shall the words stand part of the article?" And in every of the said cases, the concurrence of two-thirds of the Senators present shall be requisite to decide affirmatively. And when, through the whole, the proceedings shall be stated to the house, and questions be again severally put thereon, for confirmation, or new ones proposed, requiring in like manner a concurrence of two-thirds for whatever is retained or inserted.]

[The votes so confirmed shall, by the house, or a committee thereof, be reduced into the form of a ratification, with or without modifications, as may have been decided, and shall be proposed on a subsequent day, when every one shall again be free to move amendments, either by inserting or leaving out words; in which last case the question shall be, "Shall the words stand part of the resolution?" And in both cases the concurrence of two-thirds shall be requisite to carry the affirmative; as well as on the final question to advise and consent to the ratification in the form agreed to. Rule 37.]

[When any question may have been decided by the Senate, in which two-thirds of the members present are necessary to carry the affirmative, any member who voted on that side which prevailed in the question may be at liberty to move for a reconsideration; and a motion for reconsideration shall be decided by a majority of votes. Rule 44.]

SEC. LIII.—IMPEACHMENT.

[The House of Representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment. Const. U. S., I, 3.]

[The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States. But the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law. Const., I, 3.]

[The President, Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors. Const., II, 4.]

[The trial of crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury. Const., III, 2.]

These are the provisions of the Constitution of the United States on the subject of impeachments. The following is a sketch of some of the principles and practices of England on the same subject:

Jurisdiction. The lords cannot impeach any to themselves, nor join in the accusation, because they are the judges. Seld. Judic. in Parl., 12, 63. Nor can they proceed against a commoner but on complaint of the commons. Ib., 84. The lords may not, by the law, try a commoner for a capital offence, on the information of the King or a private person, because the accused is entitled to a trial by his peers generally; but on accusation by the House of Commons, they may proceed against the delinquent, of whatsoever degree, and whatsoever be the nature of the offence; for there they do not assume to themselves trial at common law. The commons are then instead of a jury, and the judgment is given on their demand, which is instead of a verdict. So the lords do only judge, but not try the delinquent. Ib., 6, 7. But Wooddeson denies that a commoner can now be charged capitally before the lords, even by the commons; and cites Fitzharris's case, 1681, impeached for high treason, where the lords remitted the prosecution to the inferior court. 8 Grey's Deb., 325–7; Wooddeson, 601, 576; 3 Seld., 1610, 1619, 1641; 4 Blackst., 25; 73 Seld., 1604, 1618; 9, 1656.

Accusation. The commons, as the grand inquest of the nation, become suitors for penal justice. 2 Woodd., 597; 6 Grey, 356. The general course is to pass a resolution containing a criminal charge against the supposed delinquent, and then to direct some member to impeach him by oral accusation, at the bar of the House of Lords, in the name of the commons. The person signifies that the articles will be exhibited, and desires that the delinquent may be sequestered from his seat, or be committed, or that the peers will take order from his appearance. Sachev. Trial, 325; 2 Woodd., 602, 605; Lords' Journ., 3 June, 1701, 101; 1 Wms., 616; 6 Grey, 324.

Process. If the party do not appear, proclamations are to be issued, giving him a day to appear. On their return they are strictly examined. If any error be found in them, a new proclamation issues, giving a short day. If he appear not, his goods may be arrested, and they may proceed. Seld. Jud., 98, 99.

Articles. The accusation (articles) of the commons is substituted in place of an indictment. Thus, by the usage of Parliament, in impeachment for writing or speaking, the particular words need not be specified. Sach. Tr., 325; 2 Woodd., 602, 605; Lord's Journ., 3 June, 1701; 1 Wms., 616.

Appearance. If he appears, and the case be capital, he answers in custody: though not if the accusations be general. He is not to be committed but on special accusations. If it be for a misdemeanor only, he answers, a lord in his place, a commoner at the bar, and not in custody, unless, on the answer, the lords find cause to commit him, till he finds sureties to attend, and lest he should fly. Seld. Jud., 98, 99. A copy of the articles is given him, and a day fixed for his answer. T. Ray; 1 Rushw.. 268; Fost., 232; 1 Clar. Hist. of the Reb., 379. On a misdemeanor, his appearance may be in person, or he may answer in writing, or by attorney. Seld. Jud., 100. The general rule on accusation for a misdemeanor is, that in such a state of liberty or restraint as the party is when the commons complain of him, in such he is to answer. Ib., 101. If previously committed by the commons, he answers as a prisoner. But this may be called in some sort judicium parium suorum. Ib. In misdemeanors the party has a right to counsel by the common law, but not in capital cases. Seld. Jud., 102–5.

Answer. The answer need not observe great strictness of form. He may plead guilty as to part, and defend as to the residue; or, saving all exceptions, deny the whole or give a particular answer to each article separately. 1 Rush., 274; 2 Rush., 1374; 12 Parl. Hist., 442; 3 Lords' Journ., 13 Nov., 1643; 2 Woodd., 607. But he cannot plead a pardon in bar to the impeachment. 2 Woodd., 615; 2 St. Tr., 735.

Replication, rejoinder, &c. There may be a replication, rejoinder, &c. Sel. Jud., 114; 8 Grey's Deb., 233; Sach. Tr., 15; Journ. H. of Commons, 6 March, 1640, 1.

Witnesses. The practice is to swear the witnesses in open House, and then examine them there; or a committee may be named, who shall examine them in committee, either on interrogatories agreed on in the House, or such as the committee in their discretion shall demand. Seld. Jud., 120, 123.

Jury. In the case of Alice Pierce, 1 R. 2, a jury was empannelled for her trial before a committee. Seld. Jud., 123. But this was on a complaint, not on impeachment by the commons. Seld. Jud., 163. It must also have been for a misdemeanor only, as the lords spiritual sat in the case, which they do on misdemeanors, but not in capital cases. Id., 148. The judgment was a forfeiture of all her lands and goods. Id., 188. This, Seldon says, is the only jury he finds recorded in Parliament for misdemeanor; but he makes no doubt, if the delinquent doth put himself on the trial of his country, a jury ought to be empannelled, and he adds that it is not so on impeachment by the commons; for they are in loco proprio, and there no jury ought to be empannelled. Id., 124. The Ld. Berkely, 6 E. 3, was arraigned for the murder of L. 2, on an information on the part of the King, and not on impeachment of the commons; for then they had been patria sua. He waived his peerage, and was tried by a jury of Gloucestershire and Warwickshire. Id., 125. In 1 H. 7, the commons protest that they are not to be considered as parties to any judgment given, or hereafter to be given, in Parliament. Seld. Jud., 133. They have been generally and more justly considered, as is before stated, as the grand jury; for the conceit of Seldon is certainly not accurate, and they are the patria sua of the accused, and that the lords do only judge, but not try. It is undeniable that they do try; for they examine witnesses as to the facts, and acquit or condemn, according to their own belief of them. And Lord Hale says "the peers are judges of law as well as of fact;" 2 Hale, P. C., 275; consequently of fact as well as of law.

Presence of commons. The commons are to be present at the examination of witnesses. Seld. Jud., 124. Indeed, they are to attend throughout, either as a committee of the whole House, or otherwise, at discretion, appoint managers to conduct the proofs. Rushw. Tr. of Straff., 37; Com. Journ., 4 Feb., 1709–10; 2 Woodd., 614. And judgment is not to be given till they demand it. Seld. Jud., 124. But they are not to be present on impeachment when the lords consider of the answer of proofs and determine of their judgment. Their presence, however, is necessary at the answer and judgment in cases capital (Id., 58, 159) as well as not capital; 162. The lords debate the judgment among themselves. Then the vote is first taken on the question of guilty or not guilty; and if they convict, the question, or particular sentence, is out of that which seemeth to be most generally agreed on. Seld. Jud., 167; 2 Woodd., 612.

Judgment. Judgments in Parliament, for death, have been strictly guided per legem terræ, which they cannot alter; and not at all according to their discretion. They can neither omit any legal part of the judgment nor add to it. Their sentence must be secundum, non ultra legem. Seld. Jud., 168–171. This trial, though it varies in external ceremony, yet differs not in essentials from criminal prosecutions before inferior courts. The same rules of evidence, the same legal notions of crimes and punishments, prevailed; for impeachments are not framed to alter the law, but to carry it into more effectual execution against too powerful delinquents. The judgment, therefore, is to be such as is warranted by legal principles or precedents. 6 Sta. Tr., 14; 2 Woodd., 611. The chancellor gives judgment in misdemeanors; the lord high steward formerly in cases of life and death. Seld. Jud., 180. But now the steward is deemed not necessary. Fost., 144; 2 Woodd., 613. In misdemeanors the greatest corporal punishment hath been imprisonment. Seld. Jud., 184. The King's assent is necessary in capital judgments. (2 Woodd., 614, contra,) but not in misdemeanors. Seld. Jud., 136.

Continuance. An impeachment is not discontinued by the dissolution of Parliament, but may be resumed by the new Parliament. T. Ray., 383; 4 Com. Journ., 23 Dec., 1790; Lord's Jour., May, 15, 1791; 2 Woodd., 618.

RULES AND ORDERS

OF THE

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

STANDING RULES AND ORDERS

FOR CONDUCTING BUSINESS IN

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES.

As amended at the 1st session of the 36th Congress.

TOUCHING THE DUTY OF THE SPEAKER.

1. He shall take the chair every day precisely at the hour to which the House shall have adjourned on the preceding day; shall immediately call the members to order; and, on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the journal of the preceding day to be read.—April 7, 1789.

2. He shall preserve order* and decorum;† may speak to points of order in preference to other members, rising from his seat for that purpose; and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the House by any two members—April 7, 1789; on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by leave of the House.‡—December 23, 1811.

* By rule 22 it is made the duty of the Sergeant-at-arms to aid in the enforcement of order, under the direction of the Speaker.

† See rules 57, 58, 61, 62, and 65, on the subject of "decorum."

‡ Difficulties have often arisen as to a supposed discrepancy between the appeal contemplated in this rule and that referred to in rule 61. There is no discrepancy. The question of order mentioned in the second rule relates to motions or propositions, the applicability or relevancy, or their admissibility on the score of time, or in the order of business, &c. The "call to order," mentioned in rule 61, on which, in case of an appeal, there can be no debate, has reference only to "transgressions of the rules in speaking," or to indecorum of any kind. See also rule 133, in which debate on an appeal, pending a call for the previous question, is prohibited.

3. He shall rise to put a question, but may state it sitting.—April 7, 1789.

4. Questions shall be distinctly put in this form, to wit: "As many as are of opinion that (as the question may be) say Ay;" and after the affirmative voice is expressed, "As many as are of the contrary opinion, say No." If the Speaker doubt, or a division be called for, the House shall divide; those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats, and afterwards those in the negative.* If the Speaker still doubt, or a count be required, by at least one-fifth of a quorum of the members, the Speaker shall name two members, one from each side, to tell the members in the affirmative and negative; which being reported, he shall rise and state the decision to the House.—March 16, 1860.

5. The Speaker shall examine and correct the journal before it is read. He shall have a general direction of the Hall, and the unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol assigned to the House shall be subject to his order and disposal until the further order of the House. He shall have a right to name any member to perform the duties of the Chair, but such substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.—December 23, 1811, and May 26, 1824.

6. No person shall be permitted to perform divine service in the chamber occupied by the House of Representatives, unless with the consent of the Speaker.—May 19, 1804.

7. In all cases of ballot† by the House, the Speaker shall

* The manner of dividing the House, as originally established by the rule of April 17, 1789, was, that the members who voted in the affirmative went to the right of the Chair, those in the negative to the left. This was, doubtless, taken from the old practice of the House of Commons of England. The passing of the members to and fro across the House was found so inconvenient, and took up so much time, that the mode of dividing the House was, on the 9th of June, 1789, changed to the present form: the members of each side of the question rising in their seats and being there counted.

† The word here used in the original formation of the rule was election. On the 14th January, 1840, it was changed to the word ballot. According to the practice, however, this rule is held to apply to all cases of election.

vote; in other cases he shall not be required to vote, unless the House be equally divided, or unless his vote, if given to the minority, will make the division equal; and in case of such equal division, the question shall be lost.*—April 7, 1789.

8. All acts, addresses, and joint resolutions, shall be signed by the Speaker; and all writs, warrants and subpœnas, issued by order of the House, shall be under his hand and seal, attested by the Clerk.—November 13, 1794.

9. In case of any disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Speaker (or chairman of the Committee of the Whole House,) shall have power to order the same to be cleared.—March 14, 1794.

OF THE CLERK AND OTHER OFFICERS.

10. There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until their successors are appointed, a Clerk, Sergeant-at-arms, Doorkeeper, and Postmaster, each of whom shall take an oath for the true and faithful discharge of the duties of his office, to the best of his knowledge and abilities, and to keep the secrets of the House; and the appointees of the Doorkeeper and Postmaster shall be subject to the approval of the Speaker; and, in all cases of election by the House of its officers, the vote shall be taken viva voce.—March 16, 1860.†

* On a very important question, taken December 9, 1803, on an amendment to the Constitution, so as to change the form of voting for President and Vice-President, which required a vote of two-thirds, there appeared eighty-three in the affirmative, and forty-two in the negative; it wanted one vote in the affirmative to make the constitutional majority. The Speaker, (Macon,) notwithstanding a prohibition in the rule as it then existed, claimed and obtained his right to vote, and voted in the affirmative; and it was by that vote that the amendment to the Constitution was carried. The right of the Speaker, as a member of the House, to vote on all questions is secured by the Constitution. No act of the House can take it from him when he chooses to exercise it.

† Until the adoption of this rule there was no law, resolution, rule, or order directing the appointment of the Clerk of the House. On the 1st of April, 1789, being the first day that a quorum of the House assembled under the

11. In all cases where other than members of the House may be eligible to an office by the election of the House, there shall be a previous nomination.—April 7, 1789.

12. In all other cases of ballot than for committees, a majority of the votes given shall be necessary to an election; and where there shall not be such a majority on the first ballot, the ballots shall be repeated until a majority be obtained.—April 7, 1789. And in all ballotings blanks shall be rejected, and not taken into the count in enumeration of votes, or reported by the tellers.—September 15, 1837.

13. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to make, and cause to be printed, and delivered to each member, at the commencement of every session of Congress, a list of the reports which it is the duty of any officer or department of the government to make to Congress; referring to the act or resolution, and page of the volume of the laws or journal in which it may be contained; and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required of him to be made, and the time when the report may be expected.—March 13, 1822.

14. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the House, at the end of each session, to send a printed copy of the journals thereof to the Executive, and to each branch of the legislature of every State.—November 13, 1794.

new Constitution, the House immediately elected a Clerk by ballot, without a previous order having been passed for that purpose; although in the case of a Speaker who was chosen on the same day, an order was previously adopted. A Clerk has been regularly chosen at the commencement of every Congress since. By the rules adopted in 1789, provision was made for the appointment of a Sergeant-at-arms and Doorkeeper. Immediately after the organization of the government under the present Constitution, a room was set apart in the Capitol for the reception and distribution of letters and packets to and from members of the House, without an order for that purpose, and was called the post office; it was superintended by the Doorkeeper and his assistants. On the 9th of April, 1814, a special allowance was made to the Doorkeeper to meet the expenses of this office. and he was authorized to appoint a Postmaster. The office continued on this footing till April 4, 1838, when an order was passed for the appointment of a Postmaster by the House itself. The provision for the election of all the officers of the House by a viva voce vote was adopted December 10, 1839.

15. All questions of order shall be noted by the Clerk, with the decision, and put together at the end of the journal of every session.—December 23, 1811.

16. The Clerk shall, within thirty days after the close of each session of Congress, cause to be completed the printing and primary distribution, to members and delegates, of the Journal of the House, together with an accurate index to the same.—June 18, 1832.

17. There shall be retained in the library of the Clerk's office, for the use of the members there, and not to be withdrawn therefrom, two copies of all the books and printed documents deposited in the library.—December 22, 1826.

18. The Clerk shall have preserved for each member of the House, an extra copy, in good binding, of all the documents printed by order of either house at each future session of Congress.—February 9, 1831.

19. The Clerk shall make a weekly statement of the resolutions and bills (Senate bills inclusive) upon the Speaker's table, accompanied with a brief reference to the orders and proceedings of the House upon each, and the date of such orders and proceedings; which statement shall be printed for the use of the members.—April 21, 1836.

20. The Clerk shall cause an index to be prepared to the acts passed at every session of Congress, and to be printed and bound with the acts.—July 4, 1832.*

21. All contracts, bargains, or agreements, relative to the furnishing any matter or thing, or for the performance of any labor for the House of Representatives, shall be made with the Clerk, or approved by him, before any allowance shall be made therefor by the Committee of Accounts.—January 30, 1846.

22. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-arms to attend the House during its sittings; to aid in the enforcement of order, under the direction of the Speaker;† to execute the

* The Clerk is relieved of this duty by the Joint Resolution of September 28, 1850, which authorizes Little & Brown to furnish their Annual Statutes at Large instead of the edition formerly issued by the order of the Secretary of State.

† The words in italics were inserted March 16, 1860.

commands of the House from time to time; together with all such process, issued by authority thereof, as shall be directed to him by the Speaker.—April 14, 1789.

23. The symbol of his office (the mace) shall be borne by the Sergeant-at-arms when in the execution of his office.—April 14, 1789.*

24. The fees of the Sergeant-at-arms shall be for every arrest, the sum of two dollars; for each day's custody and releasement, one dollar; and for travelling expenses for himself or a special messenger, going and returning, one-tenth of a dollar for each mile—April 14, 1789—necessarily and actually travelled by such officer or other person in the execution of such precept or summons.—March 19, 1860.

25. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-arms to keep the accounts for the pay and mileage of members, to prepare checks, and, if required to do so, to draw the money on such checks for the members, (the same being previously signed by the Speaker, and endorsed by the member,) and pay over the same to the member entitled thereto.—April 4, 1838.

26. The Sergeant-at-arms shall give bond, with surety, to the United States, in a sum not less than five nor more than ten thousand dollars, at the discretion of the Speaker, and with such surety as the Speaker may approve, faithfully to account for the money coming into his hands for the pay of members.—April 4, 1838.

27. The Doorkeeper shall execute strictly the 134th and 135th rules, relative to the privilege of the hall—March 1, 1838. And he shall be required at the commencement and close of each session of Congress to take an inventory of all the furniture, books, and other public property in the several committee and other rooms under his charge, and shall report the same to the House; which report shall be referred to the Committee on Accounts, who shall determine the amount for which he shall be held liable for missing articles.—March 2, 1865.

28. The Postmaster shall superintend the post office kept in the Capitol for the accommodation of the members.—April 4, 1838.

OF THE MEMBERS.

29. No member shall vote on any question in the event of which he is immediately and particularly interested,* or in any case where he was not within the bar of the House when the question was put.†—April 7, 1789. And when any member shall ask leave to vote, the Speaker shall propound to him the question, "Were you within the bar before the last name on the roll was called?" and if he shall answer in the negative the Speaker shall not further entertain the request of such member to vote: Provided, however, that any member who

*Of late, differences of opinion have occasionally arisen as to the kind of interest alluded to in this rule. It has been contended to apply to members who were merchants or manufacturers, or engaged in other business to be affected by tariffs or other bills touching rates of duties, &c. This construction has never been sustained by the House. The original construction, and the only true one, is direct personal or pecuniary interest.

† As originally adopted, the word present was used in this rule where the words "within the bar of the House" now appear. The alteration was made on the 14th September, 1837. By a decision of the House, at the 1st session of the thirty-fifth Congress, (see Journal, p. 337,) soon after its occupancy of the present hall, the "bar of the House" was defined to be "upon the floor of the hall, and not outside of any of the doors leading into it." And when interrogated as to his presence every member must answer the question for himself

30. Upon a division and count of the House on any question, no member without the bar shall be counted.—November 13, 1794.

31. Every member who shall be in the House when the question is put shall give his vote, unless the House shall excuse him.*—April 7, 1789. All motions to excuse a member from voting shall be made before the House divides, or before the call of the yeas and nays is commenced; and the question shall then be taken without debate.—September 14, 1837.†

32. The name of a member who presents a petition or memorial, or who offers a resolution to the consideration of the House, shall be inserted on the journals.—March 22, 1806.

33. No member shall absent himself from the service of the House, unless he have leave, or be sick or unable to attend.—April 13, 1789.

OF CALLS OF THE HOUSE.

34. Any fifteen members (including the Speaker, if there be one) shall be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members.—April 17, 1789.

35. Upon calls of the House, or in taking the yeas and nays on any question, the names of the members shall be called alphabetically.—April 7, 1789.

36. Upon the call of the House, the names of the members shall be called over by the Clerk, and the absentees noted; after which the names of the absentees shall again be called over; the doors shall then be shut, and those for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made may, by order of

ON MOTIONS, THEIR PRECEDENCE, ETC.

38. When a motion is made and seconded, it shall be stated by the Speaker; or, being in writing, it shall be handed to the chair and read aloud by the Clerk, before debated.—April 7, 1789.

39. Every motion shall be reduced to writing if the Speaker or any member desire it.—April 7, 1789. Every written motion made to the House shall be inserted on the journals, with the name of the member making it, unless it be withdrawn on the same day on which it was submitted.—March 26, 1806.

40. After a motion is stated by the Speaker, or read by the Clerk, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the House; but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment.—April 7, 1789.

41. When any motion or proposition is made, the question, 'Will the House now consider it?'' shall not be put unless it is demanded by some member, or is deemed necessary by the Speaker.—December 12, 1817.

* The rule, as originally established in relation to a call of the House, which was on the 13th of November, 1789, differed from the present rule in this: there was one day's notice to be given, and it required a vote of the House, and not fteen members, to order a member into custody. It was changed to its present orm on the 14th December, 1795. On the 7th January, 1802, it was changed ack to its original form, to require "an order of the House" to take absent embers into custody, and so remained until the 23d December, 1811, when it was again changed to what it is now—i. e., fifteen members.

42. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged*—March 13, 1822—and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill or proposition.

43. When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made, to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

The Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union; the Committee of the Whole House; a Standing Committee; a Select Committee.—March 13, 1822.

44. A motion to adjourn, and a motion to fix the day to which the House shall adjourn, shall be always in order†—April 7, 1789, and January 14, 1840; these motions, and the

* This rule, as originally established, April 7, 1789, read thus: "When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received unless to amend it, to commit it, for the previous question, or to adjourn." On the 13th November, 1794, the motion to postpone to a day certain was introduced next after the previous question. On the 17th December, 1805, the rule was changed as follows: 1st, the previous question; 2d, to postpone indefinitely; 3d, to postpone to a day certain; 4th, to lie; 5th, to commit; 6th, to amend; 7th, to adjourn. On the 23d December, 1811, the order was changed as follows: 1st, to adjourn; 2d, to lie; 3d, the previous question; 4th, to postpone indefinitely; 5th, to postpone to a day certain; 6th, to commit; 7th, to amend. On the 13th March, 1822, they were classed as above, and were declared, for the first time, to have precedence according to their arrangement; previous to which the notions of the Speaker often governed as to the precedence of these motions; and hence the direction of the rule.

† It has been decided and acted upon, that, under this rule, "a motion to fix the day to which the House shall adjourn" takes precedence of a motion to adjourn. The reason of this decision is, that, before the House adjourned, it was proper to fix the time to which it should adjourn. To this decision, and upon this reasoning, no objection has been made.

motion to lie on the table, shall be decided without debate.*—November 13, 1794; March 13, 1822.

45. The hour at which every motion to adjourn is made shall be entered on the journal.—October 9, 1837.

46. Any member may call for the division of a question. before or after the main question is ordered,† which shall be divided if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the House.—September 15, 1837. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible—December 23, 1811; but a motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.—March 13, 1822.

47. Motions and reports may be committed at the pleasure of the House.—April 7, 1789.

48. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.‡—March 13, 1822. No bill or resolution shall, at any time, be amended by annexing thereto, or incorporating therewith, any other bill or resolution pending before the House.§—September 15, 1837.

* In the first rules established by the House on the 7th April, 1789, it was directed that "when the House adjourns, the members shall keep their seats until the Speaker goes forth, and then the members shall follow." This rule was left out of the rules established 13th November, 1794. On the 13th March, 1822, a rule was adopted prohibiting a motion to adjourn before four o'clock if there was a pending question; it was rescinded on the 13th of March, 1824. On the 13th of March, 1822, a rule was also adopted against the rising of the Committee of the Whole before four o'clock, which was abrogated on the 25th of March, 1824.

† The words in italics were inserted in this rule March 16, 1860.

‡ This rule was originally established on the 7th April, 1789, and was in these words: "No new motion or proposition shall be admitted under color of amendment, as a substitute for the motion or proposition under debate." On the 13th March, 1822, it was changed to its present form, in which the words new and substitute do not appear.

§ The latter clause of this rule was adopted at the first session of the 25th

49. When a motion has been once made, and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member of the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof—January 7, 1802—on the same or succeeding day—December 23, 1811; and such motion shall take precedence of all other questions, except a motion to adjourn*—May 6, 1828—and shall not be withdrawn after the said succeeding day without the consent of the House; and thereafter any member may call it up for consideration.—March 2, 1848.

Congress; and as originally reported by the committee, the following words were contained at the end of it: "Nor by any proposition containing the substance, in whole or in part, of any other bill or resolution pending before the House." These words were stricken out by the House before it would agree to the rule; by which it would seem to be decided that a bill or resolution might be amended by incorporating therein the substance of any other bill or resolution before the House. Such has been the general practice of the House.

* A difference of opinion and a discrepancy in action have sometimes occurred in administering this rule. Twenty years ago, and previously, a motion to reconsider could not be made after the subject was disposed of, if there was another subject before the House, until that subject had passed away; it was then often too late to make the motion. It was under this practice that Mr. Randolph was unable to move a reconsideration of the settlement of the celebrated Missouri question, (notice of which he gave out of time,) as, before he could do so, the bill had been taken to the Senate. The practice of late years has been changed, so as to allow the motion to reconsider to be made at any moment within the prescribed time. If the motion be made when a different subject is before the House, it is entered, and remains until that subject is disposed of, and then "takes precedence of all other business, except a motion to adjourn." When any final vote has been taken, and a motion made to reconsider, that motion may be laid on the table; in which case, according to the practice of several years past, the vote stands as though the motion to reconsider had not been made. This is correct; as, if the House wished to retain the matter, it would agree to the motion to reconsider, instead of laying it on the table. Motions to reconsider should be promptly acted on, otherwise it is in the power of a single member (voting on the strong side against his sentiments, solely for the purpose of placing himself in a situation to make the motion) to arrest business which a majority have determined to despatch.

ORDER OF BUSINESS OF THE DAY.

51. As soon as the journal is read, and the unfinished business in which the House was engaged at the last preceding adjournment has been disposed of, reports from committees shall be called for and disposed of; in doing which the Speaker shall call upon each standing committee in regular order, and then upon select committees; and if the Speaker shall not get through the call upon the committees before the House passes to other business, he shall resume the next call where he left off—September 15, 1837—giving preference to the report last under consideration: Provided, That whenever any committee shall have occupied the morning hour on two days, it shall not be in order for such committee to report further until the other committees shall have been called in their turn*—December 7, 1857. On the call for reports from committees on each alternate Monday, which shall commence as soon as the journal is read, all bills reported during the first hour after the journal is read shall be committed, without debate, to the Committee of the Whole, and, together with their accompanying reports, printed; and if during the hour all the committees are not called, then, on the next alternate Monday, the Speaker shall commence where such call was suspended: Provided, That no bill reported under the call on alternate Mondays, and committed, shall be again brought before the House by a motion to reconsider.—March 16, 1860.†

* This proviso does not restrain the House from considering a report already made for a longer period than two days; simply prevents a committee from reporting further after occupying that period.

† This rule, as it originally stood, was materially amended in the revision of the rules at the 1st session of the 36th Congress, viz: so as to provide for the consideration of the unfinished business at the last adjournment immediately after the journal is read; so as to give preference to the report last under considera-

52. Reports from committees having been presented and disposed of, the Speaker shall call for resolutions from the members of each State and delegate from each Territory, beginning with Maine and the Territory last organized, alternately; and they shall not be debated on the very day of their being presented, nor on any day assigned by the House for the receipt of resolutions, unless where the House shall direct otherwise, but shall lie on the table, to be taken up in the order in which they were presented; and if on any day the whole of the States and Territories shall not be called, the Speaker shall begin on the next day where he left off the previous day: Provided, That no member shall offer more than one resolution, or one series of resolutions, all relating to the same subject, until all the States and Territories shall have been called.—January 14, 1829.

53. A proposition requesting information from the President of the United States, or directing it to be furnished by the head of either of the executive departments, or by the Postmaster General—shall lie on the table one day for consideration, unless otherwise ordered by the unanimous consent of the House—December 13, 1820—and all such propositions shall be taken up for consideration in the order they were presented, immediately after reports are called for from select committees, and when adopted, the Clerk shall cause the same to be delivered.—January 22, 1822.

54. After one hour shall have been devoted to reports from committees and resolutions, it shall be in order, pending the consideration or discussion thereof, to entertain a motion that the House do now proceed to dispose of the business on the Speaker's table, and to the orders of the day—January 5, 1832; which being decided in the affirmative, the Speaker shall dispose of the business on his table in the following order, viz:

1st. Messages and other Executive communications.

2d. Messages from the Senate, and amendments proposed by the Senate to bills of the House.

3d. Bills and resolutions from the Senate on their first and second reading, that they be referred to committees and put under way; but if, on being read a second time, no motion being made to commit, they are to be ordered to their third reading, unless objection be made; in which case, if not otherwise ordered by a majority of the House, they are to be laid on the table in the general file of bills on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in their turn.

4th. Engrossed bills and bills from the Senate on their third reading.

5th. Bills of the House and from the Senate, on the Speaker's table, on their engrossment, or on being ordered to a third reading, to be taken up and considered in the order of time in which they passed to a second reading.

The messages, communications, and bills on his table having been disposed of, the Speaker shall then proceed to call the orders of the day.—September 14, 1837.

55. The business specified in the 54th and 130th rules shall be done at no other part of the day, except by permission of the House.—December 23, 1811.

56. The consideration of the unfinished business in which the House may be engaged at an adjournment shall be resumed as soon as the journal of the next day is read, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of; and if, from any cause, other business shall intervene, it shall be resumed as soon as such other business is disposed of. And the consideration of all other unfinished business shall be resumed whenever the class of business to which it belongs shall be in order under the rules.—March 18, 1860.*

OF DECORUM AND DEBATE.

57. When any member is about to speak in debate, or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker"—April 7, 1789—and shall confine himself to the question under debate, and avoid personality.—December 23, 1811.

58. Members may address the House or committee from the Clerk's desk, or from a place near the Speaker's chair.

59. When two or more members happen to rise at once, the Speaker shall name the member who is first to speak.—April 7, 1789.

60. No member shall occupy more than one hour in debate on any question in the House, or in committee; but a member reporting the measure under consideration from a committee may open and close the debate: provided that where debate is closed by order of the House, any member shall be allowed, in committee, five minutes to explain any amendment he may offer—December 18, 1847—after which any member who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed to speak five minutes in opposition to it, and there shall be no further debate on the amendment; but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to the amendment; and neither the amendment nor an amendment to the amendment shall be withdrawn by the mover thereof, unless by the unanimous consent of the committee.—August 14, 1850: Provided, further, That the House may, by that "the unfinished business in which the House was engaged at the last preceding adjournment shall have preference in the orders of the day; and no motion on any other business shall be received, without special leave of the House, until the former is disposed of." The object of the new rule was to give the unfinished business a more certain, as well as highly privileged position. According to the construction given this rule, the unfinished business on private bill days is not resumed until the next private bill day, and the first hour after the reading of the journal on Monday is devoted to the objects contemplated by the 51st and 130th rules.

61. If any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgress the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call to order; in which case, the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the House shall, if appealed to, decide on the case, but without debate;† if there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to. If the decision be in favor of the member called to order, he shall be at liberty to proceed; if otherwise, he shall not be permitted to proceed, in case any member object, without leave of the House;‡ and if the case require it, he shall be liable to the censure of the House.—April 7, 1789, and March 13, 1822.

62. If a member be called to order for words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall repeat the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's table; and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to the censure of the House, for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken, or other business has intervened, after the words spoken, and before exception to them shall have been taken.—September 14, 1837.

63. No member shall speak more than once to the same question without leave of the House—April 7, 1789—unless

* This proviso was adopted so as to enable a majority to get a bill out of Committee of the Whole after a reasonable time has been occupied in debating amendments, and was reported at the same time with an amendment to the 123d rule, the effect of which was to prevent a practice of doubtful propriety by which the friends of a bill were in the habit of taking it out of Committee of the Whole by adopting a recommendation to strike out the enacting clause.

† See rule 2, with note appended to it.

‡ That part of this rule which is printed in italics was adopted on the 13th March, 1822, with the exception of the words "in case any member object," which were inserted on the 14th September, 1837.

64. If a question depending be lost by adjournment of the House, and revived on the succeeding day, no member who shall have spoken on the preceding day shall be permitted again to speak without leave.*—April 7, 1789.

65. While the Speaker is putting any question, or addressing the House, none shall walk out of or across the House; nor in such case, or when a member is speaking, shall enter tain private discourse; nor while a member is speaking, shall pass between him and the Chair.—April 7, 1789. Every member shall remain uncovered during the session of the House.—September 14, 1837. No member or other person shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while the ayes and noes are calling, or ballots are counting.—September 14, 1837.

66. All questions relating to the priority of business to be acted on shall be decided without debate.—February 21, 1803.

OF COMMITTEES.

67. All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker, unless otherwise specially directed by the House, in which case they shall be appointed by ballot;† and if upon such ballot the number required shall not be elected by a majority of the votes

* There is no proceeding in the House to which this rule can be applied. It was originally framed in reference to that law of Parliament which says that all pending questions are lost by adjournment, and to be again considered must be moved anew. In the rules as revised and established on the 7th January 1802, the prohibition to speak on the next day was confined to those who had spoken twice on the preceding day. It so remained until the 14th January 1840, when the word twice was left out.

† The rule as originally adopted, April 17, 1789, directed that the Speaker should appoint all committees, unless the number was directed to consist of more than three members; in which case, the ballot was to be resorted to.

given the House shall proceed to a second ballot, in which a plurality of votes shall prevail; and in case a greater number than is required to compose or complete a committee shall have an equal number of votes, the House shall proceed to a further ballot or ballots.—January 13, 1790.

68. The first named member of any committee shall be the chairman; and in his absence, or being excused by the House, the next named member, and so on, as often as the case shall happen, unless the committee, by a majority of their number, elect a chairman.*—December 28, 1805.

69. Any member may excuse himself from serving on any committee at the time of his appointment, if he is then a member of two other committees.—April 13, 1789.

70. It shall be the duty of a committee to meet on the call of any two of its members, if the chairman be absent, or decline to appoint such meeting.—December 20, 1805.

71. The several standing committees of the House shall have leave to report by bill or otherwise.—March 13, 1822.

* The occasion of this rule was this: Mr. John Cotton Smith, of Connecticut, had been chairman of the Committee of Claims for several years, and on the 5th November, 1804, was reappointed. On the succeeding day he was excused from service on the committee, and his colleague, Samuel W. Dana, was appointed "in his stead." The committee considered Mr. Dana its chairman: he declined to act, contending that he was the tail. Being unable to agree, the committee laid the case before the House on the 20th November. Up to this time there was no rule or regulation as to the head of a committee. The usage had been that the first named member acted; but it was usage only. The subject was referred to a committee. On the 22d November, 1804, the committee reported, and recommended that the first named member be the chairman; and in case of his absence, or of his being excused by the House, the committee should appoint a chairman by a majority of its votes. The House rejected this proposition. The Committee of Claims the next day notified the House that, unless some order was taken in the premises, no business could be done by the committee during the session; and thereupon, on the 20th December, 1805, the House adopted the above rule. In this case the Committee of Claims availed itself of the privilege contained in the last clause of the rule, and elected Mr. Dana chairman, much against his wishes.

72. No committee shall sit during the sitting of the House without special leave.—November 13, 1794.

73. No committee shall be permitted to employ a clerk at the public expense, without first obtaining leave of the House for that purpose.—December 14, 1838.

74. Thirty-one standing committees shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress,* viz:

A Committee of Elections.—Nov. 13, 1789.
A Committee of Ways and Means.—Jan. 7, 1802.
A Committee on Appropriations.—March 2, 1865.
A Committee on Banking and Currency.—March 2, 1865.
A Committee on the Pacific Railroad.—March 2, 1865.
A Committee of Claims.—Nov. 13, 1794.*
A Committee on Commerce.—Dec. 14, 1795.†
A Committee on Public Lands.—Dec. 17, 1805.‡
A Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.—Nov. 9, 1808.§

} To consist of nine members each.

* Prior to the revision of the rules, in March, 1860, it was provided that the standing committees should be appointed at the commencement of each session. At the said revision the Committee on Engraving was abolished, and its duties transferred to the House members of the Committee on Public Printing.—(See Rule 100.) Originally the Committee of Claims was charged with revolutionary and land claims, and all sorts of pensions. On the 22d December, 1813, the duties of that committee were divided, and a committee was appointed called the Committee on Pensions and Revolutionary Claims. On the 9th of December, 1825, a separate committee on Revolutionary Pensions was created, leaving the business of Invalid pensions to the committee created on the 22d December, 1813. On the 13th December, 1825, four days after its institution, the designation of the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions was changed to the Committee on Military Pensions, and it was charged with both revolutionary and invalid pensions. On the 10th January, 1831, the Committee on Military Pensions became the present Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, and an additional committee was created called the Committee on Invalid Pensions; and the pension business was apportioned to the two committees, as set out in the duties assigned to the committees.

† This committee was originally a Committee on Commerce and Manufactures. On the 8th December, 1819, a Committee on Manufactures was constituted, but no duties have been assigned to that committee in the rules.

‡ The 3d of January, 1805, was the first time at which it was proposed to appoint a Committee on Public Lands. The proposition was then made by Mr. John Boyle, of Kentucky, and was rejected. On the 17th December, 1805, the committee was constituted for the first time. Previous to that day the business relating to the lands of the United States was either sent to the Committee of Claims or to a select committee, and frequently in parts to both.

On the 16th March, 1860, a Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department was created. The duties assigned to the several committees would seem entirely to cover the duties of the Committee on Public Expenditures. (See rules 102 and 103.)

97. It shall be the duty of the Committee of Revisal and Unfinished Business to examine and report what laws have expired, or are near expiring, and require to be revived or further continued; also to examine and report, from the Journal of last session, all such matters as were then depending and undetermined.—December 14, 1795.

98. It shall be the duty of the Committee of Accounts to superintend and control the expenditures of the contingent fund of the House of Representatives—December 17, 1805; also to audit and settle all accounts which may be charged thereon.—December 23, 1811.

There shall be *referred by the Clerk to the members of the Committee on Printing on the part of the House, all drawings, maps, charts, or other papers, which may at any time come before the House for engraving, lithographing, or publishing in any way; which committee shall report to the House whether the same ought, in their opinion, to be published; and if the House order the publication of the same, that said committee shall direct the size and manner of execution of all such maps, charts, drawings, or other papers, and contract by agreement, in writing, for all such engraving, lithographing, printing, drawing, and coloring, as may be ordered by the House; which agreement, in writing, shall be furnished by said committee to the Committee of Accounts, to govern said committee in all allowances for such works, and it shall be in order for said committee to report at all times.—March 16, 1844.

101. It shall be in order for the Committee on Enrolled Bills—March 13, 1822—and the Committee on Printing to report at any time.—March 16, 1860.

102. Seven additional standing committees shall be appointed at the commencement of the first session in each Congress, whose duties shall continue until the first session of the ensuing Congress.—March 30, 1816.

To consist of five members each.

1. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Department of State;

2. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Treasury Department;

* So much of this rule as is printed in italics was inserted on the 19th of March, 1860, and so much of the rule of March 16, 1844, as imposed these duties upon the Committee on Engraving was stricken out, thereby abolishing the latter committee.

3. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Department of War;

4. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Department of the Navy;

5. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Post Office;

7. A committee on so much of the public accounts and expenditures as relates to the Interior Department.*

103. It shall be the duty of the said committees to examine into the state of the accounts and expenditures respectively submitted to them, and to inquire and report particularly—

Whether the expenditures of the respective departments are justified by law;

Whether the claims from time to time satisfied and discharged by the respective departments are supported by sufficient vouchers, establishing their justness both as to their character and amount;

Whether such claims have been discharged out of funds appropriated therefor, and whether all moneys have been disbursed in conformity with appropriation laws; and

Whether any, and what, provisions are necessary to be adopted, to provide more perfectly for the proper application of the public moneys, and to secure the government from demands unjust in their character or extravagant in their amount.

And it shall be, moreover, the duty of the said committees to report, from time to time, whether any, and what, retrenchment can be made in the expenditures of the several departments, without detriment to the public service; whether any, and what, abuses at any time exist in the failure to enforce the payment of moneys which may be due to the United States from public defaulters or others; and to report, from time to time, such provisions and arrangements as may be necessary to add to the economy of the several departments and the accountability of their officers.—March 30, 1816.

It shall be the duty of the several committees on public expenditures to inquire whether any offices belonging to the branches or departments, respectively, concerning whose expenditures it is their duty to inquire, have become useless or unnecessary; and to report, from time to time, on the expediency of modifying or abolishing the same; also, to examine into the pay and emoluments of all offices under the laws of the United States; and to report, from time to time, such a reduction or increase thereof as a just economy and the public service may require.—February 19, 1817.

OF COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE.

104. The House may at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, suspend the rules and orders for the purpose of going into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union; and also for providing for the discharge of the Committee of the Whole House, and the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union—January 25, 1848; from the further consideration of any bill referred to it, after acting without debate on all amendments pending and that may be offered.*—March 11, 1844.

105. In forming a Committee of the Whole House, the Speaker shall leave his chair, and a chairman, to preside in committee, shall be appointed by the Speaker.†—April 7, 1789.

*In the re-arrangement of the rules under the resolutions of the House of March 16, 1860, this rule was separated from the 145th rule, of which it had previously formed a part.

†Originally the rule was silent as to the mode of appointing a chairman of the Committee of the Whole. He was appointed by the House by nomination and vote thereon. That practice became very inconvenient; and on the 13th November, 1794, the rule was amended by adding "by the Speaker." By rule 9, the chairman has power, in case of any disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, to order the same to be cleared.

106. Whenever the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, or the Committee of the Whole House, finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall cause the roll of the House to be called, and thereupon the committee shall rise, and the chairman shall report the name of the absentees to the House, which shall be entered on the journal.—December 18, 1847.

107. Upon bills committed to a Committee of the Whole House, the bill shall be first read throughout by the Clerk, and then again read and debated by clauses, leaving the preamble to be last considered; the body of the bill shall not be defaced or interlined; but all amendments, noting the page and line, shall be duly entered by the Clerk on a separate paper, as the same shall be agreed to by the committee, and so reported to the House.* After report, the bill shall again be subject to be debated and amended by clauses, before a question to engross it be taken.—April 17, 1789.

108. All amendments made to an original motion in committee shall be incorporated with the motion, and so reported.—April 7, 1789.

109. All amendments made to a report committed to a Committee of the Whole House shall be noted, and reported as in the case of bills.—April 7, 1789.

110. No motion or proposition for a tax or charge upon the people shall be discussed the day on which it is made or offered, and every such proposition shall receive its first discussion in a Committee of the Whole House.—November 13, 1794.

111. No sum or quantum of tax or duty, voted by a Committee of the Whole House, shall be increased in the House until the motion or proposition for such increase shall be first discussed and voted in a Committee of the Whole House; and so in respect to the time of its continuance.—November 13, 1794.

*This refers to bills in manuscript and bills from the Senate. It was long after the date of this rule that the practice of printing the bills obtained.

112. All proceedings touching appropriations of money shall be first discussed in a Committee of the Whole House.*—November 13, 1794.

113. The rules of proceedings in the House shall be observed in a Committee of the Whole House, so far as they may be applicable, except the rule limiting the times of speaking—April 7, 1789; but no member shall speak twice to any question until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken.—December 18, 1805.

114. In Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, the bills shall be taken up and disposed of in their order on the calendar; but when objection is made to the consideration of a bill, a majority of the committee shall decide, without debate, whether it shall be taken up and disposed of, or laid aside: provided, that general appropriation bills, and, in time of war, bills for raising men or money, and bills concerning a treaty of peace, shall be preferred to all other bills, at the discretion of the committee; and when demanded by any member, the question shall first be put in regard to them—July 27, 1848; and all debate on special orders shall be confined strictly to the measure under consideration.—March 16, 1860.†

OF BILLS.

115. Every bill shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by motion for leave. In the latter case, at least one day's notice shall be given of the motion‡ in the

* This rule, as first adopted, required all proceedings touching appropriations of money to be first moved in Committee of the Whole. The word "moved" was struck out on the 17th December, 1805, as it was found in practice greatly to retard public business.

† This amendment was adopted for the purpose of reforming to some extent the practice which had previously prevailed in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, of indulging in general debate without regard to the measure under consideration.

‡ In the early stages of the government, before the institution of standing committees. it was the common practice to introduce bills, on motion for leave,

House, or by filing a memorandum thereof with the Clerk, and having it entered on the journal; and the motion shall be made, and the bill introduced, if leave is given, when resolutions are called for;* such motion, or the bill when introduced, may be committed.—April 7, 1789; September 15, 1837; and March 2, 1838.

116. Every bill shall receive three several readings in the House previous to its passage; and bills shall be despatched in order as they were introduced, unless where the House shall direct otherwise; but no bill shall be twice read on the same day, without special order of the House.—April 7, 1789.

117. The first reading of a bill shall be for information, and, if opposition be made to it, the question shall be, "Shall this bill be rejected?" If no opposition be made, or if the question to reject be negatived, the bill shall go to its second reading without a question.†—April 7, 1789.

118. Upon the second reading of a bill, the Speaker shall state it as ready for commitment or engrossment; and, if committed, then a question shall be, whether to a select or by individual members; the bills were then referred to a select committee, to examine and report upon. The practice, however, of introducing bills by members on leave, gradually grew into disuse as standing committees were created, and, for nearly thirty years, no case occurs on the journals. Within a few years past the practice has been revived and has now become very common, but it is, nevertheless, a very inconvenient one, and does not facilitate business. Previous to the 13th March, 1822, so strict was the House upon the introduction of bills, that standing committees had to obtain leave, in every case, to report by bill. On that day the 71st rule was adopted.

* See rule 130.

† If no opposition be made to a bill, or if the question to reject be negatived, and the bill receives its second reading forthwith, (as is usual,) it is always understood that it is by "special order of the House." In the rapid and hurried manner in which bills are now reported and acted upon, the motion is seldom or never made, nor is the question put, "Shall the bill be now read a second time?" The Speaker takes it for granted that the motion has been made and allowed, and announces the second reading as soon as the first reading is completed.

standing committee, or to a Committee of the Whole House; if to a Committee of the Whole House, the House shall determine on what day—November 13, 1794; if no motion be made to commit, the question shall be stated on its engrossment; and if it be not ordered to be engrossed on the day of its being reported, it shall be placed on the general file on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in order.—September 14, 1837. But if the bill be ordered to be engrossed, the House shall appoint the day when it shall be read the third time.—November 13, 1794.

119. General appropriation bills shall be in order in preference to any other bills of a public nature unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the House.—September 14, 1837.

And the House may, at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, make any of the general appropriation bills a special order.—March 16, 1860.*

120. No appropriation shall be reported in such general appropriation bills, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law—September 14, 1837—unless in continuation of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress, and for the contingencies for carrying on the several departments of the government.—March 13, 1838.

121. Upon the engrossment of any bill making appropriations of money for works of internal improvement of any kinp or description, it shall be in the power of any member to call for a division of the question, so as to take a separate vote of the House upon each item of improvement or appropriation contained in said bill, or upon such items separately, and others collectively, as the members making the call may specify; and if one-fifth of the members present second said call, it shall be the duty of the Speaker to make such divisions

* This latter provision was inserted in the 145th rule March 16, 1860, but in the re-arrangement under the resolution of that date it was deemed more appropriate to annex it to this rule. By rule 114 all debate on special orders is confined strictly to the measure under consideration of the question, and put them to vote accordingly.—February 26, 1846.

122. The bills from the Court of Claims shall, on being laid before the House, be read a first and second time, committed to a Committee of the Whole House, and, together with the accompanying reports, printed.—March 16, 1860.

123. A motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend; and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection.—March 13, 1822. Whenever a bill is reported from a Committee of the Whole, with a recommendation to strike out the enacting words, and such recommendation is disagreed to by the House, the bill shall stand recommitted to the said committee without further action by the House.—March 16, 1860.*

124. After commitment and report thereof to the House, or at any time before its passage, a bill may be recommitted.—April 7, 1789; and should such recommitment take place after its engrossment, and an amendment be reported and agreed to by the House, the question shall be again put on the engrossment of the bill.—March 16, 1860.†

125. All bills ordered to be engrossed shall be executed in a fair round hand.—April 7, 1789.

* This latter clause was inserted for the purpose of correcting a practice which had begun to obtain, whereby the friends of a bill were enabled, by striking out the enacting clause, to cut off debate and amendment and take a bill back into the House and there pass it. At the same time, however, an amendment was made to the 60th rule, whereby a majority is enabled, "at any time after the five minutes' debate has taken place upon proposed amendments to any paragraph or section of a bill, to close all debate upon such section or paragraph, or, at their election, upon the pending amendments only."

† Of late years, according to the practice, if the previous question on its passage be pending or ordered, a motion to recommit is not in order. The latter clause of this rule was adopted, for the first time, March 16, 1860, previous to which there had been no fixed rule in regard to the case therein provided for.

126. No amendment by way of rider shall be received to any bill on its third reading.—April 8, 1814.

127. When a bill shall pass, it shall be certified by the Clerk, noting the day of its passage at the foot thereof.—April 7, 1789.

LOCAL OR PRIVATE BUSINESS.

128. Friday and Saturday in every week shall be set apart for the consideration of private bills and private business, in preference to any other, unless otherwise determined by a majority of the House.—January 22, 1810, and January 26, 1826.*

129. On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month the calendar of private bills shall be called over, (the chairman of the Committee of the Whole House commencing the call where he left off the previous day,) and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of.—January 25, 1839. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members.—March 16, 1860.†

OF BILLS ON LEAVE AND RESOLUTIONS.

130. All the States and Territories shall be called for bills on leave and resolutions on each alternate Monday during

* Under the rule of 26th April, 1828, relative to a postponement or chagen of the order of business, it has been decided that it takes two-thirds to proceed to public business on Friday and Saturday. The reason of this decision is, that the rule of the 26th of April, 1828, made no exception in favor of the clause for a majority, contained in this rule; and that therefore that provision was annulled. There have been three appeals upon this point, but the House in all instances affirmed the decision in favor of two-thirds.

† The rule of January 25th, 1839, simply provided for calling over the calendar on the first and fourth Friday; the words "and Saturday" were added on the 16th March, 1860. The latter branch of the rule, which provides that upon a second call at least five members shall object, was adopted at the same time.

each session of Congress; and, if necessary to secure the object on said days, all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion, under the rules of the House already established; and the whole of said days shall be appropriated to bills on leave and resolutions, until all the States and Territories are called through.—February 6, 1838. And the Speaker shall first call the States and Territories for bills on leave; and all bills so introduced during the first hour after the journal is read shall be referred, without debate, to their appropriate committees: Provided, however, That a bill so introduced and referred shall not be brought back into the House upon a motion to reconsider.—March 16, 1860.*

OF PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

131. Members having petitions and memorials to present, may hand them to the Clerk, indorsing the same with their names, and the reference or disposition to be made thereof; and such petitions and memorials shall be entered on the journal, subject to the control and direction of the Speaker; and if any petition or memorial be so handed in, which, in the judgment of the Speaker, is excluded by the rules, the same shall be returned to the member from whom it was received.—March 29, 1842.†

* The words "bills on leave" where they occur were inserted in this rule on the 16th March, 1860. And so also the latter branch of the rule. By rule 115 it is required that at least one day's notice shall be given of the motion to introduce a bill on leave.

† So much of the rules as authorized the presentation of petitions in the House was stricken out December 12, 1853. According to the practice under this rule it is competent for a member to withdraw from the files petitions and memorials presented at a former Congress, and re-refer them.

OF THE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

132. The previous question* shall be in this form: "Shall ə main question be now put?"—April 7, 1789. It shall ly be admitted when demanded by a majority of the mem- rs present.—February 24, 1812; and its effects shall be to t an end to all debate, and to bring the House to a direct te upon a motion to commit, if such motion shall have en made; and if this motion does not prevail, then upon ıendments reported by a committee, if any; then—August 1848—upon pending amendments, and then upon the ain question.—January 14, 1840. But its only effect, if a ɔtion to postpone is pending, shall be to bring the House a vote upon such motion. Whenever the House shall fuse to order the main question, the consideration of the bject shall be resumed as though no motion for the pre-

* The previous question was recognized in the rules established April 7, 1879, l could be demanded by five members, (the parliamentary law places it in power of two members—one to move, the other to second.) On the 23d cemb er, 1811, it was placed on a footing with the yeas and nays; that is, at command of one-fifth of the members present. It remained so until the 24th bruary, 1812, when the rule was changed to its present form of a majority. cording to former practice, the previous question brought the House to a ect vote on the main question; that is, to agree to the main proposition, to exclusion of all amendments and incidental motions; but on the 14th January, 40, it was changed to embrace, first, pending amendments, and then the main position.

The original intent of the previous question was, to ascertain the sense of House, in the early stages of a subject, as to the propriety of entertaining matter; and if decided affirmatively, the debate went on; if decided neg- vely, the debate ceased, and the subject passed from before the House with- t motion or further question. This was the practice in Congress under the nfederation; and it is still the practice in the British Parliament. Now, by practice of the House, as well as by the terms of the rule, it is reversed: the motion for the previous question is decided in the affirmative, debate ases, and the House proceeds to vote; if in the negative, the proceedings go as if the motion for the previous question had not been made. Until the vision of the rules in March, 1860, whenever the previous question was sec- ded, and the main question ordered, pending a motion to postpone, the tion to postpone was cut off.

vious question had been made. The House may also, at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill. A call of the House* shall not be in order after the previous question is seconded, unless it shall appear, upon an actual count by the speaker, that no quorum is present.—March 16, 1860.

133. On a previous question there shall be no debate.—December 17, 1805. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion, is made for the previous question and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.—September 15, 1837.

OF ADMISSION ON THE FLOOR.

134. No person except members of the Senate, their secretary, heads of departments, the President's private secretary, foreign ministers, the governor for the time being of any State, senators and representatives elect, and judges of the Supreme Court of the United States and of the Court of Claims, shall be admitted within the Hall of the House of Representatives.—March 19, 1860.† Or any of the rooms upon the same floor or leading into the same.—March 2, 1865.

* For the mode of proceeding in the case of a call of the House, see rules 36 and 37.

† The first rule for the admission within the Hall of other than members was adopted on the 7th January, 1802, and was confined to "Senators, officers of the general and State governments, foreign ministers, and such persons as members might introduce." On the 11th January, 1802, an attempt was made to amend so as to exclude persons "introduced by members," which failed. On the 8th November, 1804, a proposition was made to confine the privilege to Senators, which also failed. On the 17th December, 1805, officers of State governments were excluded. On the 1st February, 1808, a proposition was made to admit ex-members of Congress and the judges of the Supreme Court. After a good deal of debate it was rejected. On the 11th February, 1809, the rule was enlarged so as to admit judicial officers of the United States as also ex-members of Congress. On the 25th February, 1814, those who had

OF REPORTERS.

135. Stenographers and reporters, other than the official reporters of the House, wishing to take down the debates, may be admitted by the Speaker to the reporters' gallery over the Speaker's chair, but not on the floor of the House; but no person shall be allowed the privilege of said gallery under the character of stenographer or reporter without a written permission of the Speaker, specifying the part of said gallery assigned to him; nor shall said stenographer or reporter be admitted to said gallery unless he shall state in writing for what paper or papers he is employed to report; nor shall he be so admitted, or, if admitted, be suffered to retain his seat, if he shall be or become an agent to prosecute any claim pending before Congress; and the Speaker shall give his written permission with this condition.—December 23, 1857.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS OF THE SESSION.

136. After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions,* and reports which originated in the House, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined, shall been heads of departments were admitted. On the 10th February, 1815, officers who had received the thanks of Congress were included. On the 12th January, 1816, the navy commissioners. On the 21st February, 1816, governors of States and Territories. March 13, 1822, the President's secretary. On the 26th January, 1833, the rule was further enlarged by admitting "such persons as the Speaker or a member might introduce;" and on the 10th December, 1833, the House, by a vote almost unanimous, rescinded that amendment. On the 23d of December, 1857, soon after removing into the new hall in the south wing of the Capitol Extension, the privilege of admission was restricted to "members of the Senate, their secretary, heads of departments, President's private secretary, the governor for the time being of any State, and judges of the Supreme Court of the United States." On the 19th of March, 1860, it was adopted in its present form, excepting the last clause, a proposition to admit ex-members having been ejected. The last clause, adopted March 2, 1865, was intended to prevent persons not entitled to the privilege of the hall from occupying the cloak and other adjoining rooms.

And when the Speaker, or any other member, shall inform the House that he has communications to make which he conceives ought to be kept secret, the House shall, in like manner, be cleared till the communication be made; the House shall then determine whether the matter communicated requires secrecy or not, and take order accordingly.—February 17, 1792, and December 30, 1793.

* Prior to this date it had been the practice for several years, near the close of the first session of a Congress, for the House to adopt a resolution making a similar provision. This amendment was adopted to save the necessity for the passage of a similar resolution at every Congress.

† In the rule as originally established, on the 17th of February, 1792, it is provided that the House be cleared of all persons, except "the members and the Clerk." In the rules of the 13th of November, 1794, the language used is "the members of the House and its officers." In the edition of 7th January, 1802, the terms "members and Clerk" are again used, and on the 23d December, 1811, it was changed to its present form, so as to include the Sergeant-at-arms and Doorkeeper. By rule 10 it is provided that the Clerk, Sergeant-at-arms, Doorkeeper, and Postmaster, shall be sworn "to keep the secrets of the House."

140. No extra compensation shall be allowed to any officer or messenger, page, laborer, or other person in the service of the House, or engaged in or about the public grounds or buildings; and no person shall be an officer of the House, or continue in its employment, who shall be an agent for the prosecution of any claim against the government, or be interested in such claim otherwise than an original claimant; and it shall be the duty of the Committee of Accounts to inquire into and report to the House any violation of this rule.—March 8, 1842.

141. When the reading of a paper is called for, and the same is objected to by any member, it shall be determined by a vote of the House.†—November 13, 1794.

142. When a question is postponed indefinitely, the same shall not be acted upon again during the session.—December 17, 1805.

146. All elections of officers of the House, including the Speaker, shall be conducted in accordance with these rules, so far as the same are applicable; and, pending the election of a Speaker, the Clerk shall preserve order and decorum, and shall decide all questions of order that may arise, subject to appeal to the House.—March 19, 1860.

147. These rules shall be the rules of the House of Representatives of the present and succeeding Congresses unless otherwise ordered.—March 19, 1860.

14. Each house shall transmit to the other all papers on which any bill or resolution shall be founded.—June 10, 1790.

21. After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of Congress, all bills, resolutions, or reports which originated in either house, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined in either house, shall be resumed and acted on in the same manner as if an adjournment had not taken place.—August 14, 1848.

22. When, during the present rebellion, any member of the Senate or House of Representatives shall rise, and in his place state that the President desires the immediate action of Congress upon any matter pertaining to the suppression of the present rebellion, the galleries of the house in which the statement is made shall be immediately cleared, and after such member shall state the action desired by the President, and the reasons for immediate action, such house shall determine without debate whether the proposed measure shall be considered. If decided in the affirmative, debate shall be confined to the subject-matter, and be limited to five minutes by any member: Provided, That any member shall be allowed five minutes to explain or oppose any pertinent amendment: And provided, That this rule shall not affect the operation of the previous question in the House of Representatives. If, upon the reading of any such certificate by the tellers, any question shall arise in regard to counting the votes therein certified, the same having been stated by the presiding officer, the Senate shall thereupon withdraw, and said question shall be submitted to that body for its decision; and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall, in like manner, submit said question to the House of Representatives for its decision. And no question shall be decided affirmatively, and no vote objected to shall be counted, except by the concurrent votes of the two houses; which being obtained, the two houses shall immediately reassemble, and the presiding officer shall then announce the decision of the question submitted; and upon any such question there shall be no debate in either house. And any other question pertinent to the object for which the two houses are assembled may be submitted and determined in like manner.

DIGEST OF THE RULES

OF THE

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.,

THE

AND

OF SO MUCH OF JEFFERSON'S MANUAL AS UNDER THE RULES GOVERNS THE HOUSE; OF PRECEDENTS OF ORDER AND USAGES OF THE HOUSE; TOGETHER WITH SUCH PORTIONS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES, LAWS OF CONGRESS, AND RESOLUTIONS OF THE HOUSE AS RELATE TO THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE HOUSE, AND THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF ITS MEMBERS.

COMPILED AND PUBLISHED BY

JOHN M. BARCLAY,

JOURNAL CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.

ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY.

WASHINGTON:

1865–6.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.,
March 3, 1865.

Resolved, In view of the numerous and material amendments made to the Rules at the present Congress, that John M. Barclay be authorized to furnish a new edition of his "Digest" for the use of the House of Representatives at the next Congress, to embrace the said amendments and decisions of questions of order, &c., to the close of the present Congress, the same to be furnished in the same manner and on the same terms as heretofore; and that the surplus copies of said Digest, Rules, and Manual now on hand in the Clerk's office be furnished to the members of the present House for distribution.

Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1865, by J. M. BARCLAY,
In the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Columbia.

BARCLAY'S DIGEST

OF THE

RULES AND PRACTICE

OF THE

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.

ABSENCE FROM THE HOUSE.

Prohibited, unless by leave or from inability to attend.

"No member shall absent himself from the service of the House, unless he have leave, or be sick or unable to attend."—Rule 33.

Less than a quorum may be authorized to compel attendance.

"A smaller number than a quorum may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide."—Const., 1, 5, 8.

Fifteen members authorized to compel attendance.

"Any fifteen members (including the Speaker, if there be one) shall be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members."—Rule 34.

Proceedings in case of.

For mode of proceeding in case of the absence of members, see CALLS OF THE HOUSE.

Deduction from compensation for.

By the Act of August 16, 1856, it is made the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to deduct from the monthly payments of members the amount of his compensation for each day that such member shall be absent from the House, unless such member shall assign as the reason for such absence the sickness of himself or of some member of his family.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, p. 49.

Valid excuse for.

By the Joint Resolution of July 17, 1862, active employment in military service for the suppression of the rebellion without pay, is declared to be a valid excuse for absence from duty in Congress. And it is further declared that when any Senator or Representative shall hereafter withdraw from his seat in anticipation of the adjournment of Congress and before the adjournment and does not return, he shall, in addition to the sum now deducted for each day, forfeit a further sum equal to the mileage now allowed by law for his return home, and it shall be deducted from his compensation, unless where said withdrawal is with the leave of the Senate or House of Representatives.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 628.

Further deduction from compensation for, without leave.

ABSENCE FROM COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE.

When no quorum by reason of, roll to be called.

"Whenever the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, or the Committee of the Whole House, finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall cause the roll of the House to be called, and thereupon the committee shall rise, and the chairman shall report the names of the absentees to the House, which shall be entered on the Journal."—Rule 106. [As soon as the roll call is completed, the practice is for the chairman immediately to vacate the chair, and consequently to report as absentees all such as failed to answer to their names when called.]

ACCOUNTS, COMMITTEE OF.

Its number, and when appointed.

This committee, to consist of five members, is directed to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.—Rule 74.

Duties of.

Its duty is to superintend and control the expenditures of the contingent fund of the House, also to audit and settle all accounts which may be charged thereon.—Rule 98. And it is made its further duty by Rule 140, to inquire into and report to the House any violation of the said rule in regard to the allowance of extra compensation to employés of the House, or their being interested in claims against the government. And by Rule 27 the said committee is directed to determine the amount for which the Doorkeeper shall be liable for articles missing from the committee and other rooms under his charge.

ACCOUNTS FOR PAY AND MILEAGE.

(See COMPENSATION.)

ACTS AND ADDRESSES.

Acts and addresses shall be signed by the Speaker.—Rule 8. To be signed by the Speaker.

ADDRESS TO THE PRESIDENT.

"Whenever the Senate and House of Representatives shall judge it proper to make a joint address to the President, it shall be presented to him in his audience-chamber by the President of the Senate in the presence of the Speaker and both houses."—Joint Rule 11. Where to be presented, by whom, &c.

ADHERE, MOTION TO.

The questions respecting amendments from another house are: 1st, to agree; 2d, disagree; 3d, recede; 4th, insist; 5th, adhere—Manuals, p. 110—and take precedence in that order.—Journals, 1, 23, p. 229; 1, 34, p. 1516 to 1518. One of the questions on amendments between the two houses. Order in putting question on.

"In the ordinary parliamentary course, there are two free conferences, at least, before an adherence"—Manual, p. 122—and sometimes three or four.—Journals, 1, 34, p. 943; 1, 35, p. 1136. Although "either house is free to pass over the term of insisting, and to adhere in the first instance; but it is not respectful to the other."—Manual, p. 122. Usually at least two conferences before adherence.

A conference may take place after a vote of adherence by one house.—Journals, 1, 3, pp. 281, 283; 2, 3, p. 254; 1, 34, pp. 1600, 1602; 1, 35, pp. 604, 615, 620; Senate Journal, Jan. 20, 1834; Manual, p. 125. Conference after one house adheres.

"After each house shall have adhered to their disagreement, a bill or resolution shall be lost."—Joint Rule 15. After each house adheres, bill, &c., lost.

(See AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE TWO HOUSES and CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.)

ADJOURN, MOTION TO.

"A motion to adjourn, and a motion to fix the day to which the house shall adjourn, shall be always in order, and And to fix the day of next meeting always in order.

Not debatable. these motions shall be decided without debate."—Rule 44. It has been decided and acted upon that the motion "to fix

Motion to fix the day takes precedence of. Unless no quorum present. the day to which the House shall adjourn" takes precedence of a motion "to adjourn;" the reason being that, before the House adjourns, it is proper to fix the time to which it shall adjourn—Note to same rule—but when less than a quorum is present, no motion can be entertained, except to adjourn, or for a call of the House.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 356, and Const., 1, 5, 8. [Consequently, at such a time, the motion to adjourn would take precedence.]

Cannot be made while another member is speaking, unless he yields for. "A motion for adjournment cannot be made while another is speaking."—Manual, p. 81. [But, according to the practice, a member speaking may yield for a motion to adjourn, or that the committee rise, without losing his right to the floor when the subject is resumed.]

Not in order while voting on another question. "Nor can a motion to adjourn be received after another question is actually put, and while the House is actually engaged in voting."—Manual, p. 94.

Cannot be amended. "A motion to adjourn, simply, cannot be amended, as by adding 'to a particular day,' but must be put simply 'that this House do now adjourn;' and if carried in the affirmative, it is adjourned to the next sitting day, unless it has come to a previous resolution, 'that at its rising it will adjourn to a particular day,' and then the House is adjourned to that day."—Manual, p. 131.

When may be repeated: A motion to adjourn may be repeated, although no question has been put or decided since the former motion—Journal, 1, 23, p. 651—but there must have been some intervening business.—Ibid., 1, 31, p. 1092. [Another motion submitted, progress in debate or reading a paper by the Clerk, an order of the yeas and nays, &c., has been considered such "intervening business" as will authorize a repetition of the motion to adjourn.]

Hour of making to be entered on Journal. "The hour at which every motion to adjourn is made shall be entered on the journal."—Rule 45.

Motion to fix the hour to which the House shall adjourn. A motion to fix the hour to which the House shall adjourn does not take precedence of a motion to adjourn—Journal, 1, 29, p. 186—and can only be made when resolutions are in order—Journal, 1, 29, p. 933—[or under a suspension of the rules when in order.]

"If a question be put for adjournment, it is no adjournment till the Speaker pronounces it."—Manual, p. 131. No adjournment till Speaker pronounces it.

There must be an adjournment before the legislative day will terminate—Journal, 1, 33, p. 804—and an adjournment does not take place by reason of the arrival of the time for the regular daily meeting of the House.—Ibid., pp. 804, 811. And an adjournment does not necessarily take place at 12 o'clock a. m. on Sunday, nor is it against order for a majority to continue in session after the said hour, it being a question which must be left to be decided by the judgment and discretion of the House itself.—Journal, 1, 24, pp. 577, 582. Legislative day does not end until an adjournment. For the House to determine when it shall adjourn.

"Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting."—Const., 1, 5, 9. House cannot adjourn of itself for more than three days.

"In case of disagreement between them (the two houses), with respect to the time of adjournment, the President may adjourn the two houses to such time as he may think proper."—Ibid., 2, 3, 18. When President may adjourn two houses.

ADJOURNMENT, SINE DIE.

The adjournment of a session (other than that which terminates with the expiration of the term of service of the members) is provided for by the joint vote of the two houses, and usually in the following form: "Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives be authorized to close the present session by adjourning their respective houses on the —— day of ——, at — o'clock — m." Form of resolution for.

And upon the arrival of the day and hour thus fixed, or the hour of 12 o'clock m. of the 4th of March of each alternate year, when, by the usage, the last session of a Congress terminates, the Speaker (either on or without motion) pronounces the House adjourned sine die.—Journals, 1, 28, p. 1362; 1, When takes place.

33, p. 1345; 1, 35, p. 1148; 2, 32, p. 431; 3, 34, p. 691; 2, 35, p. 625.

AGENTS FOR CLAIMS.

(See CLAIM AGENTS.)

AGRICULTURE, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and its number.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Agriculture, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

Duties of.

[No duties are assigned to the Committee on Agriculture by the rules.]

AMENDMENT.

Precedence of motion to amend.

When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged.—Rule 42.

Motion to strike out enacting words.

A motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill takes precedence of a motion to amend.—Rule 123.—(See ENACTING WORDS, MOTION TO STRIKE OUT.)

When in order to a bill.

A bill cannot be amended on the first reading.—Manual, p. 83. [Indeed, it has become the settled practice of the House not to receive an amendment to a House bill except when the question is on its engrossment, and to a Senate bill except when the question is on ordering it to a third reading.]

Not cut off by previous question.

If the motion to amend is pending when a demand for the previous question is made, it is not cut off by the order of the previous question.—Rule 132.

An amendment to only in order.

An amendment may be moved to an amendment, but it is not admitted in another degree.—Manual, p. 100. [But it is the well-settled practice of the House that there may be pending at the same time with such amendment to the amendment, an amendment in the nature of a substitute for part or the whole of the original text, and an amendment to that amendment.—(See Journal, 1, 31, pp. 1074, 1075). It was decided many years ago that if the motion to amend the original matter was first submitted, it was not then in order to submit an amendment in the nature of a substitute—Journal, 1, 19, p. 794; but it was subsequently decided otherwise—Journal, 1, 28, p. 807—and the practice ever since has been in accordance with the latter decision. So now, notwithstanding the pendency of a motion to amend an amendment to the original matter, a motion to amend, in the nature of a substitute, and a motion to amend that amendment may be received, but cannot be voted upon until the original matter is perfected.]

But there may be also an amendment (in nature of substitute) and amendment to it.

Amendment of Senate's amendment.

An amendment of the House to a Senate amendment is only in the first degree; for, as to the Senate, the first amendment with which they passed the bill is a part of its text; it is the only text they have agreed to.—Manual, p. 123.—(See AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES.)

Paragraph proposed to be inserted may be first amended.

"When it is proposed to amend by inserting a paragraph, or part of one, the friends of the paragraph may make it as perfect as they can, by amendments, before the question is put for inserting it. If it be received, it cannot be amended afterwards, in the same stage, because the House has, on a vote, agreed to it in that form."—Manual, p. 104. But an amendment which has been inserted may be added to.—Journal, 1, 19, p. 794.

But not afterwards, except by adding to.

Or striking out part of original paragraph including it.

Although it is not in order to strike out by itself what has been inserted, it may be moved to strike out a portion of the original paragraph, comprehending what has been inserted, provided the coherence to be struck out be so substantial as to make this effectively a different proposition.—Manual, p. 106.

Paragraph proposed to be struck out may be first amended.

If it is proposed to amend by striking out a paragraph, the friends of the paragraph are first to make it as perfect as they can, by amendments, before the question is put for striking it out.—Manual, p. 105. But (contrary to the parliamentary practice), if on the question it be retained, neither amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert shall be precluded thereby, and a motion to strike out and insert is indivisible.—Rule 46.—(See STRIKE OUT, MOTION TO.)

Motion to strike out failing.

To strike out and insert indivisible.

No withdrawal after.

After a proposition is amended it cannot be withdrawn.—Rule 40.

No modification of, after previous question seconded.

A motion to amend cannot be modified after the previous question is seconded—Journal, 1, 28, p. 811—[doubtless for the reason that the pendency of the particular amendment may be the inducement for seconding the previous question.]

Member yielding for, loses floor.

If a member yields the floor to another to offer an amendment, as he may do, the member yielding loses his right to reoccupy it.—Journal, 1, 26, p. 248.

Proposing a general provision of law to a private bill not in order.

An amendment proposing to ingraft a general provision of law upon a private bill is against order.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 784. It is also out of order to engraft upon a bill for the relief of one individual a provision for the relief of another.—Journal, 2, 32, p. 414.

Must be germane and not incorporate any other pending bill.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment. And no bill or resolution shall, at any time, be amended by annexing thereto, or incorporating therewith, any other bill or resolution pending before the House.—Rule 48. The latter clause of this rule, as originally reported to the House, contained at the end of it, "nor by any proposition containing the substance, in whole or in part, of any other bill or resolution pending before the House." These words were stricken out by the House before it would agree to the rule, by which it would seem to have been decided that an amendment containing the substance of another bill or resolution may be entertained.—Note to Rule 48. [Such, too, has been the practice ever since.] It has been decided that an amendment including the same provisions, to a very great extent, as other bills pending before the House, is in order.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1333.

May contain substance of pending bill.

Where inconsistent not out of order.

If an amendment be proposed inconsistent with one already agreed to, it is a fit ground for its rejection by the House, but not within the competence of the Speaker to suppress as if it were against order.—Manual, p. 104.

Presents new question, and a member who has spoken to main question may speak again.

On an amendment being moved, a member who has spoken to the main question may speak again to the amendment.—Manual, p. 104.

To bills granting lands for railroads.

A bill granting lands to a State for railroad purposes may be amended by adding thereto a similar provision for other States.—Journal, 1, 32, pp. 427, 967.

Of resolutions.

A resolution of the House cannot be amended so as to be converted into a Joint Resolution.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 679.

By way of rider to bill on third reading.

No amendment by way of rider shall be received to any bill on its third reading.—Rule 126.

To the rules.

An amendment to the rules cannot be proposed without one day's notice—Rule 145—nor, without a similar notice, is it in order to offer an amendment, the effect of which is to change a standing rule.—Journal, 1, 17, p. 282. And it is virtually an amendment of the rules to impose other duties upon an officer of the House than those already prescribed.—Journal, 1, 31, p 456.

From Committee of the Whole or Senate not divisible.

An amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole as an entire amendment is not divisible.—Journals, 1, 28, p. 1061; 1, 29, pp. 366, 642; 1, 30, p. 1059; 2, 30, p. 574. Nor is an amendment of the Senate divisible.—Journal, 2, 32, p. 401.

Additional, after report from Committee of Whole.

After a bill has been reported from the Committee of the Whole with amendments, it is in order to submit an additional amendment, but the first question put is upon the amendments reported.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 865.

Where, in Committee of Whole, paragraph amended and then struck out.

If, in Committee of the Whole, an amendment is adopted, and subsequently, the paragraph as amended is struck out, the amendment striking out is the only one to be reported to the House. And if the latter is voted down in the House, the first amendment is not thereby revived.—Journal, 2, 31, p. 346.

To general appropriation bills.

No appropriation shall be reported in a general appropriation bill, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law, unless in continuation of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress, and for the contingencies for carrying on the several departments of the government.—Rule 120. [This rule, so far as relates to amendments offered, is usually enforced with much strictness, but an instance is not known where the Committee of the Whole has ever ruled out any portion of a bill as reported from the Committee of Ways and Means, although containing provisions in violation of said rule.]

(See APPROPRIATION BILLS.)

Debate may be closed on, without precluding further.

"The House may at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill."—Rule 132.

AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE TWO HOUSES.

Regular progression from disagreement to adherence.

When either house, e. g. the House of Representatives, send a bill to the other, the other may pass it with amendments. The regular progression in this case is: that the House disagree to the amendment; the Senate insist on it; the House insist on their disagreement; the Senate adhere to their amendment; the House adhere to their disagreement.—(See Manual, pp. 121, 122.)

Effect of adherence by both houses.

"After each house shall have adhered to their disagreement, a bill or resolution shall be lost."—Joint Rule 15.

Either house may recede.

"Either house may recede from its amendment and agree to the bill; or recede from their disagreement to the amendment, and agree to the same absolutely, or with an amendment."—Manual, p. 122. And a motion to recede takes precedence of a motion to insist.—Journals, 1, 23, p. 229; 1, 29, p. 696. "But the House cannot recede from or insist on its own amendment with an amendment. * * * They may modify an amendment from the other house by engrafting an amendment on it."—Manual, p. 122.

Motion to recede takes precedence of motion to insist

House cannot recede from or insist on its amendment with amendment, but may amend other house's amendment.

Motion to amend an amendment of other house.

"A motion to amend an amendment from the other house takes precedence of a motion to agree or disagree. A bill originating in one house is passed by the other with an amendment. The originating house agrees to their amendment with an amendment. The other may agree to their amendment with an amendment, that being only in the second and not the third degree; for, as to the amending house, the first amendment with which they passed the bill is a part of its text; it is the only text they have agreed to."—Ibid., p. 123.

One house may amend the other's amendment to its amendment.

Two conferences at least before adherence.

"In the ordinary parliamentary course there are two free conferences, at least, before an adherence."—Manual, p. 122; Journals, 1, 34, p. 943; 1, 35, p. 1136. Although either house is free to pass over the term of insisting and to adhere in the first instance; but it is not respectful to the other.—Manual, p. 122. A motion to insist, however, takes precedence of a motion to adhere.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 1516 to 1518. (See CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.)

But House may adhere in first instance, but motion to insist takes precedence.

After one house has adhered, the other may recede—Journals, 1, 1, pp. 113, 114; 1, 2, p. 152; 1, 8, pp. 671, 673—or ask a conference, which may be agreed to by the adhering house.—Journals, 1, 1, pp. 156, 157; 1, 3, pp. 281, 283; 1, 35, pp. 604, 615, 620.—(See ADHERE, MOTION TO.)

After adherence by one house.

APPEAL.

"A question of order arising out of any other question must be decided before that question."—Manual, p. 101.

Question of order arising out of another question, to be decided first.

Questions of order decided by the Speaker shall be "subject to an appeal to the House by any two members; on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by leave of the House."—Rule 2. [The questions of order herein referred to relate to motions or propositions, their applicability or relevancy, &c.—Note to Rule 2.] But "all incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate."—Rule 133. [So, too, under the practice, all questions of order which may arise, pending a question which is not debatable, must be decided without debate.] And "all questions relating to the priority of business to be acted on shall be decided without debate."—Rule 66.

Questions of order relative to motions, their relevancy, &c., subject to.

When not debatable.

"If any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgress the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call to order; in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the House shall, if appealed to, decide on the case, but without debate."—Rule 61. [The call to order herein referred to has reference only to "transgressions of the rules in speaking," or to indecorum of any kind.]

In case of member transgressing rules in speaking or indecorum.

Not debatable.

sion, the Speaker is to decide peremptorily, subject to the future censure of the House, if irregular."—Manual, p. 118.

May be laid on table, and its effect.

An appeal may be laid on the table—Journal, 1, 26, pp. 529—and being laid on the table does not carry with it the whole subject.—Ibid., p. 530. [Of late years this motion is almost invariably made in case of an appeal, and, if carried, its effect is considered equivalent to a vote sustaining the decision of the Chair.]

Where too late to raise question of order.

It is too late to renew a question of order on the admissibility of a proposition which has been overruled on the preceding day, where debate has been allowed to progress on such proposition.—Journal, 1, 30, p. 989. And it is also too late to raise a question of order on a motion entertained without objection on a former day, and entered on the Journal.—Ibid., 2, 30, p. 382; 1, 38, p. 538.

Question just decided on cannot be renewed.

A question of order just decided on appeal cannot be renewed, even upon the suggestion of additional reasons.—Ibid., 1, 32, p. 935.

Where too late to reconsider vote on appeal.

Where an appeal has been decided, and by virtue of such decision a bill taken up and passed, it is too late to move a reconsideration of the vote on the appeal.—Ibid., 1, 31, pp. 860, 861.

Pending the election of Speaker, Clerk to decide questions of order.

Pending the election of a Speaker, the Clerk shall decide all questions of order that may arise, subject to appeal to the House.—Rule 146.

Not in order while another is pending.

An appeal is not in order while another appeal is pending.—Cong. Globe, 1, 27, p. 154; 2, 29, p. 290.

How questions on stated.

[The form of stating the question on an appeal is: "Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?"]

Questions of order to be noted and put at end of Journal.

"All questions of order shall be noted by the Clerk, with the decision, and put together at the end of the Journal of every session."—Rule 15.

APPROPRIATION BILLS.

General, when to be reported.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Appropriations, within thirty days after their appointment, at every session of Congress, commencing on the first Monday of December, to report the general appropriation bills—September 4, 1837—for legislative, executive, and judicial expenses; or sundry civil expenses; for consular and diplomatic expenses; for the army; for the navy; for the expenses of the Indian Department; for the payment of invalid and other pensions; for the support of the Military Academy; for fortifications; for the service of the Post Office Department, and for mail transportation by ocean steamers; or, in failure hereof, the reasons of such failure. And said committee shall have leave to report said bills (for reference only) at any time."—Rule 77.

General, may be reported at any time.

"In preparing bills of appropriation for other objects, the Committee on Appropriations shall not include appropriations for carrying into effect treaties made by the United States; and when an appropriation bill shall be referred to them for their consideration which contains appropriations for carrying a treaty into effect, and for other objects, they shall propose such amendments as shall prevent appropriations for carrying a treaty into effect being included in the same bill with appropriations for other objects."—Rule 76.

Appropriations for carrying out treaties not to be included in.

But where a general appropriation bill containing an item for carrying out a treaty has been committed by the House, it cannot be ruled out of order by the Committee of the Whole.—Cong. Globe, 2, 31, pp. 356, 357.

But where committed cannot be ruled out of order.

"No appropriation shall be reported in such general appropriation bills, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law, unless in continuations of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress, and for the contingencies for carrying on the several departments of the government."—Rule 120. [It has been decided that under this rule it is not in order to propose an amendment to a general appropriation bill, which changes an existing law.—Journal, 1, 38, pp. 598, 599. But it was also decided that the latter branch of the rule not only permitted amendments increasing salaries, but was framed for that very purpose.—See Cong. Globe, Vol. 54, pp. 306, 325—also, Cong. Globe, Vol. 6, p. 224.]

Amendment to general.

[This rule is rigidly enforced, so far as relates to amendments offered in the House or in committee, but it not unfrequently happens that bills are reported which are in conflict with it; and as they are usually received by the House and committed without being read in extenso, the conflict is not discovered until they are considered in committee, when it is too late to make the point.]

All proceedings touching to be first discussed in Committee of the Whole.

"All proceedings touching appropriations of money shall be first discussed in a Committee of the Whole House."—Rule 112. [The construction given to this rule is, that all bills, or amendments thereto, containing an appropriation of money must be committed to a Committee of the Whole before being considered in the House; hence, if such a bill, on its engrossment, or third reading, or such an amendment, be pending before the House, and no motion is made to commit or postpone, the House must pass from its consideration, and the bill go to the Speaker's table.]

Bills which need not be committed as.

But a bill directing the disbursement of money already appropriated—Journal, 1, 24, p. 254—or directing payment of money hereafter to be appropriated—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1216; 1, 38, p. 538—need not be committed. Neither is it necessary that a bill containing an appropriation of lands should be committed.—Journal, 1, 30, p. 526.

When point of order on, cannot be well taken.

And when the rules have been suspended for the purpose of enabling the report of a measure to be made, and also for its consideration, a point of order that it contains an appropriation cannot be well taken.—Journal, 1, 34, pp. 1172, 1173.

Preference given to general, in the House.

"General appropriation bills shall be in order in preference to any other bills of a public nature, unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the House.

General, may be made special order at any time.

And the House may, at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, make any of the general appropriation bills a special order."—Rule 119.

Preference given to general, in Committee of the Whole.

And in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, "general appropriation bills, and, in time of war, bills for raising men and money, and bills concerning a treaty of peace, shall be preferred to all other bills, at the discretion of the committee; and when demanded by any member, the question (of consideration) shall first be put in regard to them."—Rule 114. [Existing special orders, however (being made under a suspension of the rules), take precedence of all other business.]

"Upon the engrossment of any bill making appropriations of money for works of internal improvement of any kind or description, it shall be in the power of any member to call for a division of the question, so as to take a separate vote of the House upon each item of improvement or appropriation contained in said bill, or upon such items separately, and others collectively, as the members making the call may specify; and if one-fifth of the members present second said call, it shall be the duty of the Speaker to make such divisions of the question, and put them to vote accordingly."—Rule 121.

Division of the question on, for internal improvements.

APPROPRIATIONS, COMMITTEE ON.

This Committee, to consist of nine members, is directed to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.—Rule 74.

Its number, and when appointed.

Its duty shall be to take into consideration all executive communications, and such other propositions in regard to carrying on the several departments of the government, as may be presented and referred to them by the House. In preparing bills of appropriations for other objects, the said Committee shall not include appropriations for carrying into effect treaties made by the United States; and where an appropriation bill shall be referred to them for their consideration, which contains appropriations for carrying a treaty into effect and for other objects, they shall propose such amendments as shall prevent appropriations for carrying a treaty into effect being included in the same bill with appropriations for other objects. —Rule 76.

Duties of

It shall also be the duty of the said Committee, within thirty days after their appointment, at every session of Congress commencing on the first Monday of December, to report the general appropriation bills—September 14, 1837—for legislative, executive and judicial expenses; for sundry civil expenses; for consular and diplomatic expenses; for the army; for the navy; for the expenses of the Indian department; for the payment of invalid and other pensions; for the support of the Military Academy; for fortifications; for the service of the Post Office Department, and for mail transportation by ocean steamers; or, in failure thereof, the reasons of such failure. And said committee shall have leave to report said bills (for reference only) at any time.—Rule 77.

AYES AND NOES.

(See YEAS AND NAYS.)

BALLOT.

When committees are to be appointed by.

"All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker unless otherwise specially directed by the House, in which case they shall be appointed by ballot; and if, upon such ballot, the number required shall not be elected by a majority of the votes given, the House shall proceed to a second ballot, in which a plurality shall prevail; and in case a greater number than is required to compose or complete a committee shall have an equal number of votes, the House shall proceed to a further ballot or ballots."—Rule 67. "In all other cases of ballot than for committees, a majority of the votes given shall be necessary to an election; and where there shall not be such a majority on the first ballot, the ballots shall be repeated until a majority be obtained; and in all ballotings blanks shall be rejected, and not taken into the count in enumeration of votes, or reported by the tellers."—Rule 12.

Speaker shall vote in cases of.

"In all cases of ballot by the House, the Speaker shall vote."—Rule 7.

No person to visit Clerk's desk while counting.

"No member or other person shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while ballots are counting."—Rule 65.

Vote of late years not taken by.

[There has been no instance for many years where a vote by ballot has been taken in the House, the Speaker and other officers having been elected by viva voce votes, and the committees appointed by the Speaker.]

(See ELECTIONS and COMMITTEES.)

BANKING AND CURRENCY, COMMITTEE ON.

Its number, and when appointed.

This committee, to consist of nine members, is directed to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.—Rule 74.

Its duty.

Its duty shall be to take into consideration all propoitions relative to banking and the currency as shall be pre-ented or shall come in question and be referred to them by he House, and to report thereon by bill or otherwise.

BAR OF THE HOUSE.

"No member shall vote in any case where he was not within the bar of the House when the question was put. And when any member shall ask leave to vote, the Speaker shall propound to him the question: 'Were you within the bar when your name was called?'"—Rule 29. [And upon his answer in the affirmative, or that he was within the bar before the name of the member next to his on the roll was called, he is permitted to vote. He must, however, answer the question for himself, the Speaker always very properly refusing to decide for him whether or not he was within the bar.]

In order to vote members must be "within the bar."

[At the 1st session 35th Congress (see Journal, p. 337), soon after the occupancy of the present hall, it was decided that, in order to be entitled to vote, a member, when his name was called, must have been upon the floor of the hall, and not outside of any of the doors leading into it.]

What is meant by "within the bar."

"Upon a division and count of the House on any question, no member without the bar shall be counted."—Rule 30.

No vote of a member without the bar counted.

BILLS.

(See also PRIVATE BILLS AND PRIVATE BUSINESS.)

Every bill shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by motion for leave—Rule 115—or upon the report of the Court of Claims.—(Stat. at Large, Vol. X, pp. 313, 614.)

How bills are introduced.

"All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills."—Const., 1, 7, 10.

Revenue bills.

"In the case of a bill on leave, at least one day's notice shall be given of the motion in the House, or by filing a memorandum thereof with the Clerk, and having it entered on the Journal; and the motion shall be made and the bill introduced, if leave is given, when resolutions are called for; such motion, or the bill when introduced, may be committed." —Rule 115.

Bills on leave.

Bills on leave, when and how introduced.

"All the States and Territories shall be called for bills on leave and resolutions on each alternate Monday during each session of Congress; and, if necessary to secure the object on said days, all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion, under the rules of the House already established; and the whole of said days shall be appropriated to bills on leave and resolutions, until all the States and Territories are called through.—February 6, 1838. And the Speaker shall first call the States and Territories for bills on leave; and all bills so introduced during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be referred, without debate, to their appropriate committees: Provided, however, That a bill so introduced and referred shall not be brought back into the House upon a motion to reconsider."—Rule 130. (See MORNING HOUR ON MONDAYS.)

[The notice above referred to is rarely given in the House (it being in order to give it there only when resolutions are in order), but is usually given to the Clerk by sending to him a written memorandum in this form: "Mr. —— gives notice that to-morrow or on some subsequent day, he will ask leave to introduce a bill (here insert its title)." If the member desires his notice to appear in the newspaper report of the proceedings of the House, he should furnish the reporter of such paper with a copy of the memorandum furnished the Clerk. Having given his notice, it is then in order, on any subsequent day, when bills on leave and resolutions are being called for, and when his particular State is called, to move for leave to introduce his bill. The practice of introducing bills on leave, it may be remarked, however, does not facilitate business. If, instead of waiting for an opportunity to introduce his bill on leave, the member would file his petition, or whatever other matter he may have in favor of the proposed legislation, and have it referred to the appropriate committee, as he may do on any day under Rule 131 (see PETITIONS), he will thus have the subject before them, and will get a bill reported as speedily as if it had been originally referred. Besides, the bill thus reported comes before the House unencumbered with amendments, as is not likely to be the case with a bill previously referred. These suggestions, of course, do not apply to cases where the immediate passage of a bill without the intervention of a committee is sought for, or where it is desirable to refer it to a select committee.]

Bills reported from committees.

For information in regard to bills reported from a committee, see COMMITTEES.

Bills reported from Court of Claims.

So in regard to bills reported from and to be referred to the Court of Claims.—See CLAIMS, COURT OF.

Every bill shall have three readings.

"Every bill shall receive three several readings in the House previous to its passage; and bills shall be dispatched in order as they were introduced, unless where the House shall direct otherwise; but no bill shall be twice read on the same day without special order of the House."—Rule 116. [The "special order" here referred to is generally assumed to have been given, for, unless objection is made, immediately after the bill is read a first time, the Speaker announces "the second reading of the bill," and it thereupon receives its second reading.]

Objection after first reading.

The first reading of a bill shall be for information, and, if opposition be made to it, the question shall be: "Shall this bill be rejected?"—Rule 117. And this question is debatable.—Journal, 2, 32, p. 152. But "if no opposition be made, or if the question to reject be negatived, the bill shall go to its second reading without a question."—Rule 117.

Second reading.

Usually read by their title.

[The three readings of a bill are usually by the title, the reading throughout usually taking place in Committee of the Whole; but where there is no commitment, it then takes place whenever it is proposed to put the bill on its passage.

Right of a member to have read throughout.

It is the undoubted right, however, of any member to have a bill read throughout at every stage of its progress through the House.—See READING OF PAPERS.]

After second reading.

"Upon the second reading of the bill, the Speaker shall state it as ready for commitment or engrossment; and, if committed, then a question shall be, whether to a select or standing committee, or to a Committee of the Whole House; if no motion be made to commit, the question shall be stated on its engrossment; and if it be not ordered to be engrossed on the day of its being reported, it shall be placed on the general file on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in order. But if the bill be ordered to be engrossed, the House shall appoint the day when it shall be read the third time."—Rule 118.

Open to debate, &c.

[The settled practice of the House upon the second reading of a bill, unless it be an APPROPRIATION BILL (which see), is to consider it as open to debate. When, under the 42d rule, it is in a condition for a motion to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely, which several motions take precedence in the order in which they are arranged.

Commitment.

Amendment.

Enacting words may be stricken out.

"But a motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend; and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection."—Rule 123. (See all of said motions respectively.)]

Engrossment and third reading.

[The question of engrossment is put in this form, viz.: "Shall the bill be engrossed and read a third time?" If it be negatived, the bill is rejected; but if it be decided in the affirmative, and the bill is actually engrossed, or no question is made on its failure to be engrossed, the Speaker immediately directs "the third reading of the bill." But if the question is made, and it be not actually engrossed, the bill goes to the Speaker's table. In the case of a Senate bill, the engrossment having already been made before it came to the House, the question which arises is, "Shall the bill be read a third time?" which being decided negatively the bill is rejected, but being decided affirmatively the bill is immediately read a third time.]

Third reading of Senate bills.

In case of a bill with a preamble.

[Where the bill has a preamble, although there is no rule, and indeed no settled practice, defining the stage at which it is to be considered, it would seem to be most appropriate that its consideration should take place after the bill has been ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and before the third reading takes place. By this course, the bill can be engrossed either with or without the preamble, as the House shall have determined.]

After third reading.

[After the third reading of a bill, the question which next arises in course is, "Shall the bill pass?" At this stage he bill is again open to debate, but is not amendable; it may, however, under the 124th rule, be recommitted at any time before passage.—(See RECOMMIT, MOTION TO.)] Debate. Recommitment.

[The bill having passed, and the title having been read, the Speaker states, "If there be no objection this will remain the title of the bill." The title, however, is subject to amendment, and unless the previous question is ordered on it, is also debatable.] After passage. Title.

[After the title is disposed of, it is usual for the member having charge of the bill to move "that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table;" which latter motion having been decided in the affirmative, no reconsideration can take place, and the transmission of the bill to the Senate cannot be delayed. Indeed, it is not uncommon to make the motion "to reconsider and lie" at every stage of the bill.] After title disposed of. Motion to reconsider and lie.

The bill is then, as required by Rule 127, "certified by the Clerk, notifying the day of its passage at the foot thereof," and conveyed by him to the Senate, "together with all the papers on which it is founded," as required by Joint Rule 14. But "no bill that shall have passed one house shall be sent for concurrence to the other on either of the last three days of the session."—Joint Rule 16. [This rule is almost invariably suspended by the two houses near the close of a session.] Certified by Clerk and taken to the Senate. Not to be taken to the Senate on last three days of session.

"While bills are on their passage between the two houses, they shall be on paper, and under the signature of the Secretary or Clerk of each house respectively."—Joint Rule 5. To be on paper, when on passage between the two houses.

[After the bill has been acted on by the Senate, it is brought back to the House by the Secretary of the Senate, together with a report of their action thereon. If it has passed with amendment, it is placed on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in its order under the 54th rule. After the return of, from Senate with amendment.

Amendments between the houses.

In case of disagreement by the House to, or amendment of, the Senate's amendment, see AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES and CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.

After passage by both houses, to be enrolled on parchment.

"After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled on parchment by the Clerk of the House of Representatives or the Secretary of the Senate, as the bill may have originated in the one or the other house, before it shall be presented to the President of the United States."—Joint Rule 6.

When enrolled, to be examined.

"When bills are enrolled, they shall be examined by a joint committee of two from the Senate and two from the House of Representatives, appointed as a standing committee for that purpose, who shall carefully compare the enrollment with the engrossed bills, as passed in the two houses, and correcting any errors that may be discovered in the enrolled bills, make their report forthwith to their respective houses."—Joint Rule 7.

(See ENROLLED BILLS, COMMITTEE ON.)

When examined, to be reported to House and signed by Speaker.

"After examination and report, each bill shall be signed in their respective houses, first by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, then by the President of the Senate."—Joint Rule 8.

After being signed by presiding officers, to be presented to President.

"After a bill shall have been thus signed in each house, it shall be presented by the said committee to the President of the United States for his approbation, it being first endorsed on the back of the roll, certifying in which house the same originated: which endorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Clerk (as the case may be) of the house in which the same did originate, and shall be entered on the Journal of each house. The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the President, which time shall also be carefully entered on the Journal of each house."—Joint Rule 9. But "no bill or resolution that shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall be presented to the President of the United States for his approbation on the last day of the session."—Joint Rule 17. [This rule, like the 16th, is generally suspended near the close of the session.]

But not on last day of session.

After a bill is presented to the President, "if he approve he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated."—Const., 1, 7, p. 10. [Where the President approves a bill, it is customary for him to notify the house where the bill originated of the fact, and the date of his approval, which is entered on the Journal.] After being presented to President. Where bill is approved.

In case of a bill returned with the objections of the President, see VETO. Where vetoed.

"If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law."—Const., 1, 7, p. 10. And where he is prevented by an adjournment from returning a bill, it is usual for him to communicate his reasons for not approving it at the next session.—Journals, 2, 12, p. 544; 1, 30, p. 82; 2, 35, p. 151. Where not returned within ten days. Where President is prevented from returning by reason of adjournment.

"When a bill or resolution which shall have passed in one house is rejected in the other, notice thereof shall be given to the house in which the same shall have passed."—Joint Rule 12. And when so rejected, "it shall not be brought in during the same session, without a notice of ten days and leave of two-thirds of that house in which it shall be renewed."—Joint Rule 13. Where bill of one house is rejected in the other. Not to be brought in again without leave of two-thirds.

BUSINESS—DAILY ORDER OF.

Reading of the Journal.

"The Speaker shall take the chair every day precisely at the hour to which the house shall have adjourned on the preceding day; shall immediately call the members to order; and, on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the Journal of the preceding day to be read."—Rule 1.

Unfinished business of preceding day considered.

"The consideration of the unfinished business in which the House may be engaged at an adjournment shall be resumed as soon as the Journal of the next day is read, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of."—Rule 56.

Reports of committees called for.

"As soon as the Journal is read, and the unfinished business in which the House was engaged at the last preceding adjournment has been disposed of, reports from committees shall be called for and disposed of; in doing which the Speaker shall call upon each standing committee in regular order, and then upon select committees; and if the Speaker shall not get through the call upon the committees before the House passes to other business, he shall resume the next call where he left off—September 15, 1837—giving preference to the report last under consideration: Provided, That whenever any committee shall have occupied the morning hour on two days, it shall not be in order for such committee to report further until the other committees shall have been called in their turn—December 7, 1857. On the call for reports from committees on each alternate Monday, which shall commence as soon as the Journal is read, all bills reported during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be committed, without debate, to the Committee of the Whole, and, together with their accompanying reports, printed; and if during the hour all the committees are not called, then, on the next alternate Monday, the Speaker shall commence where such call was suspended: Provided, That no bill reported under the call on alternate Mondays, and committed, shall be again brought before the House by a motion to reconsider."—Rule 51.—(See MORNING HOUR ON MONDAYS.)

Call of States and Territories for resolutions and bills on leave.

"Reports from committees having been presented and disposed of, the Speaker shall call for resolutions from the members of each State and delegate from each Territory, beginning with Maine and the Territory last organized, alternately: and they shall not be debated on the very day of their being presented nor on any day assigned by the House for the receipt of resolutions, unless where the House shall direct otherwise, but shall lie on the table to be taken up in the order in which they were presented; and if on any day the whole of the States and Territories shall not be called, the Speaker shall begin on the next day where he left off the previous day: Provided, That no member shall offer more than one resolution, or one series of resolutions, all relating to the same subject, until all the States and Territories shall have been called."—Rule 52. And at this time bills on leave may be introduced.—Rule 115.

Business on the Speaker's table.

"After one hour shall have been devoted to reports from committees and resolutions, it shall be in order, pending the consideration or discussion thereof, to entertain a motion that the House do now proceed to dispose of the business on the Speaker's table, and to the orders of the day—January 5, 1832—which being decided in the affirmative, the Speaker shall dispose of the business on his table in the following order, viz:

1st. Messages and other Executive communications.

2d. Messages from the Senate, and amendments proposed by the Senate to bills of the House.

3d. Bills and resolutions from the Senate on their first and second reading, that they be referred to committees and put under way; but if, on being read a second time, no motion being made to commit, they are to be ordered to their third reading, unless objections be made; in which case, if not otherwise ordered by a majority of the House, they are to be laid on the table in the general file of bills on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in their turn.

4th. Engrossed bills and bills from the Senate on their third reading.

5th. Bills of the House and from the Senate, on the Speaker's table, on their engrossment, or on being ordered to a third reading, to be taken up and considered in the order of time in which they passed to a second reading.

The messages, communications, and bills on his table having been disposed of, the Speaker shall then proceed to call the orders of the day."—Rule 54.

May be interfered with

[The foregoing is the order of business which may be pursued, under the rules, each day except Fridays and Saturdays and the alternate Mondays; but it is often interfered with by questions of privilege, special orders, privileged questions, &c.]

On Friday and Saturday, and mode of proceeding on those days.

"Friday and Saturday in every week shall be set apart for the consideration of private bills and private business, in preference to any other, unless otherwise determined by a majority of the House."—Rule 128. [On those days, as soon as the Journal is read, and the unfinished business of the last private bill day is disposed of, the Speaker proceeds to call the committees for reports, of a private nature, which being disposed of, it is his practice, without motion, to lay before the House such private business as may be upon his table. It is then usual for some member (commonly the chairman of the Committee of Claims) to move that the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. This motion may be, and often is, made as soon as the Journal is read. Although it takes precedence of the motion to go into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union

(unless there be a special order pending therein), and, if made, must be first voted on, the latter motion is often made and carried, and thus private bills fail to receive consideration.]

First and fourth Fridays and Saturdays of the month.

"On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month the calendar of private bills shall be called over (the chairman of the Committee of the Whole House commencing the call where he left off the previous day), and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of.—January 25, 1839. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members."—Rule 129. It has been decided that this rule, so far as relates to the consideration of bills only which are not objected to, applies as well to private bills in the House as in committee.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 697.

On each alternate Monday, call for resolutions and bills on leave.

"All the States and Territories shall be called for bills on leave and resolutions on each alternate Monday during each session of Congress; and, if necessary to secure the object on said days, all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion, under the rules of the House already established; and the whole of said days shall be appropriated to bills on leave and resolutions, until all the States and Territories are called through.—February 6, 1838. And the Speaker shall first call the States and Territories for bills on leave; and all bills so introduced during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be referred, without debate, to their appropriate committees: Provided, however, That a bill so introduced and referred shall not be brought back into the House upon a motion to reconsider."—Rule 130.—(See MORNING HOUR ON MONDAYS.)

On every Monday, after one hour has expired.

On Monday of every week, at the expiration of one hour after the Journal is read, or earlier if the call of States and Territories for bills and resolutions is concluded, the Speaker may entertain a motion to suspend the rules.—Rule 145.

Order of business only changed by two-thirds vote.

"The order of business, as established by the rules, shall not be changed, except by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members present."—Rule 145.

BUSINESS—ON THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

When motion may be made to go to.

"After one hour shall have been devoted to reports from committees and resolutions, it shall be in order pending the consideration or discussion thereof, to entertain a motion that the House do now proceed to dispose of the business on the Speaker's table.—Rule 54. [The "hour"—known as the

to take the floor, even though another may be occupying it, to make the motion to proceed to business on the Speaker's table.]

Order of disposing of.

The motion to go to business on the Speaker's table being decided in the affirmative, the Speaker shall dispose of it in the following order, viz.:

"1st. Messages and other Executive communications.

"2d. Messages from the Senate, and amendments proposed by the Senate to bills of the House.

"3d. Bills and resolutions from the Senate on their first and second reading, that they be referred to committees and put under way; but if, on being read a second time, no motion being made to commit, they are to be ordered to their third reading, unless objection be made; in which case, if not otherwise ordered by a majority of the House, they are to be laid on the table in the general file of bills on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in their turn.

"4th. Engrossed bills and bills from the Senate on their third reading.

"5th. Bills of the House and from the Senate on the Speaker's table, on their engrossment, or on being ordered to a third reading, to be taken up and considered in the order of time in which they passed to a second reading..

"The messages, communications, and bills on his table having been disposed of, the Speaker shall then proceed to call the orders of the day."—Rule 54.

Weekly statement of, on table.

"The clerk shall make a weekly statement of the resolutions and bills upon the Speaker's table."—Rule 19. [A printed copy of this statement is laid upon each member's table every Monday morning.]

BUSINESS—UNFINISHED AT END OF A FIRST SESSION.

"After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions, and reports, which originated in the House, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined, shall be resumed and acted on in the same manner as if an adjournment had not taken place. And all business before committees of the House, at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress, as if no adjournment had taken place."—Rule 136.

Bills, resolutions and reports to be resumed after six days.

Before committees, to be resumed as though no adjournment.

[And by the 21st Joint Rule the resumption of all undisposed-of bills, resolutions, and reports, which originated in either house, is in like manner provided for. The word "resolutions" in the foregoing rule, has been invariably held to apply to "Joint Resolutions" only.]

CHAPLAINS.

Election of chaplains dispensed with.

The practice, which had prevailed for several years, of the election by each house of a chaplain, who should open their daily sessions with prayer, alternating weekly between the House and Senate, was suspended during the 35th Congress. At the 1st session of that Congress a resolution was adopted y the House which directed "that the daily sessions of that ody be opened with prayer, and requesting the ministers of he Gospel in this city to attend and alternately perform this olemn duty."—Journal, 1, 35, p. 58. The clergymen of Washington generally responded to this request, and for the emainder of the Congress performed the duty of chaplains. At the 1st session of the 36th Congress, the old practice of the election of a chaplain by each house was revived, and it was at that time decided that a proposition to proceed to such election, presented a question of privilege.—Journal, 1, 36, pp. 442, 443.

CLAIMS, COURT OF.

When report to be made.

"The Court of Claims shall keep a record of their proceedings, and shall, at the commencement of each session of Congress, and at the commencement of each month during the session of Congress, report to Congress the cases upon which they shall have finally acted, stating in each the material facts which they find established by the evidence, with their opinion in the case, and the reasons upon which such opinion is founded. Any judge who may dissent from the opinion of the majority shall append his reasons for such dissent to the report; and such report, together with the briefs of the solicitor and of the claimant, which shall accompany the report, upon being made to either house of Congress, shall be printed in the same manner as other public documents. And said court shall prepare a bill or bills in those cases which have received the favorable decision thereof, in such form as, if enacted, will carry the same into effect. And two or more cases may be embraced in the same bill, where the separate amount proposed to be allowed in each case shall be less than one thousand dollars. And the said court shall transmit with the said reports the testimony in each case, whether the same shall receive the favorable or adverse action of said court.

Dissenting opinions.

Court to prepare their bills.

Testimony to be reported.

Reports and bills to be continued from session to session and Congress to Congress.

"The said reports, and the bills reported as aforesaid, shall, if not finally acted upon during the session of Congress to which the said reports are made, be continued from session to session, and from Congress to Congress, until they shall be finally acted upon; and the consideration of said reports and bills shall, at the subsequent session of Congress, be resumed, and the said reports and bills be proceeded with in the same manner as though finally acted upon at the session when presented.

Adverse reports.

"The claims reported upon adversely shall be placed upon the calendar when reported, and if the decision of said court shall be confirmed by Congress, said decision shall be conclusive, and the said court shall not at any subsequent period consider said claims, unless such reasons shall be presented to said court as, by the rules of common law or chancery in suits between individuals, would furnish sufficient ground for granting a new trial."—Stat. at Large, Vol. X, pp. 613, 614.

Members of Congress not to practise before.

By the same act members of Congress are prohibited from practising in said court.—Ibid., p. 766.

Transmission of papers to.

The Clerk of the House is directed "to transmit to said court, on the application of the clerk of said court, the papers in his office in any case that is now or may be hereafter pending in said court, taking a receipt therefor."—Journal, 1, 34, p. 583.

[And when bills from said court shall have passed the Senate and remain undisposed of in the House at the end of a Congress, they shall be returned to the Senate.]

Judges of, admitted within the hall.

Judges of the Court of Claims are admitted within the hall of the House.—Rule 134.

CLERK OF THE HOUSE.

Shall be elected at commencement of Congress.

A Clerk shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress.—Rule 10. The Act of June 1, 1789, provides that at the first session of Congress after every general election of representatives, the oath or affirmation therein prescribed "shall be administered by any one member of the House of Representatives to the Speaker; and by him to all the members present, and to the Clerk, previous to entering on any other business." Shall make weekly statement of business on Speaker's table.

He shall make a weekly statement of the resolutions and bills upon the Speaker's table.—Rule 19. [This statement is printed and placed upon each member's table every Monday morning. There is, in like manner, placed upon their tables, every Friday morning, a statement of all the bills and resolutions upon the calendar, designating whether in Committee of the Whole House or of the Whole House on the State of the Union.]

Weekly statement of bills, &c., on calendar also prepared.

He numbers the sections of bills.

And also bills and joint resolutions.

CLERKS OF COMMITTEES.

"No committee shall be permitted to employ a clerk at the public expense without first obtaining leave of the House for that purpose."—Rule 73. [Such leave is usually granted to a portion of the committees, for a part or the whole of the session, as they may deem the service necessary; and three of the committees have permanent clerks, viz., of Claims, by resolution of February 18, 1843; of Ways and Means, by resolution of February 18, 1856; and on Public Lands, by resolution of May 27, 1862.] Not to be employed without leave. Committees which have leave.

COMMERCE, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and of what number.

There shall be appointed, at the commencement of each Congress, a Committee on Commerce, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Commerce to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching the commerce of the United States as shall be presented, or shall or may come into question, and be referred to them by the House, and to report, from time to time, their opinion thereon."—Rule 79.

[This committee was originally a Committee on Commerce and Manufactures. On the 8th December, 1819, a separate Committee on Manufactures was constituted, and the duties of the original Committee on Commerce and Manufactures have been confirmed, as above, by leaving out the words "and Manufactures." There are no duties assigned in the rules to the Committee on Manufactures.]

COMMIT, MOTION TO.

shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill or proposition."—Rule 42. [When any one of the foregoing motions is received, the practice is not to receive one of lower dignity until the former is disposed of.]

Where different committees are proposed.

"When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order: the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union; the Committee of the Whole House; a standing committee; a select committee."—Rule 43.

A motion to commit may be amended by the addition of instructions. Also by striking out one committee and inserting another.—Journals, passim. May be amended.

A division of the question is not in order on a motion to commit with instructions, or on the different branches of instructions.—Journals, 1, 17, p. 507; 1, 31, pp. 1395, 1397; 1, 32, p. 611. Withinstructions not divisible.

"Upon the second reading of a bill, the Speaker shall state it as ready for commitment."—Rule 118. A bill when ready for commitment.

After the previous question is ordered, if no motion to postpone is pending, the House is brought first "to a direct vote on the motion to commit, if such motion shall have been made."—Rule 132. Effect of previous question upon motion to commit.

"Motions and reports may be committed at the pleasure of the House."—Rule 47. Motions and reports may be committed.

COMMITTEES.

Thirty-one standing committees shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress, viz.: Of Elections, of Ways and Means, on Appropriations, on Banking and Currency, on the Pacific Railroad, of Claims, on Commerce, on the Public Lands, on the Post Office and Post Roads, for the District of Columbia, on the Judiciary, on Revolutionary Claims, on Public Expenditures, on Private Land Claims, on Manufactures, on Agriculture, on Indian Affairs, on Military Affairs, on the Militia, on Naval Affairs, on Foreign Affairs, on the Territories, on Revolutionary Pensions, on Invalid Pensions, on Roads and Canals,—to consist of nine members each,—on Patents, on Public Buildings and Grounds, of Revisal and Unfinished Business, of Accounts, on Mileage, and on Coinage, Weights and Measures,—to consist of five members each.—Rule 74. Standing committees to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.

There shall be a joint committee on Enrolled Bills, to consist of two members of each House (Joint Rule 7); there shall be a joint committee on the Library of Congress, to consist of three members of each house (Joint Rule 20); there shall be a joint committee on the Public Printing, to consist of three members of each house (Stat. at Large, Vol. X, p. 34). [The rules do not designate for what period these joint committees Joint committees to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.

shall be appointed; but the practice is for the Speaker to appoint them at the commencement of each Congress.

Standing committees to be appointed at the commencement of each Congress.

There shall be appointed, at the commencement of the first session in each Congress, six additional standing committees, whose duties shall continue until the first session of the ensuing Congress, viz.: On Expenditures in the Department of State, on Expenditures in the Treasury Department, on Expenditures in the War Department, on Expenditures in the Post Office Department, an Expenditures in the Navy Department, on Expenditures in the Interior Department, on Expenditures on the Public Buildings, to consist of five members each.—Rule 102.

Duties of the committees.

For the duties of the several committees, see under their respective names.

Committees, how appointed.

"All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker, unless otherwise specially directed by the House, in which case they shall be appointed by ballot; and if upon such ballot the number required shall not be elected by a majority of the votes given, the House shall proceed to a second ballot, in which a plurality of votes shall prevail; and in case a greater number than is required to compose or complete a committee shall have an equal number of votes, the House shall proceed to a further ballot or ballots."—Rule 67. [The latter mode of appointing committees is, of late years, never resorted to; but the practice has been for the House to adopt an order "that the Speaker be authorized to appoint the regular standing committees." And after adopting such order, it is usual for the House to adjourn over for two or three days to enable him to make the appointments.]

Who shall be chairman of a committee.

"The first named member of any committee shall be the chairman; and in his absence, or being excused by the House, the next named member, and so on, as often as the case shall happen, unless the committee, by a majority of their number, elect a chairman."—Rule 68.

Who may be excused from serving on a committee.

"Any member may excuse himself from serving on any committee at the time of his appointment, if he is then a member of two other committees."—Rule 69. [And under the practice, it is sufficient for him to offer such an excuse at any subsequent period of the session.]

"It shall be the duty of a committee to meet on the call of any two of its members, if the chairman be absent, or decline to appoint such meeting."—Rule 70. Who shall call a meeting of a committee.

"No committee shall sit during the sitting of the House without special leave."—Rule 72. And "so soon as the House sits, and a committee is notified of it, the chairman is in duty bound to rise instantly, and the members to attend the service of the House."—Manual, p. 66. [But upon the suggestion to the House by a member of a committee that it is important to the dispatch of public business that they should have such leave, it is usually granted, especially near the close of a session.] Committees shall not sit while House is sitting, without leave.

"Committees may be appointed to sit during a recess by adjournment, but not by prorogation. Neither house can continue any portion of itself in any parliamentary function beyond the end of the session without the consent of the other two branches. When done, it is by a bill constituting them commissioners for the particular purpose."—Manual, p. 132. [This has been construed (and, in view of the distinction which exists between a "session" of Parliament and of Congress, very properly so) not to restrain a committee of the House, with the leave of the House, from sitting during the recess between a first and second session of Congress.]—(See Journal, 1, 32, p. 1119.) Committees sitting during recess.

"No committee shall be permitted to employ a clerk at the public expense without first obtaining leave of the House for that purpose."—Rule 73. [Such leave is usually granted to a portion of the committees for a part or the whole of the session, as they may deem the service necessary; and three of the committees have permanent clerks, viz.: of Claims, by resolution of February 18, 1843; of Ways and Means, by resolution of February 18, 1856; and on Public Lands, by resolution of May 27, 1862.] Clerks of committees.

"When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order: the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union; the Committee of the Whole House; a standing committee; a select committee."—Rule 43. [But where more than one Precedence of different motions to refer.

standing committee is proposed, the last one proposed is first voted upon, as an amendment to strike out and insert.]

Precedence of motion to commit over other motions, and of others over it.

"When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend; to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged; and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill or proposition."—Rule 42.

Motion to commit not to be repeated at same stage on same day.

A bill, when ready for commitment.

"Upon the second reading of a bill, the Speaker shall state it as ready for commitment."—Rule 118.

Previous question brings the House to vote first on motion to commit.

"After the previous question is ordered, if no motion to postpone is pending, the House is first brought to a direct vote on the motion to commit, if such motion shall have been made."—Rule 132.

Committee can only act when met together.

"A committee meet when and where they please, if the House has not ordered time and place for them; but they can only act when together, and not by separate consultation and consent, nothing being the report of a committee but what has been agreed to in committee actually assembled."—Manual, p. 85.

A quorum of a committee. Not necessary that committee be full. Nor that every member was notified of an adjourned meeting.

"A majority of the committee constitutes a quorum for business."—Manual, p. 85. But it is not necessary that the committee shall be full when a paper is acted upon.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 1143. Nor is it even necessary that every member shall have been notified of an adjourned meeting, if it shall appear that at such meeting a quorum was present, and that a majority of such quorum authorized a report to be made.—Same Journal, pp. 1433, 1434.

Petitions, how to be referred to committees.

"A committee cannot receive a petition but through the House."—Manual, p. 66. "Members having petitions and memorials to present may hand them to the Clerk, endorsing the same with their names, and the reference or disposition to be made thereof; and such petitions and memorials shall be entered on the Journal, subject to the control and direction of the Speaker."—Rule 131. [This is the only mode of presenting a petition for reference now recognized by the rules. The rule, however, is construed to authorize the withdrawal of old papers from the files for the purpose of reference to the appropriate committee. And, in this connection, it may not be improper to call attention to that portion of this rule, which requires that the name of the member and that of the committee shall be endorsed upon the paper to be referred. In order to secure its appearance in the daily newspapers, members should furnish a memorandum of the contents and reference of the same to the reporters.]

Members should endorse the papers referred by them.

Newspapers to be furnished with a memorandum.

"The Clerk may deliver the bill to any member of the committee, but it is usual to deliver it to him who is first named."—Manual, p. 84. [In the House of Representatives the long-settled practice has been, where the committee have a regular place of meeting, as is the case with all the standing committees, for the Clerk to take down to the committee-room and deposit there all matters referred to said committee, and make an entry of the same in the docket of the committee; and when they have no committee-room, as is the case with some of the select committees, to deliver the matter referred to the chairman,]

Matters referred, how delivered to the committee.

It is not competent for the House to instruct a committee to amend a bill in a manner that the House itself cannot amend it.—Journal, 2, 35, p. 389. [Indeed, it is the well-settled practice that the House cannot instruct a committee to do what the House itself cannot do.]

Not competent to instruct committee to do what House itself cannot do.

A division of the question is not in order on a motion to commit or recommit with instructions, or on the different branches of instructions.—Journals, 1, 17, p. 507; 1, 31, pp. 1395, 1397; and 1, 32, p. 611.

To commit with instructions not divisible.

"The committee may not erase, interline, or blot the bill itself, but must, in a paper by itself, set down the amendments, stating the words which are to be inserted or omitted, and where, by reference to the page, line, and word of the bill."—Manual, p. 87.

How amendments are to be noted by a committee.

"When a vote is once passed in a committee it cannot be altered but by the House, their votes being binding on themselves."—Manual, p. 87.

No reconsideration of a vote in committee.

"If the committee are opposed to the whole paper, and think it cannot be made good by amendments, they cannot reject it, but must report it back to the House without amendments, and there make their opposition."—Manual, p. 86.

Committee cannot reject a paper

Committee cannot change title or subject.

"The committee have full power over the bill or other paper, except that they cannot change the title or subject."—Manual, p. 85.

When and in what order committees are to report.

"As soon as the Journal is read, and the unfinished business in which the House was engaged at the last preceding adjournment has been disposed of, reports from committees shall be called for and disposed of; in doing which the Speaker shall call upon each standing committee in the following order, viz.:

Committee of Elections.
Committee of Ways and Means.
Committee on Appropriations.
Committee on Banking and Currency.
Committee on the Pacific Railroad.
Committee of Claims.
Committee on Commerce.
Committee on the Public Lands.
Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.
Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department.
Committee on Expenditures in the Post Office Department.
Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department.
Committee on Expenditures on the Public Buildings.

And when all the standing committees shall have been called on, then it shall be the duty of the Speaker to call for reports from select committees: if the Speaker shall not get through the call upon the committees before the House passes to other business, he shall resume the call where he left off, giving preference to the report last under consideration. Provided, That whenever any committee shall have occupied the morning hour on two days, it shall not be in order for such committee to report further until the other committees shall have been called in their turn. [But this proviso does not restrain the House from occupying the morning hour on more than two days in the consideration of a report.] On the call for reports from committees on each alternate Monday, which shall commence as soon as the Journal is read, all bills reported during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be committed, without debate, to the Committee of the Whole, and, together with their accompanying reports, printed; and if during the hour all the committees are not called, then, on the next alternate Monday, the Speaker shall commence where such call was suspended: Provided, That no bill reported under the call on alternate Mondays, and committed, shall be again brought before the House by a motion to reconsider."—Rule 51. [And so rigidly is this rule adhered to, that the Speaker uniformly declines to entertain a request for unanimous consent to do other business during the hour set apart for reports on Monday.]

Call of, to be resumed where left off.

After occupying morning hours on two days, not to report further.

Reports from, on each alternate Monday.

Call of committees for reports, how interfered with.

[The regular daily call for reports as provided for by this rule is liable to be interfered with by "special orders," "questions of privilege," and "privileged questions," also by the "call of States for bills on leave and resolutions," which by Rule 130 is in order every alternate Monday, and "motions to suspend the rules," which, by Rule 145, may be submitted every Monday, at the expiration of one hour after the Journal is read. So, too, by Rule 128, the call of committees is limited on Fridays and Saturdays to "business of a private nature."]

What committees report at any time.

"It shall be in order for the Committee on Enrolled Bills and the Committee on Printing to report at any time—Rules 100 and 101—and also for the Committee on Appropriations to report (for the purpose of reference) the general appropriation bills at any time"—Rule 77—and the Committee of Ways and Means have leave to report, for commitment, at any time.—Rule 151.

"A committee having leave to report at all times may report in part at different times."—Journal, 1, 27, p. 104.

Right to report carries right to consider.

The right to report at any time carries with it the right to consider the matter when reported.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 195. And where authority is given to a committee to make a report at a particular time, the right follows to consider the report when made.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 1409.

Have leave to report by bill or otherwise.

"The several standing committees of the House shall have leave to report by bill or otherwise."—Rule 71.

Committee cannot report on a subject not referred by the rules or otherwise.

It is not competent for a committee to report a bill where the subject-matter has not been referred to them by the House, by the rules, or otherwise.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 590.

Bill may be reported with a recommendation that it do not pass.

A bill may be reported with a recommendation that it do not pass, if based upon a paper regularly referred.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 785.

Select committee, how dissolved and revived.

"The report being made, the committee is dissolved, and can act no more without a new power. But it may be revived by a vote, and the same matter recommitted to them."—Manual, p. 88. [This evidently refers to a select committee, and, under the practice of the House, a motion to recommit decided affirmatively has the effect of reviving the committee. —See Journal, 2, 37, p. 874; 3, 37, p. 487 to 489.]

If it is disputed that a report has been ordered in by a committee, the question of reception must be put to the House.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 1410. Dispute as to whether committee have ordered report.

A minority of a committee cannot make a report, a minority not being the committee.—Journal, 1, 24, p. 562. [The common practice, however, is to permit the minority to submit their views in writing, which are usually printed and considered with the majority report.] Minority cannot make a report.

The chairman of a committee submitting a report has a right to read it.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 409. Chairman may read report.

"A member reporting the measure under consideration from a committee may open and close the debate."—Rule 60; and, under the invariable practice, he is entitled to be recognized, notwithstanding another member may have risen first and addressed the chair.—Journal, 3, 27, p. 211; and his right to close the debate is never denied him, even after the previous question is ordered, or debate has been closed.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1056. Right of member reporting to debate.

"The proceedings of a committee are not to be published, as they are of no force till confirmed by the House."—Manual, p. 66. Proceedings of committee not to be published.

It is not in order to allude on the floor to any thing that has taken place in committee, unless by a written report sanctioned by a majority of the committee.—Journals, 1, 26, p. 418; 1, 31, p. 393. Reference to proceedings in committee not in order.

"After commitment and report thereof to the House, or at any time before its passage, a bill may be recommitted; and should such recommitment take place after its engrossment, and an amendment be reported and agreed to by the House, the question shall be again put on the engrossment of the bill."—Rule 124. But recommitment cannot be moved after the previous question is ordered.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 643. Recommitment.

"If a report be recommitted before agreed to in the House, what has passed in committee is of no validity; the whole question is again before the committee, and a new resolution must be again moved, as if nothing had passed."—Manual, p. 88. Effect of recommitment.

"Two motions to recommit are not in order at the same stage of a bill."—Journal, 1, 20, April 11. Repetition of motion to recommit.

Select committee, how created and filled.

[A select committee is created either by resolution, when resolutions are in order, or upon motion to refer, when the subject to be referred is before the House; the number of which it is to consist being designated in the resolution or motion.] Under the parliamentary law—Manual, pp. 83, 84—"none who speak directly against the body of the bill" are to be of the committee to which it is referred. The spirit of this law has prevailed in the House so far as that, in the formation of a select committee, in the case of the reference of a bill, a majority of the friends of the measure referred, and in the case of an investigation, a majority of those favorable to the proposed investigation, are usually appointed thereon; and the member proposing the select committee is usually appointed the chairman.]

Select committees do not hold over.

Select committees do not hold quent session after their appointment—Journal, 2, 32, p. 207—unless specially authorized to do so.—Ibid., 1, 35, p. 1020.

Administering of oaths by chairman of committees.

A chairman of a select committee (Stat. at Large, Vol. I, p. 554), and a chairman of any standing committee (Stat. at Large, Vol. III, p. 345), shall be empowered to administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses in any case under their examination.

Failure of witness to appear or testify.

Any person summoned as a witness by authority of the House to give testimony or to produce papers upon any matter before the House or any committee thereof, who shall willfully make default, or who, appearing, shall refuse to answer any question pertinent to the matter of inquiry in consideration before the House or committee by which he shall be examined, shall, in addition to the pains and penalties now existing, be liable to indictment as for a misdemeanor.

Duty of Speaker on failure of witness to testify.

And when a witness shall fail to testify, as above, and the facts shall be reported to the House, it shall be the duty of the Speaker to certify the fact under the seal of the House to the district attorney for the District of Columbia.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, p. 155.—(See also WITNESS.)

COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE.

[The rules and practice of the House recognize two Committees of the Whole, viz., the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, to which are referred public bills and public business, and the Committee of the Whole House, to which are referred private bills and private business.] Two Committees of the Whole.

"When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order: The Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union; the Committee of the Whole House; a standing committee; a select committee."—Rule 43. Order of taking questions of commitment.

"The House may at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, suspend the rules and orders for the purpose of going into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union."—Rule 104. Motion to go into, in order at any time.

[On Fridays and Saturdays, which, under Rule 128, are set apart for the consideration of private business, the motion to go into Committee of the Whole House on the private calendar takes precedence of the motion to go into Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, but upon a failure of the former motion the latter motion may be entertained on those days. If the previous question shall have been seconded upon any pending proposition, under the practice it is not in order to entertain the motion to go into Committee of the Whole until it is disposed of.] Fridays and Saturdays. Seconding of previous question prevents motion to go into.

It is in order, pending a motion to go to business on the Speaker's table, to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union. —Journal, 2, 32, pp. 155, 228. Motion to go into, takes precedence of motion to go to business on Speaker's table.

"In forming a Committee of the Whole House, the Speaker shall leave his chair, and a chairman to preside in committee shall be appointed by the Speaker."—Rule 105. How formed.

"In case of any disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Speaker (or chairman of the Committee of the Whole House) shall have power to order the same to be cleared."—Rule 9. Chairman of, may administer oaths.

The chairman of the Committee of the Whole has power to administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses in any case under its examination.—Stat. at Large, Vols. I, p. 554; III, p. 345.

Quorum of.

"The quorum of a Committee of the Whole is the same as that of the House."—Manual, p. 67.

Speaker takes chair to receive messages and report of Committee on Enrolled Bills.

"If a message is announced during a committee, the Speaker takes the chair and receives it, because the committee cannot." —Manual, p. 68. [So, too, during a committee, the Speaker often takes the chair to receive the report of the Committee on Enrolled Bills, which having been announced, the chairman resumes the chair, and the House is again in committee.]

Want of quorum.

"Whenever the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, or the Committee of the Whole House, finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall cause the roll of the House to be called, and thereupon the committee shall rise, and the chairman shall report the names of the absentees to the House, which shall be entered on the Journal."—Rule 106. [And all members are reported as absentees who fail to answer when their names are called, for, upon the completion of the roll, the chairman immediately vacates the chair. Whenever, upon such roll call, a quorum answer to their names, and that fact is reported to the House, the Speaker declines to receive any motion whatever, and the committee resumes its session without further order. But if no quorum answer, a motion to adjourn, or for a call of the House, is in order; and if upon either of said motions a quorum shall vote, and the House refuse to adjourn or to order a call, the session of the committee is immediately resumed.—Journals, 2, 27, p. 592; 1, 29, p. 356; 2, 29, p. 343; 2, 32, p. 388.]

Debate in, on the State of the Union.

"No member shall occupy more than one hour in debate on any question in the House or in committee, but a member reporting the measure under consideration from a committee may open and close the debate: Provided, That when debate is closed by order of the House, any member shall be allowed, in committee, five minutes to explain any amendment he may offer, after which any member who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed to speak five minutes in opposition to it; and there shall be no further debate on the amendment; but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to the amendment; and neither the amendment nor an amendment to the amendment shall be withdrawn by the mover thereof, unless by the unanimous consent of the committee. Provided, further, That the House may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has taken place upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph, or at their election upon the pending amendments only.—Rule 60."

All debate may be closed.

"The House may at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, provide for the discharge of the Committee of the Whole House, and the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, from the further consideration of any bill referred to it, after acting without debate on all amendments pending and that may be offered."—Rule 104. the 1st proviso of the 60*th rule* (recited in the foregoing paragraph) commences upon the adoption of the order under this rule. The following is the form of resolution (sanctioned by long practice) for closing the hour debate, viz.: "Resolved, That all debate in the Committee of the Whole House (or Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, as the case may be), on (here insert title of bill or subject upon which it is proposed to close debate) shall cease (here insert time at which it is proposed to close debate), if the committee shall not sooner come to a conclusion upon the same; and the committee shall then proceed to vote on such amendments as may be pending or offered to the same, and shall then report it to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted by the committee." [The proposition to close debate may be made at any time, taking precedence even of a motion to go into Committee of the Whole; but to be in order at all, the subject upon which it is proposed to close debate must have been previously taken up and considered by the committee.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 147. This rule is construed to apply as well to messages as bills; indeed, to all subjects committed.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 146. And debate may be closed upon any one of the subjects referred to in a message.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 147. The right of the member who reports the measure under consideration to close debate is held not to be affected by this rule; but he may make his closing speech after the arrival of the time at which the House has directed that debate shall cease.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1056; and such has been the invariable practice ever since.]

Form of resolution for closing debate.

Subject must have been previously considered.

Rule applies to messages as well as bills.

Member reporting measure still has right to close debate.

Where general debate has been closed, a member is not at liberty to speak in opposition to his own amendment.—Cong. Globe, 1, 31, p. 1408. Nor can he debate the main proposition.—Ibid., 2, 32, p. 1723.

Member offering amendment cannot speak against it, or to main question.

Debate having been closed at a particular hour by order of the House, it is not competent for the committee, even by unanimous consent, to extend the time.—Cong. Globe, 2, 32, pp. 784, 785.

Where debate closed, time cannot be extended by.

It is in order for the committee to lay aside a bill after having gone through with it, and, before rising, to proceed through with a bill on which debate closed.

"All amendments made to an original motion in committee shall be incorporated with the motion and so reported."—Rule 108. [Bills and resolutions are sometimes originally moved in Committees of the Whole, having for their bases messages or reports previously referred and then up for consideration.]

Amendments to an original motion.

Bills and resolutions originating in Committees of the Whole.

"All amendments made to a report committed to a Committee of the Whole House shall be noted and reported as in the case of bills."—Rule 109.

Amendments to a report.

If the committee shall amend a clause, and subsequently strike out the clause as amended, the first amendment thereby falls, and cannot be reported to the House and voted on.—Journal, 2, 31, p. 346. [So, too, if the committee shall amend a bill ever so much, and subsequently adopt a substitute therefor, the bill is to be reported to the House with but a single amendment, viz., the substitute; and the House has only to choose between the original bill and the substitute.]

An amended clause subsequently stricken out.

Bill amended and substitute afterwards adopted.

In Committee of the Whole a motion to rise, like the motion to adjourn in the House, may be made at any time; and when at the rising a member is entitled to the floor, he is entitled to occupy it in preference to any other member at the next sitting of the committee.—Cong. Globe, 1, 31, pp. 358, 388. And a member occupying the floor may yield it to another member to move that the committee rise, without losing his right to reoccupy it at the next sitting.—Ibid., 2, 31, p. 645. The motion to rise may be withdrawn at any time before the vote thereon is announced.—Ibid., 1, 31, p. 318.

Motion to rise.

Member does not lose his right to floor by rising, and may yield for that purpose.

Motion to rise may be withdrawn before vote announced.

"No motion or proposition for a tax or charge upon the people shall be discussed the day on which it is made or offered, and every such proposition shall receive its first discussion in a Committee of the Whole House."—Rule 110. and so in respect to the time of its continuance."—Rule 111.

Appropriations of money to be first discussed in.

"All proceedings touching appropriations of money shall be first discussed in a Committee of the Whole House."—Rule 112.—(See APPROPRIATION BILLS.)

Amendments to appropriation bills.

"No appropriation shall be reported in the general appropriation bills, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law, unless in continuation of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress, and for the contingencies for carrying on the several departments of the government."—Rule 120.

An amendment in the nature of a private claim on the government is not in order to a general appropriation bill.—Cong. Globe, 1, 31, pp. 1617, 1651; 2, 32, p. 736; 1, 33, pp. 385, 1483.

Cannot rule out of order any part of the bill committed.

[In the case of an appropriation reported by the Committee on Appropriations in conflict with the 120*th rule*, and committed with the bill, it is not competent for the Committee of the Whole to rule it out of order, because the House having committed the bill are presumed to have received, as in order, the report in its entirety. So far as proposed amendments are concerned, the current of decisions in Committees of the Whole has been to exclude, not only all appropriations not previously authorized by law (with the exceptions contained in the rule), but also all independent legislation; tolerating, however, limitations and provisoes as to appropriations which are themselves in order.]

the House. After report, the bill shall again be subject to be debated and amended by clauses before a question to engross it be taken."—Rule 107. [The first reading herein required is usually dispensed with, but of course only by unanimous consent. Since the practice has obtained of printing all bills upon the order for their commitment, the amendments are usually noted upon a copy of the bill. The debate and amendment after report of a bill is usually precluded by an order for the previous question.]

A clause or section cannot be recurred to when passed over.

Where a bill is being considered by clauses or sections, and the committee has passed from the consideration of a particular clause or section, it is not in order to recur thereto.—Cong. Globe, 2, 32, p. 730; 2, 35, p. 1422.

How bills are taken up in Union.

"In Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, the bills shall be taken up and disposed of in their order on the calendar; but when objection is made to the consideration of a bill, a majority of the committee shall decide, without debate, whether it shall be taken up and disposed of or laid aside: Provided, That general appropriation bills, and, in time of war, bills for raising men or money, and bills concerning a treaty of peace, shall be preferred to all other bills, at the discretion of the committee; and when demanded by any member, the question shall first be put in regard to them."—Rule 114. [Where a bill has been taken up and is left undisposed of at the rising of the committee, it is the business first in order when the House shall again resolve itself into committee.]

Preferred bills in.

Amendments from, not divisible.

Where an amendment is reported from the Committee of the Whole as an entire and distinct proposition, it cannot be divided, but must be voted upon as a whole.—Journals, 1, 28, p. 1061; 1, 29, pp. 366, 642; 1, 30, p. 1059; 2, 30, pp. 574, 575.

Forms of report to the House.

[The following are the usual forms of report by the chairman of the Committee of the Whole, viz.:

In case of report with or without amendment.

"The Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union having, according to order, had the state of the Union generally under consideration, and particularly (here insert title of bill or other matter), have directed me to report the same with (or without, as the case may be) amendments."

In case of failure to get through.

Where the committee have failed to get through with the matter before them, instead of saying "have directed me to report," &c., say, "have come to no resolution thereon."

In case of want of quorum.

Where the committee have risen for want of a quorum, instead of saying "have directed me to report," &c., say, "having found itself without a quorum, I caused the roll to be called, and herewith report the names of the absentees to the House."

Reports from a Committee of the Whole House.

In case of reports from a Committee of the Whole House, omit the words "on the State of the Union" where they first occur, and strike out the words "state of the Union," where they next occur, and insert "private calendar."

Report of, when received and considered.

[The report of the chairman of the Committee of the Whole is invariably received immediately upon the rising of the committee, and, under the uniform practice, the bill or other proposition reported is the business then in order for the consideration of the House. It might be otherwise in case it was made to appear that a quorum was not present when it was proposed to make the report.] But a mere assertion of the fact, without evidence, that a quorum is not present, will not prevent the reception of the report.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 814, 822.

It is also the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House and the Secretary of the Senate, respectively, to deduct from the monthly payment of any member the amount of his compensation for each day that such member shall be absent from the House or Senate, respectively, unless such representative, senator, or delegate shall assign as the reason for such absence the sickness of himself or of some member of his family.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, p. 48.

Deduction from, in case of absence.

By the Joint Resolution of July 17, 1862, active employment in the military service for the suppression of the rebellion without pay, is declared to be a valid excuse for absence from duty in Congress. And it is further declared that withdrawal from his seat by a member without leave, in anticipation of, and before, the adjournment of Congress, shall, in addition to the deduction provided by the foregoing act, work a forfeiture of his mileage for returning home, the amount of which shall be deducted from his compensation.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 628.

Excuse for absence.

Further deduction from, in case of absence.

By a resolution of the House of March 4, 1842, the Sergeant-at-Arms is required to deduct the amount of the excess of stationery over the value of $45 for a long and $25 for a short session, received by a member, from the pay and mileage of such member.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 495.

The compensation which shall be due the members of each house shall be certified to by the presiding officers thereof, respectively; and the same shall be passed as public accounts, and paid out of the public treasury.—Stat. at Large, Vol. III; p. 404. Of member who shall die after the commencement of Congress.

By the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1859, it is provided that whenever, hereafter, any member of the House of Representatives shall die after the commencement of the Congress to which he shall have been elected, compensation shall be computed and paid his widow, or, if no widow survive him, to his heirs-at-law, for the period that shall have elapsed from the commencement of such Congress as aforesaid: Provided, That compensation shall be computed and paid in all cases for a period of not less than three months; and in no case shall constructive mileage be computed or paid. The compensation of each person elected or appointed afterwards to supply the vacancy so occasioned shall hereafter be computed and paid from the time the compensation of his predecessor is hereby directed to be computed and paid for, and not otherwise.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, pp. 442, 443.

Of member elected to fill vacancy.

By the Joint Resolution of July 12, 1862, it is provided that in all cases of a vacancy in either house of Congress, by death or otherwise, of any member elected or appointed thereto, after the commencement of the Congress to which he shall have been elected, each person afterwards elected or appointed to fill such vacancy shall be compensated and paid from the time that the compensation of his predecessor ceased: Provided, That no member shall receive for his compensation more than three thousand dollars for any one year. —Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 624.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.

When conferences are asked.

"It is on the occasion of amendments between the houses that conferences are usually asked; but they may be asked in all cases of difference of opinion between the two houses on matters depending between them."—Manual, p. 124.

In case of dis-

"In every case of an amendment of a bill agreed to in one house and dissented to in the other, if either house shall request a conference and appoint a committee to confer, and the other house shall also appoint a committee to confer, such committee shall, at a convenient hour, to be agreed upon by their chairman, meet in the conference chamber, and state to each other, verbally or in writing, as either shall choose, the reasons of their respective houses for and against the amendment, and confer freely thereon."—Joint Rule 1. Agreement as to amendments.

[Usually, and especially towards the close of a session, the request of the Senate for a conference is reciprocated immediately upon its being communicated to the House; but such request can only be considered in order at the time that messages from the Senate on the Speaker's table are in order.] Request of Senate for, when considered.

The usual course of proceeding previous to a conference is for one house to disagree to the other's amendment, and for the amending house to insist upon its amendment and ask a conference.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 711, 933, 1062. But it sometimes happens, near the close of a session, that one house disagrees to the other's amendment and thereupon asks a conference.—Journal, 1, 3, pp. 221, 222; 2, 35, p. 564. Usual proceeding previous to.

A conference sometimes takes place after one house has adhered.—Journal, 1, 3, pp. 281, 283; 2, 3, p. 254; 1, 34, pp. 1600, 1602; 1, 35, pp. 604, 615, 620; Senate Journal, January 20, 1834; Manual, p. 125. Conference after adherence.

"In the ordinary parliamentary course there are two free conferences at least before an adherence."—Manual, p. 122. There are sometimes three and even four conferences before a matter of difference is disposed of.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 943, 1600; 1, 35, p. 1136. At least two conferences before adherence.

In the case of disagreeing votes between the two houses, the House may either recede, insist, and ask a conference, or adhere, and motions for such purposes take precedence in that order.—(See Manual, pp. 110, 111; Journal, 1, 23, p. 229; 1, 34, pp. 1516 to 1518.) To recede, to insist, to adhere.

[Indeed, under the practice, reports of conference committees are received at any time except when the rules are suspended during the pendency of a motion to adjourn or to adjourn over, and, like the motion to go to the Speaker's table, may interrupt a member who is on the floor speaking.]

Member of, absent.

[A member of a conference committee who may be absent on the business of the committee, is, according to the practice, understood to be absent by leave of the House.]

Where unable to agree.

Where a conference committee is unable to agree, that fact is reported, and another committee is usually asked for and appointed.—Journals, 1, 31, p. 1681; 1, 34, pp. 919, 938, 1516, 1518; 3, 34, p. 663; 1, 35, p. 1118.

Where report disagreed to.

So, too, when a report is disagreed to, another conference usually takes place.—Journals, 2, 27, p. 1248; 3, 34, pp. 653, 655; 1, 35, pp. 1105, 1106.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS.

(See SECRET SESSION.)

CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY.

By whom compiled.

By the Joint Resolution of February 14, 1865, it is provided that the Congressional Directory shall be compiled under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing, and published by the Superintendent of Public Printing; the first edition of each session to be ready for distribution within one week after the commencement thereof.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 568. When to be ready for distribution.

CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE.

The daily proceedings of the House, including the debates, are published in the Congressional Globe. And, in order to facilitate the reporting of the same, the doorkeeper was directed, by a resolution of the House (Journal, 1, 32, p. 70), to provide chairs for its reporters, to be placed in front of the Clerk's desk. An appropriation is annually made to furnish each member and delegate with twenty-four copies of the Congressional Globe and Appendix.

A record is required to be made in the Congressional Globe, immediately after the names of those voting in the affirmative and negative, of those not voting on any call of the yeas and nays.—Rule 149. Names of members not voting to be recorded in.

By the Act of July 4, 1864, the Clerk is directed to purchase from the publishers, for each representative and delegate of that and each succeeding Congress, who has not heretofore received the same, one complete set of the Congressional Globe and Appendix—that and the other provisions of said Act to be abrogated by either Congress or the publishers after two years' notice.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 392. Complete set of, to be furnished each member.

By the Act of March 2, 1865, it is provided that the proceedings of Congress shall be published in the Daily Globe of the day subsequent to the day such proceedings were had, and delivered to both houses at their time of meeting; but the daily publication of not more than forty columns of such proceedings is required, and speeches not actually delivered shall be postponed until the same can be published without increasing the extent of proceedings beyond forty columns.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 460. Proceedings shall appear in next daily paper, &c.

CONSIDERATION.

When question of, to be put.

"When any motion or proposition is made, the question 'Will the House now consider it?' shall not be put, unless it is demanded by some member, or is deemed necessary by the Speaker."—Rule 41. And it is competent for a member to raise the question of consideration upon a report, even though a question of privilege is involved in the report.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 1083, 1085. But after a question has been stated, and its discussion commenced, it is too late to raise the question of consideration.—Journal, 1, 17, pp. 296, 297. When any member is about to speak in debate, or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker."—Rule 57.

"When two or more members happen to rise at once, the Speaker shall name the member who is first to speak."—Rule 59. Debate may be closed in Committee of the Whole.

But the subject must have been considered in Committee of the Whole; and this rule applies as well to messages as bill.—Journal, 1, 32, pp. 146, 147.

But subject must have been considered in committee.

Not allowed on resolutions or bills on leave on day of presentation.

By Rule 52 debate on the day of their presentation is prohibited upon resolutions submitted on the call of the States and Territories after the reports of committees; and by Rule 130, all resolutions submitted on the alternate Mondays which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion at least until all the States and Territories are called. And it has been decided (Journal, 1, 26, pp. 557, 763) that bills introduced on leave upon the call for resolutions, and which give rise to debate, must also lie over. It is a very common practice, however, when a resolution is submitted under these rules, for the mover to immediately demand the previous question, which, if ordered, prevents debate and brings the House to a direct vote on the resolution—thus avoiding the necessity for its lying over.—Journal, 1, 26, pp. 1064, 1067; 2, 27, p. 429; 1, 28, p. 558; 1, 29, p. 1235; 1, 30, p. 326.

Prohibited on bills reported or introduced on Mondays, during the first hour after the Journal is read.

By Rule 51 all debate is prohibited on bills reported during the first hour after the Journal is read on alternate Mondays; and by Rule 130 all bills introduced on leave during the first hour after Journal is read on alternate Mondays must be referred without debate.

Not allowed on private bills on 1st and 4th Fridays and Saturdays.

"On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month the calendar of private bills shall be called over, and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members."—Rule 129. [The universal practice under this rule is not to tolerate discussion in committee on any private bill on the days named; and it has been decided (Journal, 1, 31, p. 697) that the rule applies equally to bills in the House.]

Not allowed on motions to adjourn, to fix day and to lie on table.

"A motion to adjourn, and a motion to fix the day to which the House shall adjourn, shall be always in order; these motions, and the motion to lie on the table, shall be decided without debate."—Rule 44.

Not allowed on motion to be excused from voting.

"On a motion to excuse a member from voting, the question shall be taken without debate."—Rule 31.

Nor on previous question or incidental questions pending it.

"On a previous question there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate." And under Rule 132, after the main question is ordered, its effect shall be "to put an end to all debate." And "the House may also, at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill."

Nor on motion to reconsider third reading, while previous question is pending a passage.

Pending the demand for the previous question on the passage of a bill, it is not in order to debate a motion to reconsider the vote on its third reading; but the vote must be taken without debate.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 1009. Nor pending such demand is it in order even to ask a question of the mover of the proposition.—Journal, 1, 28, p. 1003.

Nor on questions of priority of business.

"All questions relating to the priority of business to be acted on shall be decided without debate."—Rule 66.

Nor on motions to suspend rules, or to reconsider votes on questions not debatable.

[It has been invariably held, too, that a motion to suspend the rules is not debatable; nor motions to reconsider votes on questions which were not themselves debatable, except where the original question was not debatable by reason of the order for the previous question.]

Nor after a member has answered to his name.

Where a question has been ordered to be taken by yeas and nays, and has been put by the Speaker, and upon the roll call a vote has been given by a member, further debate is precluded.—Journal, 2, 10, p. 446. Such continues to be the practice; but if a member rises before a response is given, and is recognized by the Chair, he may proceed to debate the question.—Journal, 1, 17, pp. 216, 217.

Of member who shall die after the commencement of Congress.

By the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1859, it is provided that whenever, hereafter, any member of the House of Representatives shall die after the commencement of the Congress to which he shall have been elected, compensation shall be computed and paid his widow, or, if no widow survive him, to his heirs-at-law, for the period that shall have elapsed from the commencement of such Congress as aforesaid: Provided, That compensation shall be computed and paid in all cases for a period of not less than three months; and in no case shall constructive mileage be computed or paid. The compensation of each person elected or appointed afterwards to supply the vacancy so occasioned shall hereafter be computed and paid from the time the compensation of his predecessor is hereby directed to be computed and paid for, and not otherwise.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, pp. 442, 443.

Of member elected to fill vacancy.

By the Joint Resolution of July 12, 1862, it is provided that in all cases of a vacancy in either house of Congress, by death or otherwise, of any member elected or appointed thereto, after the commencement of the Congress to which he shall have been elected, each person afterwards elected or appointed to fill such vacancy shall be compensated and paid from the time that the compensation of his predecessor ceased: Provided, That no member shall receive for his compensation more than three thousand dollars for any one year. —Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 624.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.

When conferences are asked.

In case of dis-

[Usually, and especially towards the close of a session, the quest of the Senate for a conference is reciprocated imme-iately upon its being communicated to the House; but such quest can only be considered in order at the time that mes-ages from the Senate on the Speaker's table are in order.] Request of Senate for, when considered.

The usual course of proceeding previous to a conference is or one house to disagree to the other's amendment, and for he amending house to insist upon its amendment and ask a nference.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 711, 933, 1062. But it metimes happens, near the close of a session, that one use disagrees to the other's amendment and thereupon ks a conference.—Journal, 1, 3, pp. 221, 222; 2, 35, p. 564. At least two conferences before adherence.

In the case of disagreeing votes between the two houses, e House may either recede, insist, and ask a conference, or here, and motions for such purposes take precedence in at order.—(See Manual, pp. 110, 111; Journal, 1, 23, 229; 1, 34, pp. 1516 to 1518.) To recede, to insist, to adhere.

[Indeed, under the practice, reports of conference committees are received at any time except when the rules are suspended during the pendency of a motion to adjourn or to adjourn over, and, like the motion to go to the Speaker's table, may interrupt a member who is on the floor speaking.]

Member of, absent.

[A member of a conference committee who may be absent on the business of the committee, is, according to the practice, understood to be absent by leave of the House.]

Where unable to agree.

Where a conference committee is unable to agree, that fact is reported, and another committee is usually asked for and appointed.—Journals, 1, 31, p. 1681; 1, 34, pp. 919, 938, 1516, 1518; 3, 34, p. 663; 1, 35, p. 1118.

Where report disagreed to.

So, too, when a report is disagreed to, another conference usually takes place.—Journals, 2, 27, p. 1248; 3, 34, pp. 653, 655; 1, 35, pp. 1105, 1106.

The committee may report agreement as to some of the matters of difference, but unable to agree as to others.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 1302.

Must be asked by house which has the papers.

"The request of a conference must always be by the house which is possessed of the papers."—Manual, p. 124.

Papers to be left with conferees of other house.

By whom compiled.

By the Joint Resolution of February 14, 1865, it is provided that the Congressional Directory shall be compiled under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing, and Complete set of, to be furnished each member.

By the Act of March 2, 1865, it is provided that the proceedings of Congress shall be published in the Daily Globe of the day subsequent to the day such proceedings were had, and delivered to both houses at their time of meeting; but the daily publication of not more than forty columns of such proceedings is required, and speeches not actually delivered shall be postponed until the same can be published without increasing the extent of proceedings beyond forty columns.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 460. CONSIDERATION.

When question of, to be put.

"When any motion or proposition is made, the question 'Will the House now consider it?' shall not be put, unless it is demanded by some member, or is deemed necessary by the Speaker."—Rule 41. And it is competent for a member to raise the question of consideration upon a report, even though a question of privilege is involved in the report.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 1083, 1085. But after a question has been stated, and its discussion commenced, it is too late to raise the question of consideration.—Journal, 1, 17, pp. 296, 297. Prohibited on bills reported or introduced on Mondays, during the first hour after the Journal is read.

By Rule 51 all debate is prohibited on bills reported during the first hour after the Journal is read on alternate Mondays; and by Rule 130 all bills introduced on leave during the first hour after Journal is read on alternate Mondays must be referred without debate.

Not allowed on private bills on 1st and 4th Fridays and Saturdays.

"On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month the calendar of private bills shall be called over, and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members."—Rule 129. [The universal practice under this rule is not to tolerate discussion in committee on any private bill on the days named; and it has been decided (Journal, 1, 31, p. 697) that the rule applies equally to bills in the House.]

Not allowed on motions to adjourn, to fix day and to lie on table.

"A motion to adjourn, and a motion to fix the day to which the House shall adjourn, shall be always in order; these motions, and the motion to lie on the table, shall be decided without debate."—Rule 44.

Not allowed on motion to be excused from voting.

"On a motion to excuse a member from voting, the question shall be taken without debate."—Rule 31.

Nor on previous question or incidental questions pending it.

"On a previous question there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate." And under Rule 132, after the main question is ordered, its effect shall be "to put an end to all debate." And "the House may also, at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill."

Nor on motion to reconsider third reading, while previous question is pending a passage.

Pending the demand for the previous question on the passage of a bill, it is not in order to debate a motion to reconsider the vote on its third reading; but the vote must be taken without debate.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 1009. Nor pending such demand is it in order even to ask a question of the mover of the proposition.—Journal, 1, 28, p. 1003.

Nor on questions of priority of business.

"All questions relating to the priority of business to be acted on shall be decided without debate."—Rule 66.

Nor on motions to suspend rules, or to reconsider votes on questions not debatable.

[It has been invariably held, too, that a motion to suspend the rules is not debatable; nor motions to reconsider votes on questions which were not themselves debatable, except where the original question was not debatable by reason of the order for the previous question.]

Nor after a member has answered to his name.

Where a question has been ordered to be taken by yeas and nays, and has been put by the Speaker, and upon the roll call a vote has been given by a member, further debate is precluded.—Journal, 2, 10, p. 446. Such continues to be the practice; but if a member rises before a response is given, and is recognized by the Chair, he may proceed to debate the question.—Journal, 1, 17, pp. 216, 217.

(See decision under latter clause of this rule, Journal, 2, 37, p. 610.) Member may be censured.

While the Speaker is putting any question, or addressing the House, none shall walk out of or across the House; nor in such case, or when a member is speaking, shall entertain private discourse; nor while a member is speaking shall pass between him and the Chair. "If repeated calls do not produce order, the Speaker may call by his name any member obstinately persisting in irregularity."—Manual, p. 76. Speaker may call member by name.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee for the District of Columbia to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching the said District as shall be presented, or shall come in question, and be referred to them by the House, and to report their opinion thereon, together with such propositions relative thereto as to them shall seem expedient."—Rule 82.

Its duties.

ELECTIONS, CONTESTED.

House may decide.

"Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members."—Const., 1, 5, 8.

Notice of contest.

By the Act of February 19, 1851 (Stat. at Large, Vol. IX, p. 568), it is provided that notice of intention to contest shall be given by contestant to returned member within thirty days after the result of the election shall be determined by the canvassers, specifying particularly the grounds upon which he relies in the contest.

Answer to notice.

Within thirty days after service of said notice the returned member shall answer the same, admitting or denying the alleged facts, and setting forth specifically any other grounds upon which he rests the validity of his election; and he shall serve a copy of his answer upon the contestant.

Before whom testimony may be taken.

Where either party desire to take testimony, application may be made to any judge of any court of the United States, or to any chancellor, judge, or justice of a court of record of any State, or to any mayor, recorder, or intendant of any town or city; said officer to reside within the congressional district in which said election was held, who shall issue subpœnas to the witnesses named.

Notice to be given to opposite party.

And, together with notice and answer, to be sent to Clerk of House of Representatives.

Contestant allowed to debate.

Upon the hearing of a case of contested election by the House, the courtesy of occupying a seat upon the floor, and of being heard in his own behalf, is usually extended by the House to the contestant—Journals, 1, 29, p. 278; 1, 34, p. 1258, &c.—and he is subject to all the rules of debate which are applicable to members.—Journal, 1, 28, p. 1012.

But subject to the rules.

[All questions relating to the right of a member to his seat are held to be questions of privilege, and hence take precedence of other business.] Contested election cases take precedence over other business.

ENACTING WORDS—STYLE OF.

The following is the enacting style made use of in Congress, viz.: "Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled." It rests entirely upon usage, not having been prescribed by the Constitution or any law or rule. Rests upon usage.

ENACTING WORDS—MOTION TO STRIKE OUT.

"A motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend; and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection."—March 13, 1822. Takes precedence of a motion to amend. Its effect, if carried.

"Whenever a bill is reported from a Committee of the Whole, with a recommendation to strike out the enacting words, and such recommendation is disagreed to by the House, the bill shall stand recommitted to the said committee without further action by the House."—Rule 123. Effect of disagreement to recommendation of committee.

The question which arises (under the recent practice) upon a report from the Committee of the Whole that the enacting words be stricken out is, "Shall the enacting words be stricken out?" and the previous question is exhausted upon the taking of such vote.—Journals, 1, 33, p. 872; 3, 34, p. 479; 1, 35, p. 107. Where reported with such recommendation, question that arises, &c.

ENGRAVING.

"Maps accompanying documents shall not be printed under the general order to print without the special direction of the House."—Rule 139. Maps not to be printed without special order.

By the Joint Resolution of June 23, 1860 (Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 119), it is provided that "when any charts, maps, diagrams, views, or other engravings, shall be required to illustrate any document ordered to be printed by either house of Congress, such engravings shall be procured by the Superintendent of the Public Printing, under the direction and To be procured by Superintendent of Public Printing, under direction of committee.

supervision of the Committee on Printing of the house ordering the printing of the same."—(See PRINTING, PUBLIC.)

To be referred to the House members of the Committee on Printing.

"There shall be referred by the Clerk to the members of the Committee on Printing on the part of the House, all drawings, maps, charts, or other papers, which may at any time come before the House for engraving, lithographing, or publishing in any way; which committee shall report to the House whether the same ought, in their opinion, to be published; and if the House order the publication of the same, that said committee shall direct the size and manner of execution of all such maps, charts, drawings, or other papers, and contract by agreement, in writing, for all such engraving, lithographing, printing, drawing, and coloring, as may be ordered by the House; which agreement, in writing, shall be furnished by said committee to the Committee of Accounts, to govern said committee in all allowances for such works; and it shall be in order for said committee to report at all times."—Rule 100.

Over two hundred and fifty dollars, to be awarded to lowest and best bidder.

By the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1863, it is directed that "all lithographing and engraving, where the probable cost exceeds two hundred and fifty dollars, shall be awarded to the lowest and best bidder for the interest of the government, after due advertisement by the Superintendent of Public Printing, under the direction of the Committee on Printing."—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 826: "Provided, That the Joint Committee on Public Printing be authorized to empower the Superintendent of Public Printing to make immediate contracts for engraving, whenever, in their opinion, the exigencies of the public service will not justify waiting for advertisement and award."—Ibid., Vol. XIII, p. 185.

(See also PRINTING, PUBLIC.)

ENGROSSED BILLS.

Engrossment, how executed.

"All bills ordered to be engrossed shall be executed in a fair round hand."—Rule 125.

To be on paper and signed by Clerk.

"While bills are on their passage between the two houses they shall be on paper, and under the signature of the Secretary or Clerk of each house respectively."—Joint Rule 5.

ENROLLED BILLS.

"After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled on parchment by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, or the Secretary of the Senate, as the bill may have originated in the one or the other house, before it shall be presented to the President of the United States."—Joint Rule 6. To be on parchment.

(See also ENROLLED BILLS, COMMITTEE ON.)

ENROLLED BILLS, COMMITTEE ON.

"When bills are enrolled, they shall be examined by a joint committee of two from the Senate and two from the House of Representatives, appointed as a standing committee for that purpose, who shall carefully compare the enrollment with the engrossed bills as passed in the two houses, and, correcting any errors that may be discovered in the enrolled bills, make their report forthwith to their respective houses."—Joint Rule 7. Shall examine and report enrolled bills.

"It shall be in order for the Committee on Enrolled Bills to report at any time."—Rule 101. [And it is a very common practice, when the House is in committee, for the Speaker to take the chair and receive such a report, and having signed the bill or bills reported, and the Clerk having read their titles, the committee resumes its session.] May report at any time.

"After examination and report, each bill shall be signed in the respective houses, first by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, then by the President of the Senate."—Joint Rule 8. After report, bill to be signed by Speaker.

"After a bill shall have been thus signed in each house, it shall be presented by the said committee to the President of the United States for his approbation (it being first endorsed on the back of the roll, certifying in which house the same originated, which endorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Clerk, as the case may be, of the house in which the same did originate), and shall be entered on the Journal of each house. The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the President, which time shall also be carefully entered on the Journal of each house."—Joint Rule 9. Shall present bill to President. Shall notify House of day of presentation.

Other matters to be enrolled, examined, &c.

"All orders, resolutions and votes which are to be presented to the President of the United States for his approbation shall also, in the same manner, be previously enrolled, examined and signed; and shall be presented in the same manner, and by the same committee, as provided in the cases of bills."—Joint Rule 10.

Not to present a bill to President on last day of session.

"No bill or resolution that shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall be presented to the President of the United States for his approbation on the last day of the session."—Joint Rule 17. [This rule is usually suspended on the last day of the session.]

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS.

Calls on.

Shall lie over one day.

"A proposition requesting information from the President of the United States, or directing it to be furnished by the head of either of the executive departments, shall lie on the table one day for consideration, unless otherwise ordered by the unanimous consent of the House; and all such propositions shall be taken up for consideration in the order they were presented, immediately after reports are called for from select committees, and, when adopted, the Clerk shall cause the same to be delivered."—Rule 53. [It is usual for the Clerk to deliver in person all calls upon the President, and to transmit by a messenger or through the mail calls upon the heads of departments.]

When adopted, Clerk to deliver.

List of reports called for to be made out by Clerk.

"It shall be the duty of the Clerk to make and cause to be printed, and deliver to each member at the commencement of every session of Congress, a list of the reports which it is the duty of any officer or department of the government to make to Congress, referring to the act or resolution, and page of the volume of the laws or Journal in which it may be contained; and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required of him to be made, and the time when the report may be expected."—Rule 13.

Communications from, when considered.

Messages and other executive communications are the business first in order whenever the House proceeds to the consideration of the business on the Speaker's table.—Rule 54. [It is the practice, however, of the Speaker, with the unanimous consent of the House (which is rarely refused), to lay such communications as shall not give rise to debate before the House immediately after the Journal is read, in order that they may be printed and referred.]

"The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day."—Const., 1, 4, 8. Shall be on first Monday in December.

"The President may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them."—Ibid., 2, 3, 18. President may call.

[On the day fixed for the first meeting of a Congress, either the first Monday of December, or such earlier day as may have been appointed by the President, the members elect assemble in the hall of the House of Representatives, and, at the hour of 12 o'clock M., are called to order by the Clerk of the last House, standing at his desk. Having requested the members elect to respond to their names as called, he proceeds to call the roll by States, beginning with the State of Maine. In making up said roll, he is directed to place thereon the names of all persons, and of such persons only, whose credentials show that they were regularly elected in accordance with the laws of their States respectively, or the laws of the United States.—(See Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 804.) The Clerk then designates two members (usually of different politics, and from the number of those voted for as Speaker) "to conduct the Speaker elect to the chair;" and also one member (usually that one who has been longest a member of the House) "to administer to him the oath required by the Constitution and laws of the United States." Having been conducted to the chair, it is usual for the Speaker to deliver to the House a brief address, which being concluded, the oath is administered to him, and he then takes his seat as the presiding officer of the House.—(See Members and delegates sworn. OATH.) He then directs the Clerk to call the roll of members by States, requesting each member, as his name is called, to approach the chair, when he administers to them the oath to support the Constitution of the United States. The delegates from the Territories are then called and sworn.
Senate notified of At this stage it is usual for the House to adopt an order "that a message be sent to the Senate to inform that body that a quorum of the House of Representatives has assembled, and that —— ——, one of the Representatives from the State of ———, has been chosen Speaker, and that the House is now ready to proceed to business." Presence of a quorum and election of Speaker.

And then, or upon the receipt of a message from the Senate informing the House of the presence of a quorum in that body, it is usual for the House to adopt the following order: "That a committee of three members be appointed on the part of the House, to join such committee as may be appointed on the part of the Senate, to wait on the President of the United States, and inform him that a quorum of the two houses has assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make." Committee to wait on President.

It has been usual to adopt a resolution providing "that the rules and orders of the last House of Representatives be adopted for the government of this House until otherwise ordered." The adoption of the following rule by the House, during the 36th Congress, may render such a resolution unnecessary in the future, viz.: "These rules shall be the rules of the House of Representatives of the present and succeeding Congresses, unless otherwise ordered."—Rule 147. Rules of last House adopted.

In the 26th Congress, where the Clerk, upon the call of the roll by States for the ascertainment of the presence of a quorum, proposed to omit the call of either of the claimants for each of several contested seats, on the fifth day of the session a chairman was appointed "to serve until the organi- Contested seats. Failure of majority to vote for Speaker.

In the 31st Congress, by reason of the failure of a majority to vote for any one candidate, there was no election of Speaker for nearly a month after the meeting.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 3 to 164.

And in the 34th Congress, for the same cause, an election of Speaker did not take place for two months after the meeting.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 3 to 446.

And also in the 36th Congress, for the same cause, the election of a Speaker was delayed for two months.—Journal, 1, 36.

Clerk presides.

During the three last-named periods, while the House was without a Speaker, the Clerk presided over its deliberations; not, however, exercising the functions of Speaker to the extent of deciding questions of order, but, as in the case of other questions, putting them to the House for its decision. To relieve future Houses of some of the difficulties which grew out of the very limited power of the Clerk as a presiding officer, the House of the 36th Congress adopted the present 146th and 147th rules, which provide, that "pending the election of a Speaker, the Clerk shall preserve order and decorum, and shall decide all questions of order that may arise, subject to appeal to the House," and also for the permanency of the present rules, "unless otherwise ordered."

Speaker elected by plurality vote.

In the 31st and 34th Congresses a Speaker was finally elected by a plurality vote; such mode of election, however, was previously authorized by a resolution of the House, and subsequently confirmed by a resolution declaring him "duly elected."—Journals, 1, 31, pp. 156, 163, 164; 1, 34, pp. 429, 430, 444.]

No member shall practise in the Court of Claims.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 766.

Not to receive compensation for any services wherein the U. S. is a party.

By the Act of June 11, 1864, it is provided that no member of the Senate or House of Representatives shall, after his election and during his continuance in office, nor shall any head of a department, head of a bureau, clerk, or any other officer of the government, receive or agree to receive any compensation whatsoever, directly or indirectly, for any services rendered, or to be rendered, after the passage of this act, to any person, either by himself or another, in relation to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other matter or thing in which the United States is a party, or directly or indirectly interested, before any department, court-martial, bureau, officer, or any civil, military, or naval commission whatever. MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT.

Shall from time to time give information and recommend measures.

"The President shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."—Const., 2, 3, p. 18.

Annual message.

The annual message of the President, with the accompanying documents, is usually communicated to the House at the commencement of each session, but usually not until after he has been notified through a joint committee of the two houses that a quorum of each body has assembled, and is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make; although it was otherwise in the 34th and 36th Congresses, the message having been communicated on the first occasion on the 31st of December, and on the latter not only before the appointment of such committee, but before the election of the Speaker, which latter did not take place until the month of February.—(See Journals, 1, 34, pp. 221 to 228, 231, 233, 444, 511; 1, 36.)

How announced.

All messages from the President are in writing, and are sent to the House by his private secretary, or such other person as he may delegate, and, as in the case of messages from the Senate, are announced at the door by the doorkeeper and handed to the Speaker, who places them upon his table,

"Where the subject of a message is of a nature that it can properly be communicated to both houses of Parliament, it is expected that this communication should be made to both on the same day. But where a message was accompanied with an original declaration, signed by the party to which the message referred, its being sent to one house was not noticed by the other, because the declaration, being original, could not possibly be sent to both houses at the same time."—Manual, p. 127. [So, too, in Congress, where they can be properly made, communications are expected to be made to both houses on the same day, except where the communication may be in response to a call from one branch only. The parliamentary practice prevails, too, in regard to the communication of an original paper.—See Journal, 1, 35, p. 270.]

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE.

Doorkeeper shall announce.

"When a message shall be sent from the Senate to the House of Representatives, it shall be announced at the door of the House by the doorkeeper, and shall be respectfully communicated to the Chair by the person by whom it may be sent."—Joint Rule 2.

By whom to be sent.

"Messages shall be sent by such persons as a sense of propriety in each house may determine to be proper."—Joint Rule 4. [In the House they are commonly sent by its Clerk; in the Senate, by its Secretary.]

If in Committee of the Whole, Speaker takes chair to receive.

"If the House be in committee when a messenger attends, the Speaker takes the chair to receive the message, and then quits it to return into committee, without any question or interruption."—Manual, p. 126. [It is the practice of the House to receive messages promptly upon the appearance of the messenger, and without regard to the business in hand; in case a member is occupying the floor in debate, he suspends his remarks until the announcement is made and the message received, and a call of the yeas and nays is not unfrequently suspended for the same purpose; but when received it is placed upon the Speaker's table, to be taken up at the time indicated in the 54th rule, viz., after "messages and other executive communications."]

Received promptly.

If error committed in message.

"If messengers commit an error in delivering their message, they may be admitted or called in to correct their message."—Manual, p. 126; Journal, 1, 2, pp. 171, 172.

MILEAGE.

Eight dollars for every 20 miles.

By the Act of January 22, 1818, it is provided that each member and delegate shall be "allowed eight dollars for every twenty miles of the estimated distance by the most usual road from his place of residence to the seat of Congress, at the commencement and end of every session."—Stat. at Large, Vol. III, p. 404. The Act of August 16, 1856, provides that such mileage shall be for "two sessions only," to be paid at the commencement of each "regular session."—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, p. 48.—(See COMPENSATION.)

For two sessions only.

Accounts for, to be kept by Sergeant-at-Arms.

"It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of members; to prepare checks, and, if required to do so, to draw the money on such checks for the members (the same being previously signed by the Speaker, and endorsed by the member), and pay over the same to the member entitled thereto."—Rule 25.

Forfeiture of, in certain case of absence.

By the Joint Resolution of July 17, 1862, it is provided, that in case a member shall, without leave, in anticipation of, and before, the adjournment of Congress, withdraw from his seat and not return, he shall, in addition to the penalty heretofore provided in case of absence, forfeit a sum equal to his mileage for his return home.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 628.

Constructive, not allowable in case of a member who may die.

By the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1859, it is provided, in reference to any member who may die after the commencement of the Congress to which he shall have been elected, that "in no case shall constructive mileage be computed or paid."—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, pp. 442, 443.

MILEAGE, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and number of.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Mileage, to consist of five members.—Rule 74.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Mileage to ascertain and report the distance, to the Sergeant-at-Arms, for which each member shall receive pay."—Rule 99.

MILITARY AFFAIRS, COMMITTEE ON.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Military Affairs, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74. When appointed, and number of.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Military Affairs to take into consideration all subjects relating to the military establishment and public defence which may be referred to them by the House, and to report their opinion thereupon; and also to report, from time to time, such measures as may contribute to economy and accountability in the said establishment."—Rule 87. Its duties.

MILITIA, COMMITTEE ON THE.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on the Militia, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74. When appointed, and number of.

MORNING HOUR.

The "morning hour," as it is called, is the hour after the reading of the Journal, which, under the 51st and 52d rules, has been "devoted to reports from committees and resolutions," and after the expiration of which it is in order, under the 54th rule, to entertain a motion "that the House do now proceed to dispose of the business on the Speaker's table," &c. MORNING HOUR ON MONDAYS.

Call of committees for reports during.

On Monday of each alternate week, immediately after the Journal is read, it is made the duty of the Speaker to call the committees for reports, and all bills reported during the first hour shall be committed to the Committee of the Whole, and with the reports thereon, printed; and no bill so reported and committed shall be brought before the House by a motion to reconsider; and the call of committees on each alternate Monday is to be resumed where last suspended.—Rule 51.

Call for bills on leave and resolutions during.

On each Monday succeeding that upon which the call for reports takes place as above, it is made the duty of the Speaker to call the States and Territories—first for bills on leave for reference only, and without debate, and not to be brought back by motions to reconsider; then for resolutions, at which time bills on leave may be introduced, and all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion.—Rule 130. [And so also in regard to bills introduced at this time and giving rise to debate. Ever since the foregoing rules have been in their present form the Speaker has declined to entertain even a request for unanimous consent to transact any other business within the time prescribed for calls for reports for commitment and bills on leave for reference.]

Devoted strictly to the prescribed business.

NEWSPAPERS.

Furnished to members.

[There is no standing order in regard to newspapers, but it is the practice of the House at the commencement of each Congress to adopt a resolution providing "that, during the present Congress, the Clerk of the House is authorized to furnish each representative and delegate with the same amount of newspapers as was authorized by the last House." The "amount" thus provided for is "not to exceed the cost per annum of five daily papers."—(See Journal, 1, 33, p. 53.) And an appropriation sufficient to cover this expense is annually made by Congress.]

B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have voluntarily given no aid, countenance, counsel, or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have neither sought nor accepted nor attempted to exercise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority or pretended authority in hostility to the United States; that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, authority, power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto. And I do further swear (or affirm) that, to the best of my knowledge and ability, I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter, so help me God;" which said oath so taken and signed shall be preserved among the files of the court, house of Congress, or department to which the said office may appertain. OBJECTION DAYS.

What are.

"On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month the calendar of private bills shall be called over (the chairman of the Committee of the Whole House commencing the call where he left off the previous day), and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members."—Rule 129. How presented and referred.

"Members having petitions and memorials to present may hand them to the Clerk, endorsing the same with their names, and the reference or disposition to be made thereof; and such petitions and memorials shall be entered on the Journal, subject to the control and direction of the Speaker; and if any petition or memorial be so handed in, which, in the judgment of the Speaker, is excluded by the rules, the same shall be returned to the member from whom it was received."—Rule 131.

Only regular

[There is now no other mode of presenting petitions prescribed by the rules, the old rule for presentation in the House having been rescinded December 12, 1853; and when a member desires to have a petition printed, it can only be done by unanimous consent, by a suspension of the rules, or by submitting a resolution to that effect when resolutions are in order.

Mode of presenting.

How ordered to be printed.

By the Act of March 3, 1863, it is provided that all petitions and bills praying or providing for the satisfaction of private claims against the government, founded upon any law of Congress, or upon any regulation of an executive department, or upon any contract, express or implied, with the government, shall, unless otherwise ordered by resolution of the House, be transmitted by the Clerk, with all the accompanying documents, to the Court of Claims.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 765.

What to be referred to Court of Claims.

Memorials and resolutions from State legislatures can only be presented in order in the manner above prescribed for "petitions and memorials;" but when it is desired to have them printed, unanimous consent therefor is usually accorded.

Memorials, &c., from State legislatures.

It is the practice under this rule to allow members to withdraw from the files of the House petitions and other papers presented at former sessions, and refer them, as in the case of new petitions; and, in order to have it done, it is only necessary for the member to notify the Clerk of his desire by written memorandum.

Withdrawal of old papers for reference to a committee.

Where a member desires to withdraw papers from the files for the purpose of reference in the Senate, or to one of the executive departments, it is usual for the House to give its unanimous consent whenever asked. But where the withdrawal is desired for the purpose of returning to the petitioner, the consent of the House is rarely given, unless it is provided that copies be left on file. And in all cases of withdrawal, except for reference to one of its committees, the consent of the House must first be had.

Withdrawal for reference to Senate or a department.

Withdrawal to return to petitioner.

Withdrawals generally.

Where a member desires the fact of the presentation of a petition by him under the 131st rule to appear in the newspapers of the day, he should furnish the reporters of such newspapers with a memorandum of the same; otherwise, as the proceeding does not occur in open House, no note will be taken of it.

Where member desires that presentation of, appear in newspapers.

Petitions, &c., thus presented are, as required by the rule, entered on the Journal, but that portion of the Journal is never read in the House.]

Name of member presenting entered on Journal.

"The name of the member who presents a petition or memorial shall be inserted on the Journal."—Rule 32.

Undisposed of at end of one session, to be resumed at next.

"All business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress, as if no adjournment had taken place."—Rule 136.

PLURALITY.

Shall prevail on second ballot for members of a committee.

"All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker unless otherwise specially directed by the House, in which case they shall be appointed by ballot; and if upon such ballot the number required shall not be elected by a majority of the votes given, the House shall proceed to a second ballot, in which a plurality of votes shall prevail," &c.—Rule 67.

[This is the only case, under the rules, where a plurality of votes may prevail; and as the appointment of committees by the Speaker is almost universally conceded, it can very rarely occur. There have been two occasions, however, within a few years past, where, prior to the adoption of the rules, the election of Speaker has been effected by a plurality vote. But in both instances a resolution providing for such election by a plurality was first adopted by a majority of votes, and afterwards it was declared by a majority vote that the person who received such plurality was duly elected.—Journals, 1, 31, pp. 156, 163; 1, 34, pp. 429, 430, 444.]

POINTS OF ORDER.

(See APPEAL and ORDER.)

POSTMASTER.

Election of, term of office, official oath.

There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until his successor is appointed, a postmaster, who shall take an oath "for the true and faithful discharge of the duties of his office, to the best of his knowledge and abilities, and to keep the secrets of the House;" his appointees shall be subject to the approval of the Speaker.—Rule 10. Appointees of.

He is also required by the Act of July 2, 1862, to take an additional oath.—(See OATH.) Additional oath of.

The postmaster shall superintend the post office kept in the Capitol for the accomodation of the members.—Rule 28. Duty of.

By resolutions of the House of March 4 and 5, 1842, it is provided that the postmaster of the House be authorized and required to deliver to each member of the House the usual articles of stationery, to an amount not exceeding in value, at the cost price in the stationery-room, the sum of $45 for the long and $25 for the short session of Congress (this sum fixed by House resolution of September 24, 1850—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1510); that he keep a true and accurate account of all stationery which he may so deliver to the several members of the House; and if, in any case, a member shall require and receive a greater amount of stationery, during either session, than is above provided, the postmaster shall, before the close of such session, furnish to the Sergeant-at-Arms an account of such excess beyond the amounts respectively above specified, who is hereby required to deduct the amount of such excess from the pay and mileage of such members, and refund the same into the treasury: Provided, That this limitation is not intended to be made applicable to the use of envelope paper which may be required in the folding-room. And the postmaster is further authorized to deliver, for the use of the several committees of the House, such stationery as may be required for that purpose by the respective chairmen of such committees, keeping a true and accurate account of the quantity and cost of all so delivered. The postmaster shall not be at liberty to furnish stationery for the use of any committee, except to the acting chairman thereof, or to his order, nor to any one except to the members of the House and its officers. And the Clerk is required to deliver to the postmaster such kind and quantities of stationery as from time to time may be necessary for the use of the House.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 495.

POST OFFICE AND POST ROADS, COMMITTEE ON THE.

When appointed, and number of.

There shall be appointed, at the commencement of each Congress, a Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

Its duties.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching the post office and post roads as shall be presented, or shall come in question, and be referred to them by the House; and to report their opinion thereon, together with such propositions relative thereto as to them shall seem expedient."—Rule 81.

POSTPONE, MOTION TO.

Order in which question on, to be put.

"When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table,

for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend,
to postpone indefinitely;

which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged; and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day and at the same stage of the bill or proposition."—Rule 42.

Not to be repeated on same day and at same stage.

When postponed indefinitely, not to be taken up during session.

"When a question is postponed indefinitely, the same shall not be acted upon again during the session."—Rule 142.

"The order of business, as established by the rules, shall not be postponed or changed, except by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members present."—Rule 145.

Of order of business requires two-thirds vote.

[The motion to postpone, under the practice, admits of but a very limited debate. When the consideration of a subject is postponed to a particular day, upon the arrival of that day it is entitled to be taken up, provided no question of privilege or other question of higher dignity be taken up. In the case of a report of a committee postponed to a day certain and a failure to consider it on that day, it becomes a report undisposed of, to be first considered when reports are in order. And where two or more reports are postponed to different days and are not reached on those days, they are to be considered in the order of the times to which they were postponed.]

Reports of committees postponed, when considered.

The effect of the previous question, if a motion to postpone is pending, shall be to bring the House to a vote upon such motion.—Rule 132.

Effect of previous question where motion to postpone is pending.

PREAMBLE.

"When a bill is taken up in committee, or on its second reading, they postpone the preamble till the other parts of the bill are gone through. The reason is, that on consideration of the body of the bill, such alterations may therein be made as may also occasion the alteration of the preamble."—Manual, p. 86.

Postponed until other parts of bill are gone through.

In Committee of the Whole last considered.

[In the case of a resolution with a preamble, there is no difficulty as to the time at which the preamble is to be considered, nor in any case in Committee of the Whole; but in the House, in the case of a bill with a preamble, there is some uncertainty as to the particular stage in which the bill must be when it is proper to consider the preamble. It would seem that it might appropriately be done after the bill has been ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and before the third reading takes place. By this course the bill can be engrossed either with or without the preamble, as the House shall have determined. But where a separate vote on the preamble

Must be seconded by a majority.

Its effects.

The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate (except that the member reporting the measure under consideration may close the debate—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1056—and the every-day practice since), and to bring the House to a direct vote upon a motion to commit, if such motion shall have been made; and if this motion does not prevail, then upon amendments reported by a committee, if any; then upon pending amendments, and then upon the main question. But its only effect, if a motion to postpone is pending, shall be to bring the House to a vote upon such motion. Whenever the House shall refuse to order the main question, the consideration of the subject shall be resumed as though no motion for the previous question had been made. The House may also, at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill. The previous question has not the effect of cutting off instructions previously moved in connection with a motion to commit.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1394.

Effect of, on question of order, motion to reconsider and to postpone.

[Under the practice of the House, if a question of order or a motion to reconsider is pending when the previous question is moved, when ordered it applies only to them, and is exhausted with the vote upon them; so, too, by the express language of Rule 132, in the case of a motion to postpone.]

No modification after second of.

Nor withdrawal.

After the previous question has been seconded, it is not competent for the mover to modify his proposition.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1397. Lithographing and engraving.

"That all lithographing and engraving, where the probable total cost of the maps or plates illustrating or accompanying any one work exceeds two hundred and fifty dollars, shall be awarded to the lowest and best bidder for the interests of the government, due regard being paid to the execution of the work, after due advertisement by the Superintendent of Public Printing, under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing: Provided, That the Joint Committee on Public Printing be authorized to empower the Superintendent of Public Printing to make immediate contracts for engraving, whenever, in their opinion, the exigencies of the public service will not justify waiting for advertisement and award.

Where extra copies are desired by any person.

"That whenever any person may desire extra copies of any document printed at the government printing office by authority of law, and shall notify the Superintendent of Public Printing of the number of copies desired previous to its being put to press, and shall pay, in advance, the estimated cost thereof to said Superintendent, the Superintendent shall be authorized, under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing, to furnish such extra copies; and the money so received, together with moneys received by him from the sales of paper shavings and imperfections, shall be deposited in the treasury of the United States to the credit of the appropriations for public printing, binding and paper, respectively, as designated by said Superintendent; and, further, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to cause the moneys heretofore deposited by said Superintendent in the treasury of the United States, being the proceeds of sales of paper shavings and imperfections, to be placed to the credit of the appropriations aforesaid, which said several sums of money shall be subject to the requisition of said Superintendent in the manner now prescribed by law.

Papers relating to foreign affairs.

"That whenever papers relating to foreign affairs shall be communicated to Congress, accompanying the annual message of the President, it shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Printing to cause to be printed and bound, in addition to the usual number, four thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate, seven thousand copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives, and such number for the executive department as the President shall direct.

Form and style of printing and binding.

"That the forms and style in which the printing or binding ordered by any of the departments shall be executed, the materials and size of type to be used, shall be determined by the Superintendent of Public Printing, having proper regard to economy, workmanship and the purposes for which the work is needed.

"That all laws or parts of laws, Joint Resolutions or parts of Joint Resolutions, conflicting with the above provisions, be, and they are hereby, repealed."—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, pp. 184, 185, 186.

To be done only on written order.

By the Act of March 14, 1864, it is provided that no printing or binding shall be done, or blank books procured, for the House except on the written order of the Clerk.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 25.

Number of bills to be printed.

By the Joint Resolution of February 3, 1864, it is provided that seven hundred copies of every bill or Joint Resolution ordered to be printed shall be furnished, unless some other number be specially required.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 402.

Congressional Directory.

By the Joint Resolution of February 14, 1865, it is provided that the Congressional Directory shall be compiled under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing, and published by the Superintendent of Public Printing, the first edition of each session to be ready for distribution within one week after the commencement thereof.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 568.

Paper for, how purchased.

By the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1865, the Superintendent is authorized to purchase paper for the public printing by accepting the sealed proposals of the lowest bidder or bidders for any specific portion or portions of the whole amount of any particular kind of paper required, for either three months, six months, or one year, the minimum portion to be specified by the Superintendent in his advertisement for proposals, and to be as low as will, in his judgment, most increase competition, and be most advantageous to the United States; and it is also made his duty to report fully in regard to all proposals and contracts for paper in his annual report to Congress, and also in regard to lithographing and engraving.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XIII, p. 572.

Report of contracts, &c., for paper, lithographing and engraving to be made.

PRINTING, JOINT COMMITTEE ON.

"A committee, consisting of three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, shall be appointed by the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House, to be called the Joint Committee on the Public Printing. The said committee shall pass upon the accounts of the Superintendent of the Public Printing. Said committee shall have power to adopt such measures as may be deemed necessary to remedy any neglect or delay in the execution of the public printing: Provided, That no contract, agreement, or arrangement entered into by this committee, shall take effect until the same shall have been approved by that house of Congress to which the printing belongs, and, when the printing delayed relates to the business of both houses, until both houses shall have approved of such contract or arrangement. All motions to print extra copies of any bill, report, or other document, shall be referred to the members of the Committee on Printing from the house in which the same may be made."—Stat. at Large, Vol. X, p. 34.

To be appointed.

Power and duties of.

May cause sheets to be dry-pressed.

The committee on the part of the House may direct the binding of extra copies of documents, the size of which shall not be less than two hundred and fifty pages; the cost not to exceed 12½ cents per volume.—Ibid., p. 190.

House members may direct binding of certain extra documents.

They may control the order in which the Superintendent shall deliver matter to be printed.—Ibid., p. 31.

May control the order in which printing is to be done.

The committee shall agree and fix upon a standard of paper for the printing of Congressional documents, and in case of difference of opinion between the Superintendent and the contractor for paper with respect to the quality, the same shall be settled by said committee; and whenever any charts, maps, diagrams, views, or other engravings shall be required to illustrate any document ordered to be printed by either House of Congress, such engraving shall be procured by the Superintendent, under the direction and supervision of the Committee on Printing of the house ordering the same.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 117 to 120.

Shall direct the procurement of engraving.

To appoint person to edit and select portions of documents to be printed and to prepare index.

By the Act of June 25, 1864, it is made the duty of said committee to appoint some competent person, who shall edit and select such portion of the documents accompanying the annual reports of the heads of departments as shall, in their judgment, be desirable for popular distribution, and to prepare an alphabetical index to the same.

To direct engraving and lithographing contracts.

By the same act said committee shall have the direction, after advertisement, of all lithographing and engraving where it exceeds $250 in value; and they are authorized to empower the Superintendent to make immediate contracts for engraving, whenever, in their opinion, the exigencies of the public service will not justify waiting for advertisement and award.

To direct the furnishing of extra copies of documents to any person.

Shall have prepared index to the laws.

By the same act the Superintendent is authorized, under the direction of said committee, to furnish extra copies of such documents as may be desired by any person. House members of, shall report, &c., on engraving.

"There shall be referred by the Clerk to the members of the Committee on Printing on the part of the House all drawings, maps, charts, or other papers, which may at any time come before the House for engraving, lithographing, or publishing in any way; which committee shall report to the House whether the same ought, in their opinion, to be published; and if the House order the publication of the same, that said committee shall direct the size and manner of execution of all such maps, charts, drawings, or other papers, and contract by agreement, in writing, for all such engraving, lithographing, printing, drawing and coloring, as may be ordered by the House; which agreement, in writing, shall be furnished by said committee to the Committee of Accounts, to govern said committee in all allowances for such works; and it shall be in order for said committee to report at all times."—Rule 100.

May report at any time.

"It shall be in order for the Committee on Printing to report at any time."—Rule 101. And the right to report at any time carries with it the right to consider the matter when reported.—Journal, 1, 32, p. 195.

(See also PRINTING, PUBLIC.)

PRIORITY OF BUSINESS.

Question relative to, not debatable.

"All questions relating to the priority of business to be acted on shall be decided without debate."—Rule 66.

PRIORITY OF QUESTIONS.

When a question is under debate.

"When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged; and no motion to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day and at the same stage of the bill or proposition."—Rule 42. [When any one of the foregoing motions is received, the practice is not to receive one of lower dignity until the former is disposed of.]

On motions of reference.

"When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order: the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union; the Committee of the Whole House; a standing committee; a select committee."—Rule 43.

PRIVATE BILLS AND PRIVATE BUSINESS.

Take precedence on Friday and Saturday.

"Friday and Saturday in every week shall be set apart for the consideration of private bills and private business in preference to any other, unless otherwise determined by a majority of the House."—Rule 128. And such bills may also be considered in their order on other days, notwithstanding their precedence on Friday and Saturday.—Journal, 1, 19, p. 795.

But may be considered on other days.

Majority may determine what to consider after disposing of.

When all the private business has been disposed of on Friday or Saturday, it is competent for a majority to determine what business shall be considered.—Journal, 1, 26, p. 460.

A motion to go into a Committee of the Whole House takes precedence of motion to go into Union.

A motion to go into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union may be entertained on private bill day (Journal, 2, 22, p. 212 et passim); but the motion to go into a Committee of the Whole House takes precedence (Journals, 1, 29, p. 850; 1, 30, p. 775), [unless, according to the general although not universal practice, a special order is pending in the former.]

Bills from the Court of Claims.

"The bills from the Court of Claims shall, on being laid before the House, be read a first and second time, committed to a Committee of the Whole House, and, together with the accompanying reports, printed."—Rule 122.

By usage, go to a Committee of the Whole House.

[Although there is no express rule requiring it, except in the preceding case in regard to bills from the Court of Claims, it is the usage in the commitment of private bills to send them to a Committee of the Whole House, while public bills are sent to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.]—(See COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE.)

On first and fourth Friday and Saturday, such as are not objected to are to be considered.

"On the first and fourth Friday and Saturday of each month, the calendar of private bills shall be called over (the chairman of the Committee of the Whole House commencing the call where he left off the previous day), and the bills to the passage of which no objection shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members."—Rule 129. And this rule applies as well to the consideration of bills in the House as in Committee of the Whole.—Journal, 1, 31, p.

697. [On such days, objection, such as is indicated by the above rule, or debate arising thereon, is fatal to the further consideration of a bill, but an amendment may be entertained and voted on. And after a bill has been objected to, and on that account passed over, it cannot, without unanimous consent, be recurred to.]

PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and number of.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Private Land Claims, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

Its duty.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Private Land Claims to take into consideration all claims to land which may be referred to them, or shall or may come in question, and to report their opinion thereupon, together with such propositions for relief therein as to them shall seem expedient."—Rule 86.

PRIVILEGE.

Privilege from arrest.

"Senators and representatives shall, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place."—Const., 1, 6, 9.

Not to be questioned out of House for speech or debate in House.

Privilege from arrest.

"This privilege from arrest, privileges, of course, against all process the disobedience to which is punishable by an attachment of the person; as a subpœna ad respondendum or testificandum, or a summons on a jury; and with reason, because a member has superior duties to perform in another place."—Manual, p. 54.

House may expel its members.

"Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly conduct, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member."—Const., 1, 5, 8.

Penalties inflicted for breach of.

In the maintenance of what are denominated its privileges and of the privileges of its individual members, the House, in former Congresses, has imposed various penalties.

In some cases it has directed its Speaker to reprimand the party offending.—Journals, 1, 4, p. 389; 1, 15, p. 154; 1, 22, pp. 730, 736.

In others it has committed the party to the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms.—Journals, 1, 4, p. 407; 1, 12, p. 280; 1, 15, p. 119; 2, 34, pp. 277, 281, 384.

In others (where the parties were reporters of the House) it has excluded them from the hall.—Journals, 1, 24, p. 1021; 2, 33, p. 315.

And in one case, where a witness refused to answer a question propounded to him by a select committee, it was ordered and adjudged by the House that he be committed to the common jail of the District of Columbia, to be kept in close custody until he should signify his willingness to purge himself of the contempt.—Journal, 1, 35, p. 387 to 389. And after having been so imprisoned for more than three months, he was, by the further order of the House, released from jail and delivered over to the marshal of the said District to answer a presentment pending against him in the United States criminal court therein.—Ibid., p. 535 to 539.

PRIVILEGE, QUESTIONS OF.

Take precedence of other business.

"A matter of privilege arising out of any question, or from a quarrel between two members, or any other cause, supersedes the consideration of the original question, and must be first disposed of."—Manual, p. 101. [According to the practice, not finally disposed of; but the House shall proceed to such immediate measures as it may think proper.]

Duty of the Speaker in reference to.

Whenever the Speaker is of the opinion that a question of privilege is involved in a proposition, he must entertain it in preference to any other business.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 724. [Such opinion, of course, being subject to an appeal.] And when a proposition is submitted which relates to the privileges of the House, it is his duty to entertain it, at least to the extent of submitting the question to the House as to whether or not it presents a question of privilege.—Journals, 3, 27, p. 46; 1, 29, p. 223; 1, 30, p. 712; 1, 31, p. 1079; 1, 35, pp. 376, 410.

An enumeration of the various questions of privilege that may arise cannot, of course, be given, but the following list embraces nearly all that have arisen, viz.:

Contested election cases—Journals, 1, 26, pp. 1283, 1300; 1, 29, p. 201; 1, 31, p. 1065; 2, 31, p. 119; Which have arisen.

(See FLOOR.)

PRIVILEGED QUESTIONS.

What are.

[Privileged questions are those to which precedence is given over other questions by some general rule or special order of the House, and are of different grades among themselves.]

Motions to fix the day to which the House shall adjourn, and to adjourn, shall be "always in order."—Rule 44. Motions to reconsider take precedence of all questions, except a motion to adjourn.—Rule 49. PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

What are.

Two copies of all to be retained in House library.

"There shall be retained in the library of the Clerk's office, for the use of the members there, and not to be withdrawn therefrom, two copies of all the books and printed documents deposited in the library."—Rule 17.

"The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States"—Const., 1, 2, 5—and "a majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide."—Const., 1, 5, 8. Majority constitutes, for business. Power of less than.

In view of the foregoing clauses of the Constitution, it was decided, during the 37th Congress, to which several of the States had failed to send representatives, that a majority of the members chosen constituted a quorum to do business.—Journal, 1, 37, p. 117. Majority of members chosen constitutes.

A quorum of the House for the purpose of choosing the President shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States.—Const., 2, 1, 16. What constitutes, in choosing the President.

Tellers may be ordered upon motion seconded by at least one-fifth of a quorum of the members.—Rule 4. One-fifth of, may order tellers.

The Speaker each day on the meeting of the House, "and on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the Journal of the preceding day to be read."—Rule 1. And it is a very common practice, when no quorum is present upon the Speaker taking the chair, for him to entertain a motion for a call of the House before causing the Journal to be read.—Journal, 1, 35, p. 840. Journal to be read on appearance of.

Where less than a quorum is present, a motion to take a Less than, can recess is not in order, and no motion is in order except for a call or to adjourn.—Journals, 1, 29, p. 356; 2, 29, p. 343; 2, 32, p. 388.

Want of, in Committees of the Whole.

"Whenever the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, or the Committee of the Whole House, finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall cause the roll of the House to be called, and thereupon the committee shall rise, and the chairman shall report the names of the absentees to the House, which shall be entered on the Journal."—Rule 126. And as soon (after rising for such purpose) as a quorum is ascertained to be present, the House must return into committee.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 592.

Where not present, a member may call for count.

"Whenever during business it is observed that a quorum is not present, any member may call for the House to be counted, and being found deficient, business is suspended."—Manual, p. 63, also p. 79.

(See, also, CALLS OF THE HOUSE.)

READING OF PAPERS.

Right of member to insist on, where called to vote on them.

"Where papers are laid before the House or referred to a committee, every member has a right to have them once read at the table before he can be compelled to vote on them"—Manual, p. 93—and this applies to the reading of papers on a motion to refer them.—Journal, 1, 34, p. 1146. And so in regard to any proposition submitted for a vote of the House; but it being a right derived from the rules, he may at any time (when a motion to suspend the rules is in order) be deprived of it by a suspension of the rules—Journals, 1, 32, p. 1116; 3, 34, p. 618; 2, 35, p. 572; 2, 38, pp. 397, 398—even after the main question is ordered to be put.—Journal, 3, 34, p. 386.

But may be deprived of it by a suspension of the rules.

Where objected to.

"When the reading of a paper is called for, and the same is objected to by any member, it shall be determined by a vote of the House."—Rule 141.

Construction of the 57th Rule in regard to.

[The rule above recited is not construed to apply to the single reading of a paper or proposition upon which the House may be called upon to give a vote, or to the several regular readings of a bill, but to cases where a paper has been ordered

RECONSIDER, MOTION TO.

Who may make. "When a motion has been once made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member of the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof, on

When to be made. the same or succeeding day; and such motion shall take pre-

Precedence of. cedence of all other questions, except a motion to adjourn;

Cannot be withdrawn after the time elapsed for making. and shall not be withdrawn after the said succeeding day without the consent of the House, and thereafter any member

Any member may call up. may call it up for consideration."—Rule 49.

Who may make, in case of tie vote. A fair construction of this rule will permit a member who has voted with the prevailing side on a tie vote to move a reconsideration. Such is evidently the spirit of the rule.—Journal, 1, 30, p. 1081. [And such has been the subsequent practice.]

May be entered, but not considered, while another question is up. It is in order at any time on the same or succeeding day to move a reconsideration and have it entered, but it cannot be taken up and considered while another question is before the House.—Journal, 1, 34, pp. 1476, 1477.

May be entertained even after papers have gone out of the possession of the House. A motion to reconsider, if made in time, may be entertained, notwithstanding the papers connected with the original proposition have gone out of the possession of the House.—Journals, 1, 26, p. 1033; 1, 28, pp. 1125, 1131; 1, 29, p. 657; 1, 33, pp. 336, 1199. And pending a motion to reconsider the vote on the passage of a bill, the Speaker should decline to sign the said bill if reported by the Committee on Enrolled Bills.—Journal, 1, 26, p. 1033. [When the papers have been sent to the Senate, it is usual, in case of a motion to reconsider, to send a message to that body requesting their return.]

Effect of pendency of, upon original proposition. [The effect of the pendency of a motion to reconsider, according to the universal usage, is to suspend the original proposition]; but "where the term of the members expires without acting on the motion to reconsider for the want of time or inclination, the motion of course fails, and leaves the original proposition operative."—(Opinion of Mr. Speaker Orr, and also of Mr. Speaker Banks, in the case of a resolution directing the payment of money out of the contingent fund of the House, where Congress adjourned sine die pending a motion to reconsider the vote by which it was adopted.)

Not in order, where action has resulted which cannot be reversed.

It is not in order to move a reconsideration of a vote sustaining a decision of the Chair, after subsequent action has resulted from such decision which it is impossible for the House to reverse.—Journal, 1, 31, pp. 860, 861. Nor is it in order to move a reconsideration of a vote upon a bill reported and committed under the call on alternate Mondays.—Rule 51. Nor upon a bill introduced and referred during the first hour after the reading of the Journal on alternate Mondays.—Rule 130.

Nor on bills reported or introduced on alternate Mondays.

Previous question is exhausted by vote on.

[Under the practice, if a motion to reconsider is pending when the previous question is ordered, such order applies to the motion to reconsider only.]

Cannot be repeated.

Where a motion to reconsider has been once put and decided, it is not in order to repeat the motion.—Journal, 2, 27, p. 1022.

Except where an amendment has been made.

But it is otherwise where an amendment has been adopted since the first reconsideration.—Journal, 1, 31, pp. 1404, 1406, 1407.

Order of yeas and nays may be reconsidered.

An order that a vote be taken by yeas and nays may be reconsidered, but the question immediately recurs, subject to be decided affirmatively by one-fifth of the members present.—Journals, 1, 19, p. 796; 1, 30, p. 405.

So also negative vote on motion to lie on the table.

A negative vote on a motion to lie on the table may be reconsidered.—Journal, 2, 32, p. 234.

If motion to reconsider be laid on table, it cannot be reconsidered.

A motion to reconsider a vote laying a motion to reconsider on the table is not in order; if entertained, it would lead to inextricable confusion by piling up motion upon motion to reconsider.—Journals, 3, 27, p. 334; 1, 33, p. 357.

Decided affirmatively, question immediately recurs on original question, &c.

According to the uniform practice, where a motion to reconsider has been passed in the affirmative, the question immediately recurs upon the question reconsidered.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 847. [And the House proceeds with the consideration of the subject without regard to the fact of its having been on the Speaker's table when the motion to reconsider was submitted.]

When vote taken under previous question is reconsidered.

Where a vote taken under the operation of the previous question is reconsidered, the question is then divested of the previous question, and is open to debate and amendment.—Jour- nals, 1, 27, p. 129; 1, 33, p. 127. [These decisions apply only to cases where the previous question was fully exhausted by votes taken on all the questions covered by it, before the motion to reconsider was made. In any other case, the pendency of the previous question would preclude debate.]

Previous question may be reconsidered, if not partly executed.

The previous question may be reconsidered, but not after it is partly executed.—Journal, 1, 31, pp. 1101, 1398. [And according to the usual practice, in the reconsideration of the previous question but a single vote is taken, viz.: Will the House reconsider the vote on ordering the main question? Which being decided affirmatively, the question is divested of the demand for the previous question.]

Previous question, how reconsidered.

Not in order on vote refusing to pass a vetoed bill.

A vote on the reconsideration of a vetoed bill cannot be reconsidered.—Journal, 1, 28, pp. 1093, 1097. Nor can a vote on a motion to suspend the rules be reconsidered.—Journal, 2, 31, p. 134.

Nor on vote on suspending the rules.

Where not debatable.

A motion to reconsider is not debatable, if the question proposed to be reconsidered was not debatable.—Journals, 2, 27, p. 331; 2, 30, pp. 135, 136. But the fact of a question having been decided under the operation of the previous question does not prevent debate on the motion to reconsider, if the original question was otherwise debatable.—Journal, 1, 33, p. 127. A motion to reconsider a vote on a resolution passed on resolution day, under the operation of the previous question, like the resolution, cannot be debated on that day, but must lie over.—Journal, 2, 30, pp. 135, 136.

REFER, MOTION TO.

REPORTERS.

Admitted to gallery with permission of Speaker.

"Stenographers and reporters, other than the official reporters of the House, wishing to take down the debates, may be admitted by the Speaker to the reporters' gallery over the Speaker's chair, but not on the floor of the House; but no person shall be allowed the privilege of said gallery under the character of stenographer or reporter, without a written permission of the Speaker, specifying the part of said gallery assigned to him; nor shall said stenographer or reporter be admitted to said gallery unless he shall state, in writing, for what paper or papers he is employed to report; nor shall he be so admitted, or if admitted, be suffered to retain his seat, if he shall be or become an agent to prosecute any claim pending before Congress; and the Speaker shall give his written permission with this condition."—Rule 135.

Must state for what paper.

Must not be claim agents.

By a resolution of the House (Journal, 1, 32, p. 70) the doorkeeper was directed to provide chairs for the reporters of the Congressional Globe, to be placed in front of the Clerk's desk.

Of "Congressional Globe" occupy chairs in front of Clerk's desk.

By resolution of the House of January 5, 1865, the Speaker is directed to appoint a stenographic reporter, to continue in office until otherwise ordered by the House, whose duty it shall be to report in short-hand, on the order of any of the standing or special committees of the House, such proceedings as they may deem necessary, and, when ordered to be printed, properly index and supervise the publication of the same.—Journal, 2, 38, pp. 79, 80.

Snch reports as originated in either house, and, at the close of the session, remain undetermined in either house, shall, after six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of the same Congress, be resumed as if an adjournment had not taken place. And all business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress as if no adjournment had taken place. —Rule 136.

Undetermined at end of a session.

(See CLAIMS, COURT OF.)

REPORTS OF OFFICERS OF GOVERNMENT.

List of, to be made to Congress, to be prepared.

"It shall be the duty of the Clerk to make and cause to be printed, and deliver to each member, at the commencement of every session of Congress, a list of the reports which it is the duty of any officer or department of the government to make to Congress, referring to the act or resolution and page of the volume of the laws or Journal in which it may be contained, and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required of him to be made, and the time when the report may be expected."—Rule 13.

RESOLUTIONS.

Distinction between "orders" and.

"When the House commands, it is by an 'order.' But fact, principles, and their own opinions and purposes, are expressed in the form of resolutions."—Manual, p. 82. [This distinction is not strictly kept up in the practice of the House.]

Daily call for.

"Reports from the committees having been presented and disposed of, the Speaker shall call for resolutions from the members of each State and delegates from each Territory, beginning with Maine and the Territory last organized alternately. They shall not be debated on the very day of their being presented; nor on any day assigned by the House for the receipt of resolutions, unless where the House shall direct otherwise, but shall lie on the table, to be taken up in the order in which they were presented; and if, on that day, the whole of the States and Territories shall not be called, the Speaker shall begin on the nevt day where he left off the previous day: Provided, That no member shall offer more than one resolution, or one series of resolutions, all relating to the same subject, until all the States and Territories shall have been called."—Rule 52.

Not to be debated.

Call for, how resumed.

Only one to be offered by a member.

Call for, on alternate Mondays, and no debate thereon.

"All the States and Territories shall be called for bills on leave and resolutions on each alternate Monday during each session of Congress; and, if necessary to secure the object on said days, all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion, under the rules of the House already established; and the whole of said days shall be appropriated to bills on leave and resolutions, until all the States and Territories are called through.—February 6, 1838. And the Speaker shall first call the States and Territories for bills on leave; and all bills so introduced during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be referred, without debate, to their appropriate committees: Provided, however, That a bill so introduced and referred shall not be brought back into the House upon a motion to reconsider."—Rule 130.—(See MORNING HOUR ON MONDAYS.)

Name of member who offers, entered on Journal.

The name of the member who offers a resolution to the consideration of the House shall be inserted on the Journals. —Rule 32.

Amendment to.

"No bill or resolution shall, at any time, be amended by annexing thereto, or incorporating therewith, any other bill or resolution pending before the House."—Rule 48. [According to the practice, an amendment containing the substance of a pending bill or resolution is in order.]—(See AMENDMENTS.)

Where concurrence of Senate is necessary.

"Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate shall be necessary, shall be read to the House, and laid on the table, on a day preceding that in which the same shall be moved, unless the House shall otherwise expressly allow."—Rule 143.

Calling for information.

Such resolutions as call for information from the President or heads of departments are required, by Rule 53, to lie on the table one day.—(See PRESIDENT and EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS.)

May be considered if previous question seconded.

A demand for the previous question immediately upon submitting a resolution prevents debate, and, if seconded, the resolution need not lie over, as in the case of debate arising.—Journals, 1, 26, p. 1067; 2, 27, p. 429.

REVISAL AND UNFINISHED BUSINESS, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and number of.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee of Revisal and Unfinished Business, to consist of five members.—Rule 74.

REVOLUTIONARY CLAIMS, COMMITTEE ON.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Revolutionary Claims, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

Its duties.

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Revolutionary Claims to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching claims and demands originating in the revolutionary war, or arising therefrom, as shall be presented, or shall or may come in question, and be referred to them by the House; and to report their opinion thereupon, together with such propositions for relief therein as to them shall seem expedient."—Rule 84.

Its duties.

ROADS AND CANALS, COMMITTEE ON.

When appointed, and number of.

There shall be appointed at the commencement of each Congress a Committee on Roads and Canals, to consist of nine members.—Rule 74.

Its duties.

nent of the navigation of rivers, as shall be presented or may come in question, and be referred to them by the House; and to report thereupon, together with such propositions relative thereto as to them shall seem expedient."—Rule 94.

ROOMS IN THE CAPITOL.

Unappropriated, to be at disposal of Speaker.

"The unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol assigned to the House shall be subject to the order and disposal of the Speaker until the further order of the House."—Rule 5.

RULES.

Each house may determine its.

"Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings."—Const., 1, 5, 8.

Not to be changed without notice.

"No standing rule or order of the House shall be rescinded or changed without one day's notice being given of the motion therefor (see NOTICES); nor shall any rule be suspended, except by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members present."—Rule 145. But a majority may at any time suspend the rules and orders for the purpose of going into the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, and for closing debate in Committees of the Whole—(see DEBATE.)—Rule 104.

To suspend, requires two-thirds, except to go into Union or close debate in Committee of the Whole.

When only motions to suspend, can be made.

Except during the last ten days of the session the Speaker shall not entertain a motion to suspend the rules of the House at any time, except on Monday of every week, at the expiration of one hour after the Journal is read, unless the call of States and Territories for bills on leave has been earlier concluded, when the Speaker may entertain a motion to suspend the rules.—Rule 145.

When motion to suspend, not in order.

It is not in order to move a suspension of the rules while the House is acting under a suspension of the rules—Cong. Globe, 2, 27, pp. 58, 142; 1, 31, p. 1225; unless connected with the business immediately before the House—Journal, 2, 36, p. 212; nor while considering a special order, it having been made under a suspension of the rules—Cong. Globe, 2, 29, pp. 401, 439; nor while the previous question is operating.—Journal, 2, 33, p. 564.

Motion to suspend, not debatable. Not amendable.

A motion to suspend the rules is not debatable—Cong. Globe, 2, 27, p. 121; 1, 29, p. 343; nor is it amendable—Cong. Globe, 2, 30, pp. 319, 320; Journal, 2, 35, p. 477;

Cannot be laid on table or postponed indefinitely.

nor can it be laid on the table—Cong. Globe, 1, 29, p. 343; Journal, 2, 35, p. 510; nor postponed indefinitely.—Cong. Globe, 1, 26, p. 121.

Vote on suspension cannot be reconsidered.

The vote on motion to suspend the rules cannot be reconsidered.—Journal, 2, 31, p. 134.

Where suspended for a particular purpose.

Where the rules are suspended to enable a member to submit a particular proposition, if he fails to submit it another member may do so.—Journal, 1, 23, p. 631. But where he submits it, and subsequently withdraws it, another member cannot renew it.—Journal, 2, 36, p. 131 to 140.

No modification after suspension.

After the rules have been suspended to allow a proposition to be submitted, it cannot be modified.—Cong. Globe, 1, 31, p. 1727. [But it may be amended by a vote of the House.]

Motion to suspend, may embrace several bills.

The rules may be suspended by a single vote for the purpose of enabling a number of bills to be reported from a committee.—Journal, 3, 34, p. 432.

Joint rule suspended by a majority.

A joint rule, so far as the House is concerned, requires a majority vote only for its suspension.—Journal, 2, 24, p. 574.

Not in order to change or rescind, under color of amendment.

It is not in order, under color of amendment, to move to change or rescind a rule; and where such is the effect of a motion, one day's notice is necessary.—Journal, 1, 20, p. 674.

To continue unless otherwise ordered.

"These rules shall be the rules of the House of Representatives of the present and succeeding Congresses, unless otherwise ordered."—Rule 147.

SATURDAY.

(See PRIVATE BILLS AND PRIVATE BUSINESS.)

SEATS OF MEMBERS.

What has been customary in regard to.

Previous to the 2d session of the 35th Congress, each member was provided with a desk and seat within the hall, the location of which for the session has of late years been determined by lot. At that session, with a view to try the experiment of dispensing with desks, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:

"Resolved, That the Superintendent of the Capitol Extension be directed, after the adjournment of the present session of Congress, to remove the desks from the hall of the House, and to make such a re-arrangement of the seats of members as will bring them together into the smallest convenient space."—Journal, 2, 35, pp. 580, 583. Desks to be removed and seats re-arranged.

At the next session, however, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:

"Resolved, That the Superintendent of the Capitol Extension be directed to remove the present benches from the hall, and replace the old chairs and desks, adopting substantially the original arrangements thereof, but having regard to any reduction of space occupied by them, without interfering with the convenience of the arrangement."—Journal, 1, 36, p. 351. Restoration of the desks and seats.

The following is the usual form of resolution for the selection of seats, viz.:

"Resolved, That the Clerk of the House (here indicate the time) place in a box the name of each member and delegate of the House of Representatives written on a separate slip of paper; that he then proceed, in the presence of the House, to draw from said box, one at a time, the said slips of paper; and as each is drawn, he shall announce the name of the member or delegate upon it, who shall choose his seat for the present session: Provided, That before said drawing shall commence, the Speaker shall cause every seat to be vacated, and shall see that every seat continues vacant until it is selected under this order; and that every seat, after having been selected, shall be deemed vacant if left unoccupied before the calling of the roll is finished."—Journal, 1, 35, p. 78. Form of resolution for the selection of.

SECRET SESSION.

"Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, the House shall be cleared of all persons, except the members, Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, and doorkeeper, and so continue during the reading of such communications, and (unless otherwise directed by the House) during all debates and proceedings to be had thereon. And when the Speaker, or any other member, shall inform the When confidential communication made by President.

Or upon suggestion by Speaker or member.

House to be cleared.

House that he has communications to make which he conceives ought to be kept secret, the House shall, in like manner, be cleared till the communication be made; the House shall then determine whether the matter communicated requires secrecy or not, and take order accordingly."—Rule 137.

Provision for, during the rebellion.

"When, during the present rebellion, any member of the Senate or House of Representatives shall rise, and in his place state that the President desires the immediate action of Congress upon any matter pertaining to the suppression of the present rebellion, the galleries of the house in which the statement is made shall be immediately cleared, and after such member shall state the action desired by the President, and the reasons for immediate action, such house shall determine without debate whether the proposed measure shall be considered. If decided in the affirmative, debate shall be confined to the subject-matter, and be limited to five minutes by any member: Provided, That any member shall be allowed five minutes to explain or oppose any pertinent amendment; And Provided, That this rule shall not affect the operation of the previous question in the House of Representatives. During such session, no communication shall be received or made by or from any person not a member then present, except from the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. If any member of the Senate or House of Representatives shall betray, publish, disclose, or reveal any debate, consultation, or proceeding had in such secret session, he shall be expelled; and if committed by any officer of either body, or other person, such punishment shall be inflicted as the body to which he belongs may impose."—Joint Rule 22.

Officers sworn to keep secrets of the House.

The Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, doorkeeper and postmaster shall be sworn to keep the secrets of the House.—Rule 10.

House need not publish Journal of.

Such parts of the Journal of a secret session as may, in the judgment of the House, require secrecy, need not be published.—Const., 1, 5, 9.

SEEDS.

By the Act of March 3, 1863, the franking privilege embraces seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, the weight of the packages of which may be fixed by regulation of the Postmaster-General.—Stat. at Large, Vol. XII, p. 709. May be franked.

SENATE.

"Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate shall be necessary, shall be read to the House, and laid on the table on the day preceding that in which the same shall be moved, unless the House shall otherwise expressly allow."—Rule 143. Orders, &c., requiring concurrence of, to lie on table one day.

Members of the Senate and their Secretary may be admitted on the floor of the House.—Rule 134. Members of, and their Secretary, may be admitted within the hall.

(See MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE.)

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until his successor is appointed, a Sergeant-at-Arms, who shall take an oath "for the true and faithful discharge of the duties of his office to the best of his knowledge and abilities, and to keep the secrets of the House;" and the vote shall be taken viva voce.—Rule 10. When to be elected, and term of office. Oath of office. Vote for, to be taken viva voce.

He is also required by the Act of July 2, 1862, to take an additional oath.—(See OATH.) Additional oath.

"It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to attend the House during its sittings; to aid in the enforcement of order, under the direction of the Speaker; to execute the commands of the House from time to time; together with all such process, issued by authority thereof, as shall be directed to him by the Speaker."—Rule 22. His duties.

"It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of members, to prepare checks, and, if required to do so, to draw the money on such checks for the members (the same being previously signed by the Speaker, and endorsed by the member), and pay over the same to the member entitled thereto."—Rule 25. Additional duty.

Committee on Mileage to report to.

And by Rule 99 it is made the duty of the Committee on Mileage to ascertain, and report to the Sergeant-at-Arms, the distance for which each member shall receive pay.

Shall deduct excess of stationery from compensation of members.

By resolution of May 4, 1842, it is made the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to deduct the amount of excess of stationery received by members beyond their allowance from their pay and mileage.—Journals, 2, 27; p. 495, and 1, 31, p. 1510. (See, also, COMPENSATION.)

Shall give bond.

"The Sergeant-at-Arms shall give bond, with surety, to the United States, in a sum not less than five nor more than ten thousand dollars, at the discretion of the Speaker, and with such surety as the Speaker may approve, faithfully to account for the money coming into his hands for the pay of members."—Rule 26.

"The symbol of his office (the mace) shall be borne by the Sergeant-at-Arms when in the execution of his office."—Rule 23.

Fees of.

"The fees of the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be, for every arrest, the sum of two dollars; for each day's custody and releasement, one dollar; and for traveling expenses for himself or a special messenger, going and returning, one-tenth of a dollar per mile."—Rule 24. And it is provided by Act of February 5, 1859, "that hereafter the mileage or traveling allowance to the officer or other person executing precepts or other summons of either house of Congress shall not exceed ten cents for each mile necessarily and actually traveled by such officer or other person in the execution of any such precept or summons."—Stat. at Large, Vol. XI, p. 379.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

By the Act of August 10, 1846, three of the Regents of said Institution shall be members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker on the fourth Wednesday in December next after the first meeting of every Congress, to serve until the fourth Wednesday in December, the second succeeding their appointment, and vacancies shall be filled as vacancies in committees are filled.—Stat. at Large, Vol. IX, p. 102.

The Board of Regents shall submit to Congress, at each session thereof, a report of the operations expenditures and condition of the Institution.—Ibid. Report to be made to Congress annually.

SPEAKER.

"The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers."—Const., 1, 2, 6. House shall choose.

By the Act of June 1, 1789, it is provided that the oath or affirmation required by the 6th article of the Constitution of the United States shall be administered in the form following, to wit: "I ——— ———, do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will support the Constitution of the United States." And that it shall be administered to him by "any one member of the House of Representatives."—Stat. at Large, Vol. I, p. 23. By the Act of March 1, 1792, it is provided, "that in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President of the United States, the President of the Senate pro tempore, and in case there shall be no President of the Senate, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives for the time being, shall act as President of the United States until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected."—Stat. at Large, Vol. I, p. 240. SPECIAL ORDERS.

Special orders are made under a suspension of the rules.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 1176. [And, of course (unless unanimous consent is given for the purpose—Journal, 1, 30, p. 580), can only be made when a motion to suspend the rules is in order.] Made under a suspension of the rules.

The House may, at any time, by a vote of a majority of the members present, make any of the general appropriation bills a special order,—Rule 119; but in all other cases it requires a two-thirds vote to make a special order, it being a change of the established order of business.—Journals, 1, 23, p. 785; 3, 27, p. 355; 1, 31, p. 1096. A majority may make general appropriation bills. It requires two-thirds to make, in other cases.

The usual form of resolution for making a special order is, "that the (here describe the bill or whatever else it may be) be made the special order for the —— day of ——, and from day to day until the same is disposed of."—Journal, 1, 31, p. Form of resolution for making.

1176. [In which case, after the arrival of the time fixed, or the disposal of a special order previously made, it takes precedence of all other business until it is disposed of.]

Other forms.

Sometimes the words "Fridays and Saturdays excepted" are inserted.—Journal, 1, 30, p. 692. [In which case the consideration of private bills may be proceeded with on those days, but it is otherwise where these words are omitted.—Journal, 1, 32, pp. 401, 433.] And sometimes the words, "and from day to day until disposed of," are omitted.—Journal, 1, 31, p. 522. In which case, if the matter made a special order is not taken up, or, if taken up, is left undisposed of on the day fixed, thereafter it loses its specialty.—Journal, 1, 31, pp. 631, 897.

May be postponed.

A special order may be postponed by a majority vote.—Journal, 1, 29, p. 1170.

Where two, on same day.

Where two special orders are made for the same time, the one first made takes precedence.—Cong. Globe, 1, 26, p. 325. [The other, according to the practice, if made for that day, and "from day to day," will come up as soon as the one first made is disposed of.]

Motion to suspend rules not in order pending.

Pending a special order, it is not in order to move a suspension of the rules, the special order having been made under a suspension of the rules.—Cong. Globe, 2, 29, p. 439.

Debate on, to be confined to measure.

In Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union all debate on special orders shall be confined strictly to the measure under consideration.—Rule 114.

And in case of a failure to supply the articles by the person entering into such contract, he and his sureties shall be liable for the forfeiture specified in such contract, as liquidated damages, to be sued for in the name of the United States in any court having jurisdiction thereof.—Stat. at Large, Vol. V, pp. 526, 527.

When proposals to be opened.

To whom contract to be awarded.

Liability of contractor failing to supply.

By a resolution of the House of March 4, 1842, the Clerk is directed in his purchase of stationery, to give preference, in all cases, to American manufactures, provided they be equally cheap and of as good quality; and to cause to be recorded in a well-bound book, suited to that purpose, the bills and invoices of all the stationery he may purchase from time to time; and to deliver to the postmaster of the House such kind and quantities of stationery as, from time to time, may be necessary for the use of the House, keeping an accurate account of the same, and also of the quantity and value of that used in the Clerk's office; and in his annual contingent report state accurately and distinctly the quantity and cost of the stationery used by the House and the Clerk's office separately.—Journal, 2, 27, pp. 476, 495.

So also with motion for increase of, or time of continuance.

It has been decided that the foregoing rules (110, 111) do not cover the case of a bill imposing a special duty upon national banks, to meet certain expenses to be incurred by the general government in relation thereto.—Journal, 1, 38, p. 537; Cong. Globe, Vol. 51, p. 1680.

On putting a question, "if the Speaker doubt, or a division is called for, the House shall divide; those in the affirmative of the question shall rise first from their seats, and afterwards those in the negative. If the Speaker still doubt, or a count be required by at least one-fifth of a quorum of the members, the Speaker shall name two members, one from each side, to tell the members in the affirmative and negative; which, being reported, he shall rise and state the decision to the House."—Rule 4.

Where no quorum votes on a division.

[According to the usage, whenever no quorum votes on a division, the Speaker directs the vote to be taken by tellers.]

In the election of officers.

[In the election of a Speaker, it is the invariable practice of the Clerk to name four members to act as tellers of the vote; and in the election of the other officers the same number of tellers are named by the Speaker. Such tellers are usually selected from the different political parties of which the House is composed.]

(See RECONSIDERATION.)

"The consideration of the unfinished business in which the House may be engaged at an adjournment shall be resumed as soon as the Journal of the next day is read, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of; and if, from any cause, other business shall intervene, it shall be resumed as soon as such other business is disposed of. And the consideration of all other unfinished business shall be resumed whenever the class of business to which it belongs shall be in order under the rules."—Rule 56.

"After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions and reports which originated in the House, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined, shall be resumed and acted on in the same manner as if an adjournment had not taken place.—March 17, 1848. And all business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress as if no adjournment had taken place."—Rule 136.

Of the preceding session, when to be resumed.

When bills and reports from the Court of Claims to the House are left undisposed of at the end of a Congress, the bills are to be again read twice and referred to the Committee of Claims, and the adverse reports restored to the private calendar at the commencement of the next Congress.—Journal, 1, 35, pp. 134, 135; 1, 36, p. 247.

VETO.

Return of bill with objections of President.

Where a bill, having passed both houses, shall be presented to the President of the United States, "if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their Journal and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the Journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law."—Const., 1, 7, 10.

Objections to be entered on Journal.

Proceedings on veto.

Yeas and nays on reconsideration.

Bills must be returned within ten days.

Similar rules applicable to orders, resolutions and votes.

A similar provision is made in the case of orders, resolutions, or votes presented to the President for his approval.—Ibid., 1, 7, pp. 10, 11.

Veto message read upon its being received.

Whenever a bill is returned to the House with the objections of the President, it is usual to have the message containing his objections immediately read—Journals, 1, 28, pp. 1081, 1084; 1, 29, pp. 1209, 1214; 2, 33, pp. 397, 411; 1, 34, p. 1420; and for the House to proceed to the reconsideration of the bill—Ibid.—or to postpone its reconsideration to a future day.—Ibid., 1, 21, p. 742. But not where less than a quorum is present.—Ibid., 33, p. 1341. A veto message and bill may be referred, or the message alone, and the bill may be laid on the table.—Journal, 2, 27, pp. 1253, 1254, 1256, 1257; Cong. Globe, same sess., p. 875.

And bill reconsidered or postponed.

But not where less than a quorum present.

Bill or message may be referred, or bill laid on table.

Main question on vetoed bill.

The main question in the consideration of a vetoed bill is, "Will the House on reconsideration agree to pass the bill?"—Journals, 2, 27, p. 1051; 1, 28, p. 1085; 1, 29, p. 1218, &c.

Two-thirds of members present necessary to pass vetoed bill.

The "two-thirds" by which a vetoed bill is required to be approved before it becomes a law has been construed in both houses to mean "two-thirds of the members present."—Journal, 1, 34, pp. 1176, 1178, 1420 (in all of which cases one hundred and fifty-six affirmatives votes would have been necessary to pass the bills if "two-thirds of the members elected" had been required), and Senate Journal, 1, 34, p. 419.

Motion to proceed to consider, a privileged question.

A motion to proceed to the consideration of a vetoed bill, with the objections of the President, is a privileged question under the Constitution.—Cong. Globe, 2, 27, p. 905; 2, 28, p. 396.

No reconsideration of vote on vetoed bill.

A vote on the passage of a vetoed bill cannot be reconsidered.—Cong. Globe, 1, 28, pp. 672, 677; Journal, same sess., p. 1093 to 1098.

Where President prevented by adjournment from returning bill with objections.

Where the President does not approve a bill, and is prevented by the adjournment of Congress from returning it with his objections, it is usual for him to inform the House wherein it originated, at the next session, of his reasons for not approving it.—Journals, 2, 12, p. 544; 1, 30, p. 82; 2, 35, p. 151.

VIVA VOCE.

Vote to be taken in election.
